

BING CROSBY

'A good round for Bing,' Mrs. Crosby

HILLSBOROUGH, Calif. (AP) — "I can't think of any better way for a golfer who sings for a living to finish the round," said an emotional Kathryn Crosby Friday, a few hours after her husband Bing died of a heart attack at a Spanish golf course.

Mrs. Crosby looked pale but smiled often as she recalled times she had spent recently with the famous crooner and actor. She spoke with reporters for about 25 minutes on the covered patio of the Crosby estate here.

"He's always been a very simple man," she said. "I think he is remembered in songs, isn't he? I think that's the way it should be."

Mrs. Crosby said that one of Crosby's fellow golfers told her by telephone that they had completed the game and the singer collapsed in the locker room.

"He told me that Bing had a very good round. I'd like that to be said," she said, smiling with tears in her eyes.

Her son Nathaniel sat next to his mother as she talked with reporters and held her hand beneath a marble patio table. His face and eyes were also red but he appeared composed.

She said Crosby apparently died of a massive heart attack and "he was in only a moment's distress, if any."

She said she last saw him Wednesday when she left London after working with him at a performance at the London Palladium, which he said was a test of his recovery from a back injury suffered in California during filming of a show commemorating his 50 years in show business.

Mrs. Crosby said he flew to Spain Thursday specifically to play golf and hunt, and she said he was looking forward enthusiastically to a chance for relaxation.

Although funeral plans are not complete, she said son Harry, 19, and Alan Fisher, the family's former butler, would fly to Spain from England to accompany Crosby's body back to Los Angeles where it probably will arrive Monday.

Funeral: only a low Mass

She said he probably will be buried in the family plot with his mother, father and first wife at a Los Angeles cemetery.

Mrs. Crosby said the family was together for the last time in London in late August to tape a Christmas television show.

"I think it's the best thing we've done," she said. "It was lovely. I think everyone will love it."

She talked softly but with animation about the family's time together in Britain.

Mrs. Crosby said her husband's funeral would be larger than he had wanted.

"I do know he feels very strongly about privacy and would like as quiet a service or memorial as possible. He wanted only the children and myself, but I think there are those who worshipped him for 40 years who have a right to be there," she said. They include Crosby's driver, business manager, agent and "the girls at the office. They're part of the family, too."

The funeral will be "a low Mass only," she said, with Bob Moonan, who had rehearsed the Crosby family's annual Christmas shows, playing the organ.

Neighbors and the parish priest at Our Lady Of Angels Church where Crosby regularly attended Mass described him as an unassuming man who never seemed unhappy.

'A man at ease in any American home,' says Carter

Celebrities mourn Bing's death

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer

Celebrities who shared Bing Crosby's life mourned his death Friday as the loss of an enduring musical giant.

"For all the roads he travelled in his memorable career, Bing Crosby remained a gentleman, proof that a great talent can be a good man despite the pressures of show business," said President Carter. "He lived a life his fans around the world felt was typically American; successfully and modest, casual but elegant. He revolutionized popular music singing the biggest hits of all time, yet was a man who would be at ease in any American home."

Perhaps most shaken by news of Crosby's death was Bob Hope, the friend who had shared a joking on-stage feud with Crosby for decades.

"I still don't believe it," Hope said in a telephone interview from New York's Waldorf Astoria. "I'm absolutely numb."

Hope and Crosby had recently signed contracts for a movie which would have reunited them with longtime costar Dorothy Lamour — "The Road to The Fountain of Youth."

"I don't believe it," Hope said. "I spoke to him on the telephone and he seemed in great spirits. He was playing golf and everything. I can't understand what happened. I guess he was more hurt in that fall than we realized."

He was referring to the tumble Crosby took from a Pasadena, Calif., stage into the orchestra pit during the taping of a TV special March 3.

Hope immediately canceled a benefit performance scheduled for Friday night in Morristown, N.J.

"I just can't get funny tonight," he said. "It's just not in me."

"There wasn't anyone in the theatre that would be missed as much as Bing Crosby not only as a performer but also as a person," commented Irving Berlin, the author of Crosby's best selling record "White Christmas." "There never was anyone who could do what Crosby did. He could play a priest, a drunk, a cowboy, and do straight acting too. He was a dancer and he did all these things so easily and made it look like anyone could do it."

"Crosby became a superstar in the late 1920s and remained a superstar," said comedian Milton Berle. "In fact, he will always be a superstar even though he's not with us."

Berle, who met Crosby in the 1920s while touring with the Paul Whiteman Band, remained a close friend. He was near tears as he spoke of Crosby's death.

"It's unfortunate that we have to lose this giant," Berle said. "But what is consoling to me is that even to this day, in 1977, he was still in demand. The sustainment of his popularity was really remarkable."

Of his own feelings, Berle said, "Every time I hear, 'White Christmas' now it will be a dark day for me."

Frank Sinatra, who followed Crosby's crooner tradition, said in a statement: "The death of Bing Crosby is almost more than I can take. He was the father of my career, the idol of my youth and a dear friend of my maturity.

Bing Crosby's life . . see Page 15

"Bing leaves a gaping hole in our music and in the lives of everybody who ever loved him. And that's just about everybody."

He added, "Thank God, we have his films and his records providing us with his warmth and his talent forever."

Fred Astaire, who starred in many films with Crosby, said, "Bing was a great friend of mine. I'm terribly upset about it. My whole family is, too ... It's a tragic thing, a great loss. I'm so sorry for all of us who valued him so much."

Comedian George Burns, a Crosby contemporary in show business, commented, "What can you say about Crosby? He was the original. He made up that kind of singing. He will be missed by the world and his voice will always be with us."

Zsa Zsa Gabor, who appeared in a Crosby film, said, "I am so heartbroken. What a loss.

"He was a big, big addition to our century," said Miss Gabor. "He was a big addition to our lives. You just have to listen to one of his songs and you feel happy."

In New York, CBS Chairman William S. Paley said, "Bing Crosby's death is a great loss to the entertainment world. He will be remembered as one of the best loved and most highly respected figures in theatrical history.

"He had a special place in our affections at CBS," said Paley. "But he belonged to the world and will be missed and mourned everywhere."

Maury Folladare, Crosby's Hollywood press agent for 31 years, said, "I'm not surprised; I'm shocked. It's the greatest loss I've ever had in my life."

Beat Dodgers 5-3

Three 'discontents' lead Yanks to victory

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three discontented Yankees — Mickey Rivers, Thurman Munson and Reggie Jackson — had the key hits as New York beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-3 in the third game of the 1977 World Series.

The victory gave the Yanks a 2-1 lead in games. Game No. 4 in the best-of-seven-series is scheduled for Saturday afternoon.

Rivers, who has demanded a trade from the Yankees, ended an 0-for-10 slump with three hits, including a double that ignited New York's three-run first inning. Munson drove him in with another double and Jackson drove in Munson with a single. An error and Lou Piniella's single brought Jackson home.

Munson had repeated his own trade demands before the game.

Panama leader link to drug traffic told

WASHINGTON (AP) — The director of the Drug Enforcement Administration said Friday that DEA files contain "a number of allegations, most of them hearsay," that Panama's leader, Gen. Omar Torrijos, and members of his family have engaged in international narcotics smuggling.

But DEA chief Peter B. Bensinger said the charges date back as far as 1971 and 1972, and said no current U.S. investigation of Torrijos is underway.

Allegations that Torrijos' brother, and perhaps the Panamanian leader himself, were involved in illicit narcotics have been mentioned recently by opponents of the Panama Canal, but no documentation has been provided.

However, as President Carter and Torrijos met Friday to clarify disputed points about the treaty's provisions for canal security after Panama takes it over, the drug issue showed signs of becoming another controversy.

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., said he would continue to press the DEA to give the Senate files containing drug-dealing allegations about Torrijos and other top Panamanian officials.

Demonstration broken up

Argentine police jail 150 women

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Heavily armed Argentine police broke up a demonstration by about 350 women Friday demanding to know the fate of missing relatives. About 150 of the women were arrested in front of the Congress building.

Several foreign and Argentine reporters and photographers covering the demonstration were also taken into custody and later released.

No injuries were reported in the early afternoon swoop.

The women demonstrators are relatives of some of the thousands of leftists and dissidents who have disappeared in Argentina in recent years, the victims of armed kidnap squads. Security officials say the abductions are the work of right-wing bands, but the women and some diplomats and human rights leaders believe security agents are involved.

The women had gathered outside the building to protest the abductions and demand the military government release information on their missing relatives.

After about 350 women had gathered, 50 policemen wearing riot helmets and carrying automatic weapons and tear gas rifles moved against them, shouting "Leave the area." The policemen hit some of the women with the butts of their weapons.

Some of the women ran but most stayed together in a tight group.

Eventually the police isolated about 150 women and reporters on a side street. Five empty city buses pulled up and they were put aboard.

Among the reporters arrested were Sally Chardy of NBC Radio, Diane Page of United Press International, David Dow of CBS Television and Gus Bono of the Wall Street Journal. Associated Press photographer Eduardo Blasc, an Argentine, was arrested separately and taken away in a police car.

4 hijackers set Sunday as deadline

DUBAI, United Arab Emirates (AP) — Four hijackers of a West German jetliner threatened to blow up the plane with 87 hostages, including 11 beauty queens, unless their demands for ransom and the release of "comrades" were met by Sunday.

The terrorists, two Arabic-speaking men and two women said to be armed with pistols and hand grenades, issued an ultimatum Friday addressed to the West German government demanding $15 million in ransom and freedom for prisoners in West Germany and Turkey, officials said.

A text of the ultimatum delivered to the French news agency AFP in Paris set a deadline of 4 a.m. EDT Sunday.

The hijackers made known their demands after ordering their commandeered Lufthansa jetliner to this Persian Gulf sheikdom after fuel stops at Rome, Cyprus and Bahrain.

The German government promptly dispatched Hans-Juergen Wischnewski of Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's office to Dubai to negotiate with the hijackers. The governnment also set up a "crisis staff" in Bonn.

Bing's death: a shock to the world

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Bing Crosby was one of the rare indelible figures of the American scene who you thought would never disappear.

His death on a Madrid golf course Friday shocks millions of people the world over with the intensity of losing a member of the family. No show business figure, not even the late Elvis Presley, reached so many persons in so many ways.

For nearly half a century his smooth-as-polished-oak baritone was heard throughout America, first as a member of the jazzy Rhythm Boys with Paul Whiteman's orchestra, then as solo singer for whom the word crooner was invented. His records sold more than any other singer's, his Paramount films were world-wide hits, his radio show was top-rated.

Bing never seemed at ease with his fame.

He never had the driving intensity of Bob Hope. Perhaps that was because Hope slugged his way up through vaudeville and Broadway. Bing also had rocky beginnings as a bandsinger and star of two-reel Mack Sennett shorts. But his manner seemed as easy-going as the "boo-boo-boo" of his early songs.

The on-screen nonchalance faded in his personal life. His first marriage to actress Dixie Lee was rocky, and his troubles with her contributed to his desire for privacy. When they married, she was a bigger star than he was, and her gayety seemed to vanish when she assumed the role of Mrs. Bing Crosby and mother of their four sons.

Her drinking sent Bing into a dark period during which he was aloof and difficult.

Dixie Crosby died in 1952, and in 1957 he married a Columbia Pictures actress, Kathryn Grant, who was 30 years younger. They had their own family of a daughter and two sons and moved out of the Hollywood scene to Hillsborough, just south of San Francisco.

"Kathryn was a good influence on Bing," says a close family friend. "She got him out of his shell, and the kids kept him young, too."

After a period in which Bing seemed content to play golf and fish off Baja California, he reactivated his career. He sang at concerts in Los Angeles, New York, London and elsewhere, usually joined by his wife and one or more of their children.

He was planning his first movie in 11 years, hitting the "Road" once more with Hope and Dorothy Lamour.

Despite his half-century of prominence, the interior Crosby remained obscured. No one really claimed to know him, not even Hope.

Starred in more than 70 movies

Crosby was planning another 'Road' film

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bing Crosby starred in more than 70 movies during a film career that began with the "King of Jazz" in 1930. And before he died in Spain on Friday, he was planning yet another film.

His last movie was "Stagecoach" in 1966. But he and Bob Hope were working on one more in their "Road" series, the eighth, called "The Road to The Fountain of Youth."

"Just yesterday we had resolved all the contract details for the picture we were going to do with Dotty (Lamour)," Hope said in a telephone interview Friday.

Crosby won an Oscar for his role as a priest in "Going My Way" in 1944, but he often said his favorite film was "High Society," in which he costarred with Grace Kelly and Frank Sinatra in 1956.

Here is a partial list of the films he made:

"King of Jazz," 1930; "The Big Broadcast of 1932"; "College Humor," 1933; "Going Hollywood"; "Too Much Harmony"; "We're Not Dressing," 1934; "She Loves Me Not"; "Here Is My Heart"; "Mississippi," 1935;

"The Big Broadcast of 1936"; "Anything Goes," 1936; "Rhythm on the Range," 1937; "Pennies From Heaven," 1938; "Doctor Rhythm," 1938; "Sing You Sinners," 1938; "East Side of Heaven," 1939; "Paris Honeymoon," 1939;

"Waikiki Wedding"; "Double Or Nothing"; "The Star Maker"; "Road To Singapore," 1939; "If I Had My Way," 1940; "Rhythm on The River," 1940; "Road to Zanzibar," 1941; "Birth of the Blues," 1941; "Road to Morocco," 1942;

"Holiday Inn," 1942; "Dixie," 1943; "Star Spangled Rhythm," 1943; "Going My Way," 1944, Academy Award; "The Bells of St. Mary's," 1945; "Road to Utopia," 1945; "Blue Skies," 1946; "Here Come The Waves";

In accidental slaying of boy, 7

Pomonan to be arraigned on murder, assault charges

Pomonan Roosevelt Williams, 25, Friday was ordered into Pomona Superior Court on Oct. 28 for arraignment on murder and felonious assault charges related to the accidental slaying by police of a 7-year-old boy during Williams' arrest on June 10.

Williams, wounded himself by some of the bullets fired during his arrest outside 799 La Verne Ave. that night, lay stretched out on a hospital gurney when Pomona Municipal Court Judte Thomas F. Nuss bound him over for trial.

Williams faces a second preliminary hearing Monday on an unrelated robbery charge. He remained under treatment at the County-USC Medical Center's jail ward.

The victim in the incident was Toby James Reed, who was struck by a police bullet fired at Williams. The child was a passenger in a car passing the scene of the shooting incident.

Police had been sent to the neighborhood of 756 Toluca Ave. to investigate the complaint that a man in a house was firing a pistol.

Officers said Williams ran from the house, firing a pistol.

They testified that during a chase through the neighborhood, he turned and pointed the weapon at them and both fired.

In binding Williams over for trial, Judge Nuss rejected a defense motion by court-appointed attorney Holly Graham that the murder charge against Williams be dismissed.

The incident was investigated by the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department because of involvement of Pomona police.

Letter-writers at church battle pornography

People using Church of All Faiths stationery have been conducting a letter-writing campaign against pornography.

At least 85 letters were received at Pomona City Hall in the Friday morning mail, addressed to the attention of Mayor Charles Bader. All opposed pornography.

All the letters were signed.

One such letter stated, "It is a shame that some people go for porno movies and books. I for one am against all of this. Please vote against this."

Another suggested that all pornography be banned in "the fair city of Pomona."

Mayor Charles Bader, who reported he has been giving each letter his individual attention, said Friday that "the City Council and I totally agree with the desires of many citizens to reduce or eliminate the number of massages parlors and dirty book stores in the city."

"We've been pursuing a program to eliminate these establishments for several years with some success," he continued.

"It appears," he said, "that the Church of All Faiths was organized to conduct bingo games. I support the efforts of those who would limit pornography in Pomona, but I would not use their efforts as a means to support seven-day bingo."

Officials of the Church of All Faiths, 3240 N. Garey Ave., Pomona, have been protesting the adoption of an ordinance limiting the playing of bingo by a nonprofit organization to one night a week.

The ordinance goes into effect in about a month.

Barbara Greenwood Arroyo Bungalow marks first year at Casa Primera

The Barbara Greenwood Arroyo Kindergarten Bungalow recently celebrated its first anniversary at its new location on the Casa Primera property, McKinley and Park avenues.

The bungalow, the oldest remaining structure in the Pomona school district, was moved from its former site at the Arroyo Elementary one year ago. Volunteers have already made considerable improvements and modifications to the structure.

Officials estimate $18,000 has been spent to move, roof, shingle and paint the building. June Hyman is chairman of a program to save the 70-year-old structure.

Students from the Baldy View Regional Occupational Program (ROP) are doing interior modifications, painting, wiring and plumbing for vocational training.

Plans call for the area to be landscaped with $1,900 obtained from the city of Pomona, with another $600 going to supply new windows.

Fencing of the building is expected to begin month as a donation from the Pomona Jaycees.

The Los Angeles County Museum of Natural History has designated the building to receive the status of a historical landmark in the Historical Register.

Still seeking contributions, the committee needs $3,500 for plumbing and hookups and $1,700 for electrical rewiring and fixtures.

Persons wanting to make "birthday" contributions may send their donations to June Hymen, care of the Committee for the Restoration of the Barbara Greenwood Kindergarten Bungalow, 264 Ford Ave., Pomona, 91768.

Supervisors oppose joining Social Security

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

San Bernardino County supervisors voted unanimously this week to oppose federal legislation aimed at forcing county, state and local governments to join the nation's Social Security system.

A bill pending before Congress, introduced by Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., includes provisions to require all state and local governments to join the Social Security system to bolster its bleak economic picture.

County employees voted in 1972 to leave the federal Social Security system and start their own retirement program. The county has not contributed to Social Security since 1976.

Supervisors indicated they opposed rejoining the federal system due to fears it wasn't financially stable.

In a letter being sent to area legislators, Supervisor Robert Townsend, board chairman, urges opposition to any law attempting to force local governments into Social Security. He said it would cost county taxpayers $6 million per year to help support the system.

He also noted that county employees would probably be opposed to making Social Security contributions.

Supervisor James Mayfield of Apple Valley said, "I believe the intent of Congress is to bail out a system that hasn't been amortized too well."

Supervisor Dennis Hansberger of Yucaipa said, "I wouldn't mind personally getting back into the Social Security System if it was run acturarily sound."

Officials estimate that if the federal legislation is successful, county taxpayers will be faced with a 25 cent per $100 assessed valuation increase on their property tax bills.

County employees are presently covered for retirement benefits under a private joint employee-employer contribution plan.

Pomona council will allow sign

The Pomona City Council has overruled Planning Commission denials of a sign plan for a music store and a variance to reduce off-street parking, but supported three other appeals.

Bill Moore, representing Music Plus which will open a business at 1805 Indian Hill Blvd., informed the City Council the Planning Commission had rejected a request for a 17-foot-high sign and had placed a 10-foot limit on it.

Although Planning Director Sanford Sorensen explained the 10-foot height limit for monument signs was commission policy, Mayor Charles Bader noted the Gemco store sign, a free-standing sign nearby, is 75 feet high. The council then ruled in favor of Music Plus.

The council overruled a commission denial of a variance request by Victor Romo, who asked the required off-street parking be reduced to permit expansion of his restaurant at 975-977 S. Garey Ave.

The commission had ruled there were no exceptional or extraordinary circumstances involved with the property.

By a 3-2 vote, the council upheld a commission denial of a request by C. Allen Braswell for a conditional use permit to develop a day care nursery at 751 Weber St.

The proposed dome structure which Braswell said he would build "is totally out of character with the neighborhood," the commission contended.

Councilman G. Stanton Selby said the project would impact the neighborhood.

Fifteen longtime residents petitioned the city not to allow construction of a 10-dwelling complex of four duplexes and two single dwellings at 1208 W. 11th St.

The commission had said the development would create an adverse impact on an already overcrowded school area, and there is an overabundance of apartment units in the city.

The City Council agreed, 5-0, and upheld the commission denial.

The council also upheld the Planning Commission's denial of a $2.4 million 160-unit apartment complex at 1050-94 E. Ninth St.

The commission had said a revised plot plan did not reflect any changes in the proposed density of 33.6 units an acre. The zoning on the property allows up to 43 units an acre, but the city general plan calls for only 15 units an acre.

Sophisticated network

Roadside phones: Lifeline in an emergency

By TONY AULT
PB Staff Writer

It's a cold, rainy night on a lonely stretch of freeway when a shaken motorist picks up an emergency call box phone and reports a serious traffic accident just ahead on the roadway.

The moment the phone is lifted from the receiver, millions of dollars worth of sophisticated equipment clicks into operation inside a small building in Los Angeles. This serves to insure the caller that help is only minutes away.

What seems like hours may only be seconds until the calm, but firm, operator answers, "Highway Patrol. What is your call box number?"

Once the number is given — and often before the caller can blurt out the nature of the emergency — a picture appears on a television screen before the operator which gives the call box location, the nearest cross-street, and telephone numbers of the nearest fire station, police department, tow service, ambulance company, road maintenance shop, and highway patrol office.

When the operator learns the nature of the problem — such as a traffic accident involving injuries — this information is transferred to another television viewer manned by a dispatcher with direct communications with patrol officers in the area.

Once a patrol officer has been dispatched to the location, other emergency services are notified by telephone. Usually, within a matter of a few minutes, all necessary emergency equipment is at the scene.

Officials report 3,000 emergency freeway call boxes have been installed along major freeways in the Los Angeles area. All are connected directly to the California Highway Patrol's communications center, 437 N. Vermont Ave., Los Angeles.

The center is staffed by trained personnel who monitor and dispatch for the patrol's 10 area stations, including the Ontario office which serves the valley.

The dispatcher assigned for the valley also serves the Baldwin Park area. Both areas have an average of 30 patrol cars on duty. But the number may increase during weekends, holidays and in severe weather.

In addition, the center has computer hookups with state and federal investigation agencies and the Department of Motor Vehicles.

These agencies assist officers to quickly identify drivers, vehicles and other motorized equipment being cited. Within moments, an officer may receive information about a stopped driver, his traffic and criminal records, and if the vehicle is stolen.

Most often, this information is relayed through the communications system even before the officer pulls over the suspected offender.

Jerry Henness, the center's day watch commander, said a relatively new computer system called the CRT has increased the center's efficiency in dispatching emergency services and field information.

He believes the system will become even more efficient once it has a direct hook-up with call box telephones so it becomes activated once the receivers are lifted from the hooks.

Officials are also planning to install lights on the freeway call boxes to make them more visible.

Should the communications center be destroyed or put out of service, each of the area stations can operate with their own communications equipment and dispatchers, he added.

Another service offered by the center is to assist families of accident victims or the drivers locate their vehicles after they are towed from an accident scene.

Persons may also obtain weather information by calling the center at (213) 736-3001.

CHP DISPATCH CENTER

Hundreds of California Highway Patrol cars in the Los Angeles area, including Ontario, are dispatched to the scene of accidents and other emergencies through these consoles at the main California Highway Patrol Communications Center on Vermont Street in Los Angeles.

Better understanding

Chino police, community find new program helpful

By TONY AULT
PB Staff Writer

For the past 10 months, a group of Chino residents and Chino police have worked together to better understand each others beliefs, attitudes, problems and professions as they relate to the community.

And because of the program, members of the Chino Police Community Relations Committee (CPCRC) have developed a greater awareness of the community's needs, established new community programs, and improved on proven citizen-police programs.

Under the leadership of Dan Bruno, a Chino businessman, the CPCRC coordinates activities of the Community Against Thieves — Catch a Thief (CAT) program, the Rumor Control Center, the Robbery Program, Communications Program for Senior Citizens, Neighborhood Watch, and the CB Radio Program.

In addition, its members have pledged citizens assistance during any major emergencies or disasters.

Police Capt. Tony Linza serves as liasion officer between the committee and police force. Pennie Parrott is committee vice chairman and Riva Salter is the secretary.

The CPCRC developed about 10 months ago when Police Chief Jerry Doyle — following a series of serious incidents in the city — felt the need of police to reach into the community and the need of citizens to reach into the police department, he noted.

Doyle asked Bruno to invite residents from various city sectors to assist the police force in its crime prevention efforts and also relate to officers what most concerned the citizens.

The committee was formed by representatives from schools, civic, social and government groups, business people and laborers. An effort was then made to bring the members and police together.

Committee members accompanied officers during their shift briefings, rode with them in police cars, had lunch together and spent off-duty time with them.

The result was a better understanding between citizens and officers. Civilians became more open with officers, and officers were more open with the citizens. This allowed constructive criticisms to enter the relationship, said Linza.

Meanwhile, committee members worked to improve the CAT program and trained to present the program to community groups.

Members spent nearly 30 hours of classroom time learning police identification procedures, how to use marking pencils, how to remember descriptions, and what to do should they find themselves to be victims of crimes.

The committee members printed signs and posters that proclaimed, "Use a Gun — Go to Jail." These were placed in many stores and business offices in the city as part of the Robbery Program.

Members assisted other residents to establish Neighborhood Watch programs. They assisted block captains to learn how to identify, recognize and relay information to police about suspected burglars or other criminals in their neighborhoods.

The program has promoted a plan where the skills of retired senior citizens are used to help police in various programs. They are assisting police in filing and recording various information and sending mailers and information to other citizens.

The committee is now working to organize citizen band radio operators to assist police by reporting suspected crimes and emergencies.

Most police cars are equipped with citizens' band radios, thus allowing police to monitor channel 9 for emergency calls.

And the Chino Rotary Club plans to purchase a base radio for the police station that will allow even greater emergency monitoring within the city.

Committee members recently assisted the U. S. Forest Service transport supplies and provide transportation for firefighters congregating at Camp Prado to fight a series of major forest fires in the state.

The committee has made "great gains" with senior citizens and also Mexican nationals who live in the U. S. illegally to call police in the event of crimes, said Bruno.

"They have learned they should not fear the police as they do, or once did in old Mexico," he added.

Linza praised the committee for providing a better relationship between residents of predominately Latin sectors of Chino and police.

Residents wanting more information about the committee or its activities may contact the Chino police station or write to Dan Bruno chairman, Chino Police Community Relations Committee, P.O. Box 548, Chino, Calif.

Major crimes in Pomona down 5.4% during year

Major crimes in Pomona are down 5.4 percent so far this year, reports Police Chief Richard A. Slaght.

He said 703 offenses in the major crimes category were reported through last July, compared to 841 such crimes for the same period last year. Major crimes consist of murders, rapes, robberies, aggravated assaults, burglaries, grand thefts, and auto thefts.

The largest increases were reported in homicides, up 41.7 percent over 1976, and forcible rapes, up 75 percent.

Aggravated assaults showed an 18.4 percent increase, auto thefts rose 10.1 percent, and burglaries were up 4.2 percent.

The largest decrease was in grand thefts, down by 21 percent, followed by robberies, down 14.1 percent.

Slaght's statistics showed there have been 17 murders this year through July, compared to 12 the same period last year.

Other crime categories include: forcible rapes, 49 so far this year compared to 28 last year; robberies, 367 to 427 last year; aggravated assaults, 457 to 386; burglaries, 2,275 to 2,187; grand thefts, 1,816 to 2,307; and auto thefts, 558 to 507.

Despite the fact the overall crime rate has fallen so far this year, crimes against persons (murders, robberies, rapes and assaults) were up 4.32 percent while crimes against property (burglaries, grand thefts and auto thefts) were down 4.4 percent.

Hearings are scheduled for Edison rate increase

Public hearings will begin in December, and a pre-hearing conference will be held Monday on the application of Southern California Edison Co. for a $316 million annual rate increase, said the California Public Utilities Commission.

Edison's application, filed Oct. 7, requests a 14.5 percent increase to become effective in 1979.

Bills for a typical residential usage of 500 kilowatthours a month would go up from $22.39 at present to $27.62. The PUC has scheduled seven days in December throughout Edison's service area to receive testimony and statements from the utility's customers. They are:

Los Angeles, Tuesday, Dec. 6, 9:30 a.m. in the commission's courtroom, State Office Building, 107 S. Broadway, and San Bernardino, Tuesday, Dec. 20, at 10 a.m. in the San Bernardino Convention Center, 303 N. E St.

Dates for public hearings on the technical aspects of the case will be discussed at the pre-hearing conference beginning at 10 a.m. Monday at the Los Angeles courtroom.

Other preliminaries to be discussed are the identification and positions of the various entities which will participate in the technical phases of the hearings and determination of what specific areas will be at issue, and identification of future witnesses and the scope of their testimony.

La Verne Heights school carnival set next week

The La Verne Heights annual school carnival will be held Oct. 22 from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. on the school grounds.

The attractions this year will be 14 game booths, a haunted house, a boutique area and food.

The food will include hot dogs, hamburgers, tortilla chips, desserts, drinks, and cotton candy. The boutique will be in the cafeteria. Parents may do some Christmas shopping while their children play. State law hampers probe of fatality

By BOB SWETNAM JR.
PB Staff Writer

Sexual assault and subsequent death of a mental patient at a San Bernardino County mental ward recently has touched off a controversy over a state law that prohibits police from investigating medical records of crime suspects or victims.

Lena Henderson, 54, of Victorville died Sunday after being sexually attacked by another patient at Ward B of the County Mental Health Unit in San Bernardino, said investigators.

Police investigation of the incident, however, was hampered by a law that prohibits hospital employees from answering any questions concerning the mental state or medical history of any patient, whether suspect or victim in a crime.

Three hospital employees were witnesses to the attack, which was described by a deputy district attorney as "horrendous."

They refused — under order by hospital administrators — to answer any questions concerning the mental state of the attacker or why he was at the hospital, however.

Arrested at the scene Sunday for investigation of murder was Robert Douglas Hays, 54, of Fontana. Hays was apparently taken to the mental hospital the day of the attack by a Fontana sheriff deputy who saw him wandering the streets acting strangely, said a spokesman.

A chief trial deputy, Donald Feld, said Wednesday that murder charges will be filed against Hays, but that investigators' efforts at piecing together the case are still being hampered by state law and county officials.

Police originally learned of the case from the coroner's office. Hospital administrators never did call police.

"When you have a crazy guy who kills somebody, we'd like to know something about why he was there, why he might have done it," said Feld.

"We don't have any medical records of the victim because she was a patient. Whenever we get to a question relative to the state of mind of the suspect, they (the witnesses) won't talk.

"I don't blame the medical center officials. They are doing what the state law tells them to do."

The lawyer said the state law, Section 5328.4 of the Welfare and Institutions Code, had seriously impeded the police investigation into the matter.

The county coroner's office was reported having trouble getting any medical history on the victim, which made their autopsy report difficult, said Feld.

Coroner Bob Hill confirmed that officials had denied pathologists access to medical records, but said after further talks the coroner's office was able to get the information it needed to complete the autopsy.

Cause of death was listed as a homicide. Mrs. Henderson was reported to have died of a heart attack, which resulted from trauma of a sexual assault.

Section 5328.4 of the Welfare and Institutions Code, instituted in 1970, makes it a misdemeanor offense for hospital employees to reveal any information concerning medical and mental states of patients.

The law does provide for law enforcement access to information about crimes committed by or against patients, but limits such access to "information directly relating to the factual circumstances of the commission of the enumerated offenses and shall not include any information relating to the mental state of the patient or the circumstances of his voluntary or involuntary admission, confinement or treatment."

Andrew G. Robertson, director of the county department of mental health, said officials are allowed to cooperate with police investigations "to a certain degree," but they were required to protect a patient's right to confidentiality.

"We have a duty to protect a patient from undue publicity," he said.

Staff on duty at the hospital Sunday acted under standard hospital procedures, the mental health administrator said.

"The officials on duty at the time followed specific instructions."

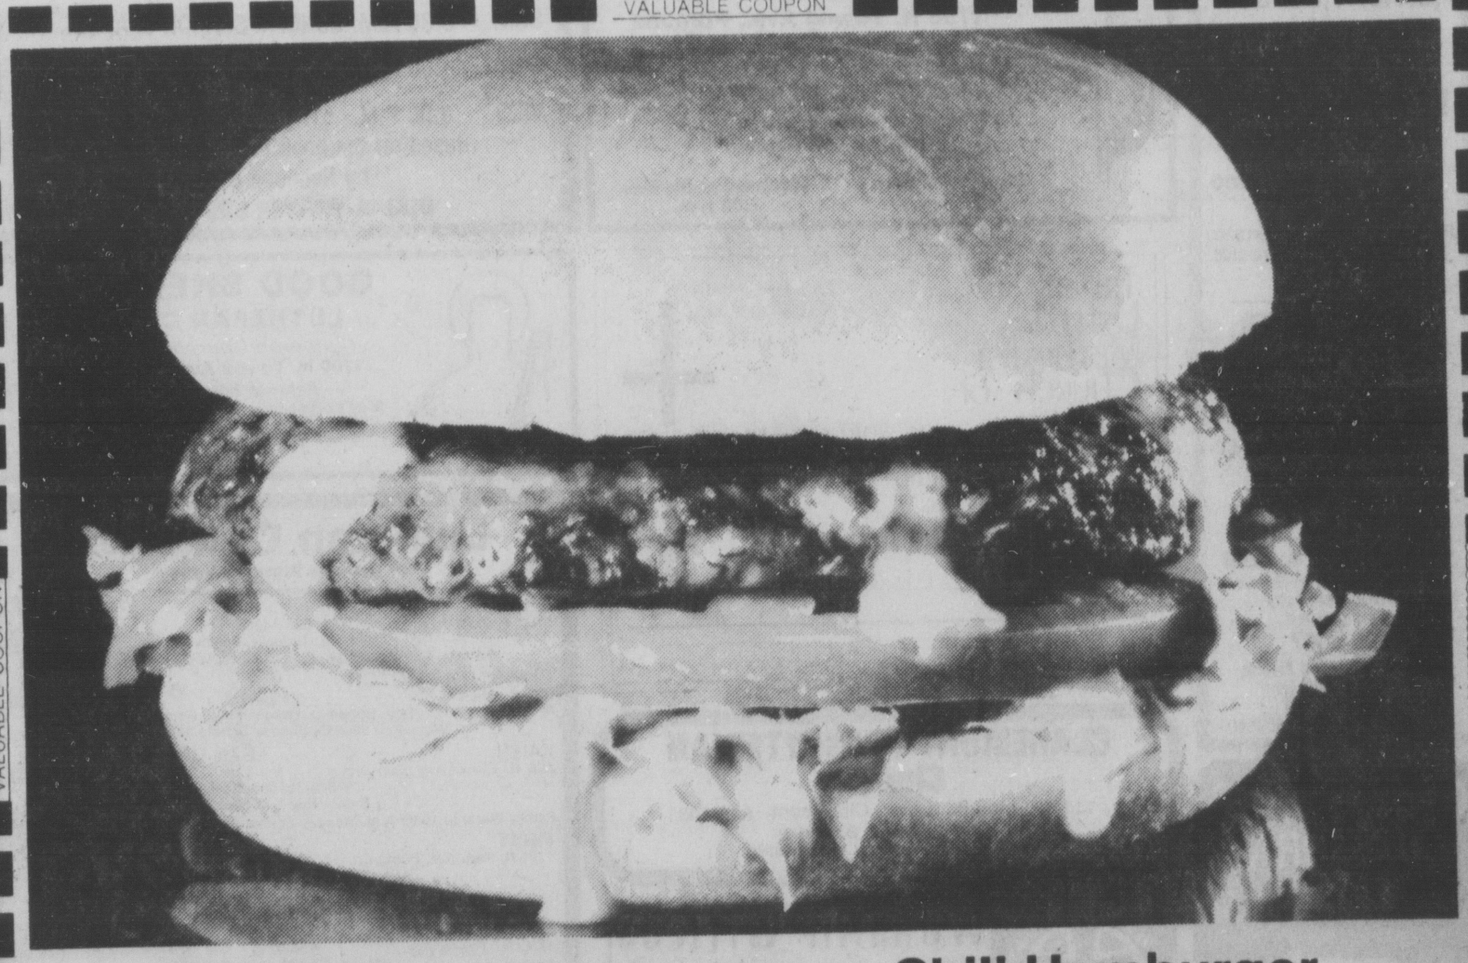

Asked why doctors had never called police after the woman died, Robertson said, "We're not experts in crime. We called the coroner. He is the one to determine if a crime has been committed.

Robertson said the hospital had cooperated with police in every way they could under the law.

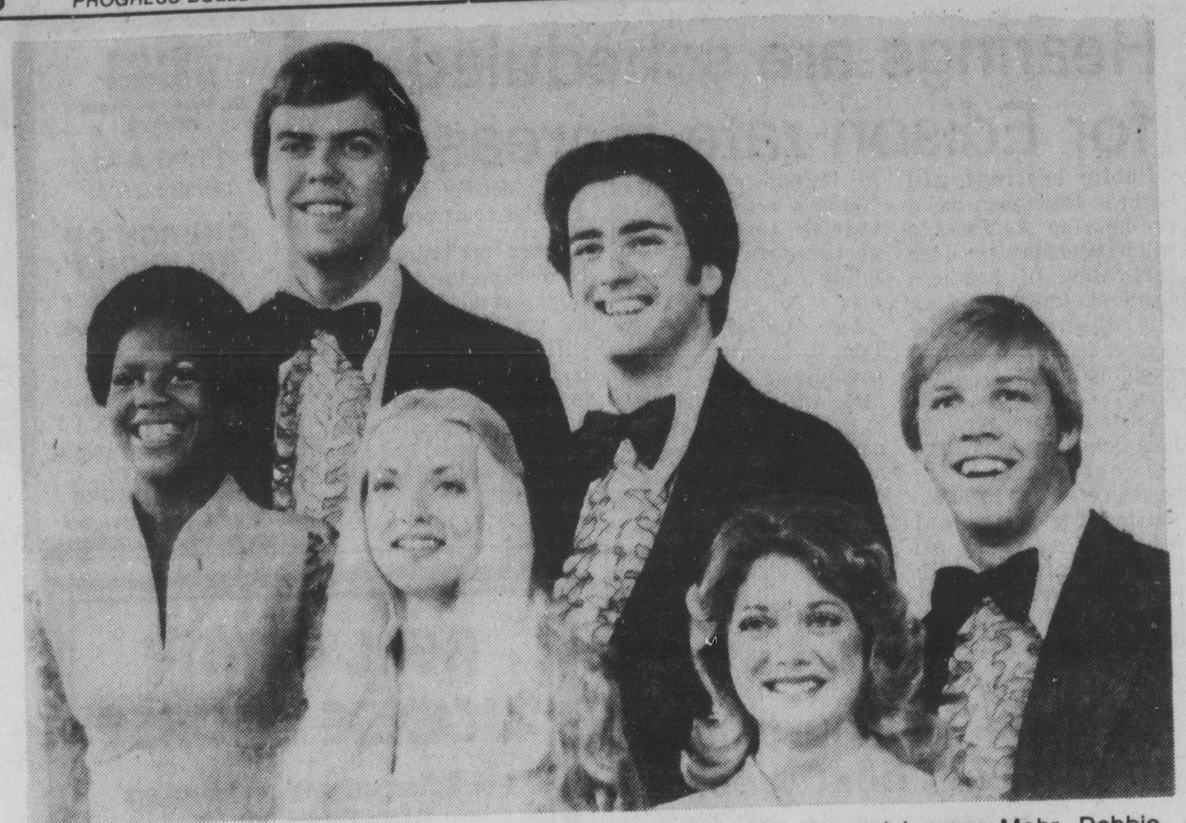

He said the mental health department would not provide any records concerning the mental health or medical history of either the suspect or victim unless a court of law orders them to do so.

MUSICAL GROUP — The Spurrlows, a musical group from an 80-voice traveling choir, will perform Sunday at 5:45 p.m. at the First Assembly of God Church in Pomona. Group members are Jon and Luanne Mohr, Debbie Hill, Bob Pickett, Larry Howison, Colleen Blanchard and Rick Everitt, a trumpet soloist.

Church's surplus allocated

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — After meeting its expenses for the last year, St. Chrisopher's Church, a middle-income Roman Catholic parish of about 900 families, found that it had a surplus of $40,000 in the bank.

"What should we do with it?" the Rev. James T. Smith, the pastor, phrased the question the parish council raised. "Should we keep it in the bank when there is so much need around the world?"

They decided to spend half of it for the poor overseas. After getting advice from the head of Catholic Relief Services, Bishop Edwin B. Broderick, $20,000 from the parish will go to provide some 5,000 poor farmers in rural Ecuador with pure drinking water in their villages, and to help set up a marketing cooperative in the famine-gripped Bawku district of Ghana.

CHICAGO (AP) — Pollster George Gallup Jr. says American religious leaders are alarmingly ill-informed about changing religious attitudes and have "only a vague notion" of people's actual religious concerns.

"We know more about what breakfast foods people like and why than we do about the spritual health of the American people," he said in the October issue of the U.S. Catholic, published by the Claretian Fathers. He said his new religion research center hoped to provide data that would give religious leaders a "realistic look" at current religious factors in society.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The board of directors of the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association has voted unanimously to begin making public its annual, audited financial reports, beginning at the end of this year.

It will cover affairs of the BGEA and its affiliated organizations. The step was taken at Graham's recommendation.

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) — The Baptist World Alliance, representing 29 million Baptists in this country and abroad, has set Oct. 23 as a "Day of Prayer for Peace" in response to requests from church people in many nations.

It is to be an annual observance, on the Sunday preceding the anniversary of the founding of the United Nations.

Bible translation program slated

Wycliffe Associates will present "An Evening With Wycliffe," a special Bible translation program and fellowship dinner at Griswold's in Claremont Monday at 7 p.m.

The purpose is to encourage interest in and support for Wycliffe Bible Translators. Wycliffe, an interdenominational mission of over 3,500 workers, specializes in Bible translation for people who live in remote areas, who still speak unwritten languages, and for whom the Bible is an unknown book.

Wycliffe teams are currently working in over 600 languages in 32 countries. Their goal is to translate the New Testament into the native tongues. Translators live among primitive peoples, learn their languages, develop alphabets, and teach reading and writing. Upgrading health and agriculture and teaching simple industries are also part of their outreach.

The Claremont program will feature a missionary who will share his experience on the field and a new multimedia, "Feed My Sheep," which explains how Christians are helping to complete the great Bible translation task.

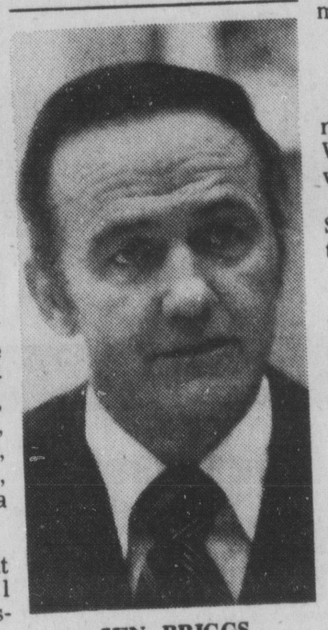

For reservations, persons may call Mr. and Mrs. Tim Painter at 985-8639.

Baptists will hear Sen. Briggs

Sen. John V. Briggs of Fullerton will speak at Central Baptist Church, Pomona, Sunday at 9:30 a.m. during "Save Our Children Day."

Mr. Briggs, a Republican, was elected to the state Senate in 1976 after serving 10 years in the Assembly. He currently represents the 35th Senate District which encompasses the cities of Anaheim, Brea, Buena Park, Fullerton, La Habra, Orange, Placentia, Tustin, Villa Park and Yorba Linda.

He is a leader in the fight to keep homosexual teachers out of classrooms.

SEN. BRIGGS

Church of Brethren

"Faith-Song of Britain and Eire" is the theme for the fall folk worship Sunday at 10:30 a.m. at the La Verne Church of the Brethren.

Songs and hymns of Britain and Ireland, which were used in church services attended by minister Leland Wilson and his wife, Patricia, on their two-month visit to the British Isles, will be featured.

Also scheduled are readings from works by C.S. Lewis, William Barclay, J.B. Phillips and Leslie Weatherhead.

Sanctuary choir, an instrumental ensemble and soloists taking part in the service are under the direction of Steve Engle, church music director.

At 7 p.m. in the fellowship hall, the church council will convene its fall session. Agenda items include the 1978 budget presentation, elections of church officers, board and commission members and a final vote for several constitutional amendments.

Montclair Unitarian Society

Guest minister Rev. Jim Dace will speak on "The Perversions of Personal Growth" Sunday at the 10:30 a.m. service of the Unitarian Society of Pomona Valley, Montclair.

The sermon will deal with the personal growth movement and its preoccupation with self, along with the moral and spiritual bankruptcy of living only in the "here and now."

Mr. Dace is minister of the Ventura Unitarian Church and is exchanging pulpits with Rev. Ernest Howard, minister of the local church, this Sunday.

Claremont Calvary Chapel

Pastor Marco Alvarez said the Calvary Chapel of Claremont will show the 10-episode film series "How Should We Then Live?" at 6:30 p.m. each Sunday starting this week.

This series was written by and features Dr. Francis Schaeffer whom Time magazine called "a missionary to the intellectuals."

In the series, Dr. Schaeffer poses these questions:

Why isn't it safe to walk our streets at night? Why is there more violence on one hand and an ever increasing authoritarianism on the other? What is happening to our accepted human freedoms? Should we throw up our hand and give in? If not, — how should we then live?

Chino First Baptist

Ken Merrick, president of the men's Fishers of Men Fellowship at Chino First Baptist Church, said the fellowship has planned a program for all the men members and friends of the church tonight, beginning at 6:30 with a watermelon feed.

Mike Ensch, district representative of the M-2 Sponsors in Chino will speak on a program that matches one man with a prisoner to give the inmate a friendly contact on the outside of prison walls.

In addition to the M-2 Sponsor presentation, the program will include a showing of slides of a recent conference which was attended by the men of the church. Paul Stouff, one of the newer members, will give a personal testimony during the evening.

Pomona Unitarian Society

Joe Bassi, a lay member of the Unitarian Society of Pomona Valley will speak on the U.N. at 10:30 a.m. Sunday at the Church.

Though the U.N. has done much good in many fields, Mr. Bassi will emphasize the changing world which makes it necessary for the U.N. to take a greater part in our lives.

Subjects explored will include: who will control the huge resources of the oceans; who owns the clouds? Who has the right to modify the weather? Can the Russians be permitted to reverse the flow of three large Siberian rivers? What about population control? What about stocking of grains? What about arms sales? Can 11 percent of the worlds population (U.S. and USSR) be allowed to dominate arms policy and the nuclear race?

Higher minimum wage: justice or mere folly?

WASHINGTON (AP) — It started at a quarter an hour 40 years ago, and now the minimum wage is about to go to $2.65, with economists and politicians still arguing among themselves over its real impact on the job market.

The question that hasn't been answered yet is whether a higher minimum wage is justice or folly; a boon to the working poor or a menace to their jobs.

There is no shortage of studies, dissertations and analyses of that issue. They abound in the fine print of the congressional debate, on both sides.

Given the facts of life at the supermarket, the current minimum wage of $2.30 an hour doesn't add up to much of a living for anybody who makes it and no more. It adds up to $4,784 a year.

Even at the increased rate, the minimum will be lower than the government's poverty line for an urban family of four. The minimum wage earner would get $5,512. In 1978, the poverty level is expected to be about $6,200.

That would seem to make it all very simple: boost the rate and help the low-paid, unskilled worker. But there's more to it, for as the cost of unskilled labor goes up, so does the prospect that employers will decide to make do with fewer workers.

Economist Edward M. Gramlich assessed that risk in a paper published by the Brookings Institution:

"As the minimum wage is increased beyond its historical range of 40 to 50 per cent of the median wage, more and more workers confront the grab-bag combination of a higher wage but a reduced probability of having a job."

The younger the worker, the worse it gets. Unemployment in September stood at 6.9 per cent of the labor force — but at 18.1 per cent for teen-agers, and at more than twice that for black teen-agers.

For all their differences on the broader question of minimum wage effects, the economists generally agree that it doesn't help the youthful jobseeker. He's more likely to be unable to find a job, or to lose one, than to get the higher hourly wage.

The liberal Republican Ripon Society likens it to attempts at healing by bloodletting.

"Political Washington is about to administer to young Americans a remedy just as pernicious as medieval bloodletting," the Ripon analysis said. For while the law can raise the wage, it can't raise worker productivity. And if the price of an hour's work exceeds the product, the job isn't likely to last.

By a single vote, the House rejected an amendment that would have set a special wage rate, below the adult minimum, for workers under the age of 20. The Senate rejected four attempts to write in differentials so as to make it easier for young people to get or hold jobs.

Sponsors of the bill argued that there are better ways to generate work for unemployed youths. They also contended that cut rates for young workers would lead some employers to hire them instead of adults.

"It is unjust and discriminatory to assign a value less than the minimum wage to any person's labor," said Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J.

But it is also unjust for somebody who wants to work to be earning nothing at all, for lack of a job.

But those aren't the only issues involved. The minimum wage is a factor in the welfare equation. If welfare pays better than work, the administration's reform package is not going to accomplish much.

The arguments will continue, on those and other points, even though the law is set for at least three years, and perhaps four. The House and the Senate agree that the rate should go to $2.65 an hour next year. The Senate bill would increase it in stages to $3.40 in 1981. The House version would raise the minimum to $3.05 in 1980. Congressional negotiators are working out the differences now.

For the economists, there's never a last word. If there was, it should be assigned to the First National Bank of Chicago, whose economic researchers report:

"Every few years, the United States goes through the ritual of adjusting minimum wage laws. And just as regularly, the business and labor communities engage in exaggerated discussions about either the dire consequences or marvelous benefits that can be expected ....

"In fact, increases in the minimum wage have typically been quite modest, compared with increases in other wages or prices, and the results have been fairly innocuous."

Illegal aliens shot

SAN DIEGO (AP) - The death of two men identified as illegal alien farmworkers brought to eight the number of such persons murdered in San Diego County this year, authorities said.

Gabriel Baca Esquivel and Leonore Chavez Rodriguez, both 36, of San Jeronimo Municipio de Quiroga in the Mexican state of Michoacan, were found shot with a small caliber weapon in a tomato field Wednesday night, sheriff's deputies reported.

A sheriff's spokesman said an arrest in the case was imminent, but declined to provide further details.

Esquivel was dead when deputies arrived, while Rodriguez died later at Tri-City hospital, the sheriff's department said.

Plant fire burns man

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 20-year-old employe at a North Hollywood plastics fabrication plant has been seriously burned in a plant fire and explosion authorities said.

Enrique Landeros of North Hollywood was reported in serious condition Tuesday at Sherman Oaks Burn Center with burns over 22 per cent of his body, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Landeros had been working near a spray booth when vapors that had collected in the booth exploded, fire officials said.

N.Y. takes away Dodger edge

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — If the Dodgers go on to win the 1977 World Series, they will have to do it back in New York.

The Yankees made sure Los Angeles won't be able to celebrate at home Sunday evening by taking the third game of the series, 5-3, Friday evening before the largest crowd in Dodger Stadium history.

With a 2-1 edge in the best-of-seven series, New York has taken away any home field advantage the Dodgers might have.

Pitching was expected to be the Yankees' big problem in the World Series because of an assortment of injuries.

But righthander Mike Torrez got stronger as the night progressed Friday to send the 55,992 Dodger Stadium customers home frustrated.

The Yanks took a quick 3-0 lead against Dodger starter Tommy John in the first inning but Dusty Baker pulled the Dodgers even in the third with a dramatic three-run homer to earn the usual Dodger Stadium standing ovation.

However, that joy was shortlived as New York tallied single runs in the fourth and fifth and Torrez made them hold up in blanking L.A. through the final six frames as he retired the final 11 batters in order.

The Yankees have received a pair of well-pitched games from Don Gullett and Torrez to take the lead in the Series and their hurling plans appear set for the rest of the action.

Rookie sensation Ron Guidry (16-7 during the regular season) will take the mound this afternoon (1:15 p.m.) in the fourth game against Doug Rau, a somewhat surprise choice of Dodger skipper Tommy Lasorda considering his recent shoulder problems.

Lasorda plans to follow with Don Sutton in Sunday's fifth game at Dodger Stadium and hopefully have Burt Hooton and John ready for possible sixth and seventh games next Tuesday and Wednesday at Yankee Stadium.

Does the thought of returning to Yankee Stadium bother Lasorda?

As expected, no. Nothing ever bothers Lasorda publicly.

"Really, I love playing at Yankee Stadium," he diplomatically answered. "Yankee fans are great. You can discount a few of those kooks who go out on the field. Heck, we would go to Fairbanks, Alaska to play if we had to."

Does Lasorda still have the faith?

"Yes, I do," Lasorda obviously answered. "It's a best-of-seven series, not a best-of-three. The winner still has to win four games. I still have great belief in this team."

The key to Friday's victory for the Yanks was Torrez' pitching.

He was shaky in the early going and looked in real trouble when Baker lit up the stadium with his homer on a 3-2 pitch in the third.

The Dodgers' only threat the rest of the way came in the fifth. With one out, Reggie Smith drew a walk and Torrez fell behind 3-0 on Ron Cey, the next batter.

But Torrez retired Cey on a soft fly after Yankee Manager Billy Martin went to the mound and told him not to aim his pitches but throw hard.

Steve Garvey beat out an infield single to put Dodgers on first and second with two outs but Baker hit into a force play.

Steve Yeager's single in the sixth resulted in the Dodgers' final base runner of the night.

Torrez really showed his stuff in the bottom of the ninth when he got Yeager to ground out weakly and caught pinch-hitter Manny Mota and Davey Lopes on third strikes to end the game.

New York used four hits in the first inning to jump on John.

Mickey Rivers broke out of an 0-for-10 performance in the series by leading off with a double to right. After Willie Randolph grounded out, Thurman Munson also doubled to right.

Reggie Jackson's single scored Munson and Jackson continued to second when Baker couldn't field the ball cleanly. The error cost a run as Lou Piniella's hit up the middle brought Jackson home.

After Baker tied it, the Yankees used hits off fielder's gloves to score the winning runs.

Graig Nettles opened the fourth with a single to center and Bucky Dent followed with an infield hit off on Cey's glove.

After Torrez sacrificed the runners to second and third, Nettles came home on Rivers' ground out.

Jackson drew an one-out walk in the fifth and scored when Piniella beat out a hit off of John's glove and Chris Chambliss singled to right.

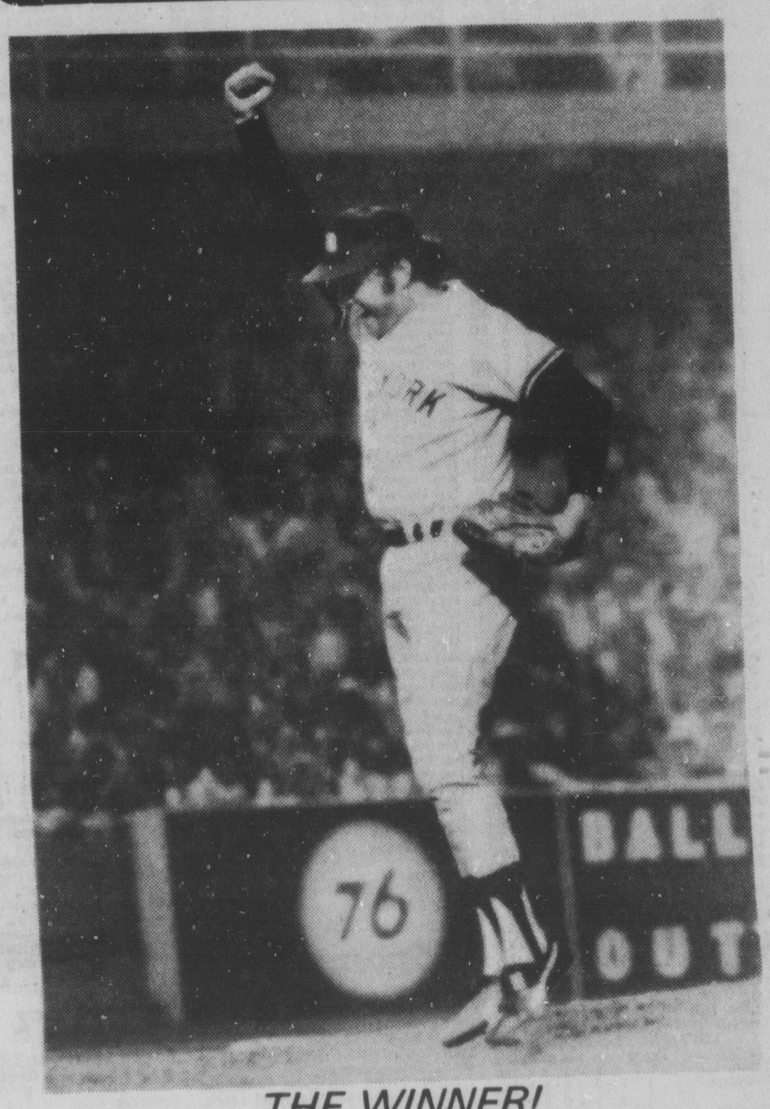

That was all the Yankees needed.

DODGER DATA — The parking gates open at 11 a.m. both today and Sunday. Lillian Carter, mother of the president, will throw out the first ball today with Glen Campbell singing the national anthem.

The previous largest crowd at Dodger Stadium was in the 1974 World Series when 55,989 saw the Oakland A's and Dodgers.

Torrez was only 2-5 against the Dodgers during his National days at St. Louis and Montreal.

Yanks follow A's steps

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — The Yankees may not be the Yankees of old, but they certainly act like the Oakland Athletics of the A's' world championship years.

The Yanks criticize and battle each other. But when the big games are on the line, they get the job done.

"I just think our ball club is very skilled," said manager Billy Martin. "No matter what is said or written, we're together for the game. I think you saw that in the first inning."

In the first inning, Mickey Rivers, who wants to be traded and has said he'd like to return to the Angels, opened the game with a double.

One out later, Thurman Munson, who has said he'd prefer to play for Cleveland, doubled Rivers home.

Reggie Jackson, the center of a season-long controversey, singled Munson home, moved up on Dusty Baker's error and scored on Lou Piniella's single.

The Dodgers and Tommy John never really recovered from that first Yankee inning although they did come back to tie the game on Baker's three-run homer in the third.

But the New Yorkers got the run right back and went in front to stay in the fourth inning.

Once again it was the pesky Rivers. This time he drove in what turned out to be the winning run in with a infield out. Hitless in 10 at-bats in the first two games, he had two doubles, a single and a stolen base Friday night.

"It was just an average night," said Rivers. "I just ain't been hitting, but I'm starting to pick up where I left off in the playoffs (6-for-10 in the last two games)."

Winning pitcher Mike Torrez, the Yanks' only unsigned player, also picked up where he left off in the playoffs (5 1/3 scoreless innings against K.C. Sunday) once he got past Baker's homer.

"I was really struggling the first three or four innings," admitted Torrez. But I finally got a little rhythm and put things together.

"After Baker's homer, I started challenging them with my fastball and slider. I could have kicked myself for throwing Baker a slider. That's my second best pitch. I should have given him my best pitch, the fastball."

Torrez admitted he's a entirely different pitcher than the one the Dodgers saw in the National League with St. Louis and Montreal. Stops with Baltimore and Oakland in the American League polished him.

"I'm a lot better pitcher now," he said. "I have four pitches where I used to only have two, the fastball and slider."

"George Bamberger (Orioles' pitching coach) helped me at Baltimore. I developed a curve and a changeup."

After Baker's home run, Torrez gave up only two singles the rest of the way and retired the last 10 Dodgers in order. He finished with nine strikeouts, four in the last three innings."

"I didn't think Mike could beat us," said Tommy Lasorda. "But he pitched an excellent game."

"It was a super job," added Martin. "He's a very strong pitcher and I think he got stronger in the late innings."

Martin was asked about Yankee general manager Gabe Paul's press conference earlier in the day in which he sided with Martin and said Billy was managing the club not the players.

"I don't know what was said," Martin deadpanned.

"You were given a vote of confidence," said a writer. "I'll probably be fired tomorrow," Martin said wryly.

And that's the way things go with the Yankees. For the moment, all is peace and harmony. Martin said he settled his differences with Jackson earlier in the day.

"All the players want to do is play baseball," said Jackson. "People give credence to things that don't matter to ball players. The difference tonight was that Rivers got on base for us."

As long as the Yanks win, they get along.

Yanks a bunch of spoiled brats

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Commodore Gabe Paul rushed in to try to plug the leaks Friday, but the great Yankee baseball ship appears to be coming apart at the seams.

Manager Billy Martin and the team's $2.9 million outfielder, Reggie Jackson, are back exchanging ethnic, profane insults in the public prints.

Jackson and the league's most valuable player last season, Thurman Munson, get petulant about the location of their World Series tickets and threaten not to don uniforms unless the Los Angeles Dodgers provide better seats for friends.

Munson, in a huff, says he is no longer team captain—a prestigious role given by the Yankees for the first time since Lou Gehrig. He insists he won't play another year with the Yankees unless certain conditions are met. He wants to be traded to Cleveland.

Center fielder Mickey Rivers, a standout in the playoffs, is another malcontent. He tells the Yankees: Trade me to a team on the Paficic Coast. Outfielder Lou Pinella and Roy White are upset over being platooned. Pitcher Mike Torrez is unsigned.

Third baseman Graig Nettles is demanding renegotiation of his contract, with two years to run at $150,000 per year. Mystery surrounds the complete oversight of Ken Holtzman, a $150,000-a-year pitcher under five-year contract unused in Yankee playoffs in 1976 although he has two no-hiters and a 4-1 World Series wins to his credit.

Martin in trouble?

Yankees watchers wouldn't give you a plugged nickel for Martin's chances of survivng as manager. Billy, who has had similar experiences at Minnesota, Detroit and Texas, is headed for the ashcan, they insist.

Paul, team president, called an 11 a.m., PDT, press conference Friday, prior to the third Series game with the Dodgers, in an effort to allay reporters that the Yankees were crumbling from inner turmoil.

Owner George Steinbrenner, roundly criticized for interfering in the affairs of the team he has bankrolled, was reported in transit. He could take sterner action.

Paul referred this just being "another chapter in the tumultuous life of the 1977 Yankees" and called his employes "reckless performers who aren't afraid of consequences."

"We judge out players by what they do on the field," he said. "If we wanted all nice boys we could go to the church steps and pick up a nice collection."

Paul defended Martin in the current clash with Jackson but failed to give his beleaguered manager a vote of confidence.

"I don't believe in votes of confidence—they are a kiss of death," the Yankee president said. "One game and one series will not determine how we act on Martin's contract. The $100,000-a-year pact has two more years to run.

This negative response could be very significant. One New York reporter immediately called his paper to say that Martin definitely is out—probably right after the Series.

Jackson unhappy

If Martin had temporarily saved his job with his deft handling of the playoff series against Kansas City, he may have put it beyond rescue with his injudicious reaction in the lastest squabble with Jackson.

Jackson, who almost came to blows with Martin in June after he was yanked from the outfield, called the manager an unprintable name and blasted him for using a stale Catfish Hunter in the second World Series game in New York, won by the Dodgers 6-1.

"How could the so-and-so pitch him?" Jackson fumed. How do you make a decision like that on a guy who hasn't pitched in more than a month?"

Martin, after arriving in Los Angeles, was besieged at every turn by reporters seeking a response.

Martin's patience finally exploded.

"He's having enough trouble in the outfield without second-guessing the manager Martin snapped. Then he made a reference to Martin that could be found on latrine wallls.

If Martin gets the sack, he can blame it on his lack of restraint and diplomacy. He is a back alley fighter. Proud and emotional, he hits first and thinks later.

His fault lies in not confronting Jackson face-to-face and getting the ugliness settled in private instead of the open. Yet he has refused to do this.

Munson has assumed the role of cry-baby. He is jealous of Jackson's $2.9 million contract. He insists Steinbrenner promised him he would be the highest paid Yankee. The Yankees are the richest and one of the most successful teams in all baseball, yet they act like a bunch of spoiled brats.

Ganesha blanks Red Devils, 12-0

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

A pair of one-yard touchdown runs by Bennie Gooden and Carl Walker gave Ganesha High a lackluster 12-0 victory over Pomona Friday night at Mt. San Antonio College.

The mistake-filled contest extended the Red Devils' losing streak to 14 games.

Offense was nearly non-existent throughout the game but the Giants were able to capitalize on a couple of Devil turnovers in the second half.

After the two teams had struggled through a scoreless first half, Pomona gave the Giants the ball on the Devil 25-yard line on the fourth play of the third period. Giant defensive end Craig Parm sacked Pomona quarterback Darrell Keepers for an 18-yard loss on the play and, when Keepers dropped the ball, Ganesha lineman Randy Taylor fell on it.

The Giants then "drove" 25 yards for a touchdown on 10 plays, the final blow a one-yard run by Gooden. Tight end Phil Kranenburg had set up the score by catching a Ron Hughes pass at the 1. Ruben Raya's PAT kick was off the mark and the score stayed at 6-0 until the final moments.

Pomona receiver John Bullock was injured on a pass play with 2:13 left to play and was taken by ambulance to Queen of the Valley Hospital in Covina. His injuries were described as "not too serious" after early testing at the hospital.

When play resumed, Ganesha defensive back Henry Queruel recovered a Pomona fumble at the Devil 43 and halfback Walker carried four straight times for the TD. He broke for runs of 16 and 21 yards on that series.

Some fighting erupted after that score, prompting the officials to end the contest with 27 seconds left on the clock, before Ganesha could attempt an extra point.

Gooden finished the game with 78 yards on 19 carries and Walker added 69 on 15. Hughes completed five of 12 passes for 61 yards and was intercepted twice by Bullock.

Keepers completed six of 16 aerials for 77 yards but was intercepted four times, twice by Shelton Daniels and once each by William Rodall and Mike Sellers.

Ganesha's defense held Pomona to 57 net yards on the ground — and only six yards in the second half. Reggie Gaskin carried a dozen times for 36 yards and Morris Harris picked up 35 yards on nine tries.

The game's leading receiver was Pomona's Daryl Swanson, who caught three passes for 42 yards.

Ganesha earned 10 first downs and 187 total yards while Pomona had 11 firsts and 134 yards. The game was relatively even except in turnovers — Pomona had six and Ganesha only two. The Giants managed not to lose a fumble for the first time this season.

Ganesha (2-1 in San Antonio League play, 4-1 overall) will visit Montclair Friday and Pomona will travel to Chino.

Kicking game helps Chino

By MARK GRIP
PB Correspondent

Chino High's fine placekicking duo of Tony Gonzales and Tony Zendejas for the second week in a row were a key factor in a Cowboy victory.

Gonzales and Zendejas each kicked second half field goals to enable Chino to down host Upland 13-7 Friday night.

Last week Zendejas provided all of his teams points in a 9-7 win over Ganesha with three field goals.

Gonzales broke a 7-7 tie with 1:35 left in the third quarter by kicking a 27-yard field goal.

The go-ahead score was set up when Chino punted to Upland on fourth down and Cowboy Bobby Rico recovered a fumble on the return at the Upland 19.

Chino threatened to score a touchdown, but on third and goal from the 3-yard line quarterback Dan Reyes was sacked for a 7-yard loss. That set up Gonzales' three-pointer.

Following a fumble recovery by Cowboy Rich Perez in the fourth period, Zendejas booted a 32-yard attempt through the uprights with 7:20 left to play.

Chino's defense did its part in the second half allowing the Highlanders to penetrate no further than its own 40 yard line.

Upland opened the game with upset in mind and took a first quarter lead of 7-0 at the 2:25 mark. Upland's Dick Chapman swept untouched into the end zone from the three with Jon Kotez kicking the extra point.

Chapman in addition to scoring the lone Upland TD rushed for 73 yards on 18 carries in the first half. Chapman finished the game with 80 yards on 24 totes.

Chino rallied to tie the score with 1:24 left in the half on a 58-yard scoring pass from Reyes to Pete Brun. Reyes was decked just after releasing the ball but threw a perfect strike down the sidelines to Brun. Gonzales added the PAT.

The Cowboy victory keeps them atop the San Antonio League standings with Damien. Both teams own 3-0 records and Chino is now 4-1 on the year.

Upland is still winless in three SAL tries and is 1-4 overall.

Rod Perry out for 3 weeks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Rams' cornerback Rod Perry will be out for at least three weeks after he has surgery today for a broken thumb.

Perry, a starter for the National Football League for the past two years, injured his thumb in the season opener four weeks ago.

Pat Thomas will start in place of Perry Sunday when the Rams host the New Orleans Saints. Jackie Wallace, also a defensive back, will be activated to take Perry's place on the roster.

Damien delights in Viking miscues

By PAUL CLICK
PB Correspondent

Turnovers played a key role Friday night in Damien High's fourth victory of the season.

Damien took advantage of four pass interceptions and six fumble recoveries to register a 29-12 victory over Garey High at Cal Poly. Garey was penalized 120 yards in addition to its miscues.

Damien had entered the contest allowing its opponents only seven points a game. The Vikings scored 12 late in the fourth quarter as Damien led 22-0 at that time.

Everything went wrong for the Vikings as Damien recorded a safety in the Garey end zone and the Vikings' punter was caught throwing a pass with illegal receivers down field. The pass from center had sailed over his head and as he attempted a pass from the end zone the Damien defense almost sacked him for a safety.

Fullback Elijah Turner, who racked up 82 yards on 11 carries, as he lost 35 yards due to a penalty midway through the third quarter.

Garey was able to move the ball against Damien but their ball handling mistakes killed them.

Damien did not escape the referee's whistle as they lost a 64-yard touchdown pass play from Dan Marconi to Mike Escalante on the first play of the second half.

In the yardage battle, Damien won by 34 yards with 260 net yards to Garey's 226.

Marconi was 8 for 21 on the evening for 116 yards. Doug Paul was the Spartans' top rusher with 58 yards.

Damien's first touchdown was set up on a fumble recovery by Rich Bustos. The Spartans went out in front of Garey 14-0 when Bill Rice recovered a Viking fumble at the Garey 34-yard line.

Garey picked up yardage with screen passes to their backs but the fumble or interception play turned up to bite them just at the wrong time. Damien thwarted the two Garey quarterback's on the long pass patterns but Turner and Morris Cole were freed by the screen for some decent gains.

Mike Raffee picked off two of the Vikings' passes and almost had a third as the ball ricocheted off his hands.

Doug Paul's 14 yard run put the game away for Damien (29-7) but Garey's Carey Shephard hit David Forte with a 43-yard TD pass out of their shotgun formation.

Center Larry Reyes scored Garey's first TD as he picked up Turners fumble on the 15-yard line and scampered into the end zone. Turner had raced 29 yards through the Damien defenders before coughing up the ball.

Angels sign new director

ANAHEIM (AP) —The California Angels Friday named Ray Poitevint as director of scouting and player development.

The Angels also announced that coach Del Crandall won't return to the club next year.

Poitevint, 47, who has been western supervisor of the Major League Scouting Bureau, will start his new duties Monday and will be responsible for all minor league and scouting development, Angels' General Manager Harry Dalton said.

"We feel Ray has demonstrated outstanding ability in the areas of scouting and administrative expertise," said Dalton.

Poitevint, who has been in charge of 21 fulltime scouts for the Major League Scouting Bureau during the past 14 months, will succeed Minor League Director Tom Sommers and Scouting Director Walter Shannon.

Dalton said that Shannon will remain with the Angels as scouting coordinator to handle all activities between field scouts and Poitevint.

Sutton enjoys night games

NEW YORK (AP) — Dodger right-hander Don Sutton, who started the first game of the World Series, says he enjoys pitching at night in October.

"I like it because the hitters can't see the ball as well and I enjoy cool weather," said Sutton. "Actually, I prefer to pitch at 2 a.m."

Knights move into 1st place

Ontario Christian High improved their Olympic League record to a perfect 3-0, when they outclassed Valley Christian High 16-6, Friday night.

The Knights opened a 16-0 lead late in the third quarter and held on for the victory, as their defense stopped a late Crusader scoring drive.

Ontario Christian converted a blocked punt into their first score when Tom Lanting blocked the punt, and came up with the ball at the Crusader 13.

Two plays later, with a third and goal from the six, Knight quarterback Joe DeHoog hit Roger Sybesma in the end-zone for an apparent touchdown. But an ineligible receiver downfield nullified the score, forcing the Knights to settle for a 37-yard field goal by Pete Van Ginkle.

The Knights got the ball back two minutes later and began their second scoring drive. DeHoog squirted around Crusader defenders for a 40-yard TD, and put the Knights on top 10-0 in the second quarter.

Valley Christian started their first drive of the evening when they marched down to the Knight 12 yard line. But Adrian Kroes stopped the drive, when he picked off a Crusader pass in the end zone to end the half.

In the second half, Ontario Christian increased their lead, when the Crusaders were caught with a pass interference penalty. This set the ball up on the 11 yard line, and Van Ginkle scrambled into the end zone from six yards out for the final Knight tally.

The Crusaders then went to work, marching the ball 75-yards down to the Knight two yard line. Key passes of 11 and 31 yards from Jerry Roelofsen to Russ Vande Vegt and Dean Dykema respectively, helped the Crusader drive.

The Valley Christian offense then faltered, as they gained only two yards in four downs, and turned the ball over to the Knights.

Valley Christian got the ball back minutes later when they held Ontario from advancing the ball. On the first play from scrimmage, Roelofsen nailed Vande Vegt on a 33-yard pass for the final score. Crusader half-back Mike Smith was held well short of the goal line on the two point conversion attempt.

Smith led both teams in rushing, garnaring 116 yards in 24 attempts, while Van Ginkle led the Knights, getting 42 yards in 12 carries.

Munson wants 'out'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Thurman Munson, catcher and captain of the New York Yankees, said Friday he is "adamant about going home" and has asked to be traded to the Cleveland Indians.

"I'd like to be home next year," said the 30-year-old Munson, who lives in Canton, Ohio, less than an hour from Cleveland.

Munson, the American League's Most Valuable Player in 1976, said he has "mentioned" his desires to Yankees owner George Steinbrenner and club President Gabe Paul.

"It's because of a series of things that has blown on," Munson told The Associated Press just before the third game of the World Series. "Money is one of many things that had something to do with it, but that's all I'm going to say. I want to be home with my family. That's all I'll say right now."

Munson, who this season became the first major leaguer to bat .300 and drive in 100 runs for three years in a row, is known to have been at odds with Steinbrenner over money during the off-season. The catcher apparently feels Steinbrenner promised him he would be the highest paid Yankees player, and broke his word in signing free agent outfielder Reggie Jackson.

Asked if he was ruling out any chance of his wearing a Yankees' uniform next year, Munson would only say, "I can't force a trade, but ...

"It's a shame, because the New York fans have treated me so super. Everything I own I owe to them."

At the start of the 1977 season, Paul (Bear) Bryant of Alabama was the winningest college football coach with 262 victories.

Jags lose Jefferson but win game, 12-7

By RAY NELSON
PB Correspondent

On a night in which Ontario High lost the services of star running back Tommy Jefferson for at least the evening, the Jaguars utilized a stingy defense and capitalized on Alta Loma mistakes to score a 12-7 Hacienda win Friday night.

Jefferson, the leading rusher in the Hacienda League, was sidelined in the early stages of the second quarter by a sprained right ankle after only gaining 15 yards on five carries.

Without him, the Jag offense sputtered, but worked well enough to turn two Brave miscues into first-half touchdowns.

Defensive back Steve Perez, who bothered Alta Loma receivers all night, made one of his two interceptions early in the initial period to give Ontario the ball at its own 48.

After keeping the ball once and handing the ball to Jefferson twice, Jag quarterback Sonny Medina lofted a 21-yard pass to Jon Thomas for a first down at the Alta Loma four.

Two plays later, Sam Alcala burst through the middle from one yard out for a 6-0 Ontario advantage.

Alcala also sparked what proved to be the winning score when he stopped an Alta Loma drive which started on the Brave 47-yard line by recovering a Jeff Holloday fumble at the Ontario 19.

Medina then engineered a 79-yard drive in 12 plays, culminating in a 10-yard dash around left end by Albert Newman for the score.

The drive featured the running of Paul Bernard, who replaced Jefferson, and two big Alta Loma penalties. Bernard picked up 29 of the necessary yards on four carries, 16 of them setting up the Jag score by giving them a first down at the Braves' six.

While the Ontario defense thwarted two Alta Loma drives at the Jags' 10 and 19-yard lines, respectively, in the first half, the Braves penetrated to the Ontario midway through the third stanza.

However, Ontario once again met the challenge by stopping the Braves on four plays at the Jag three.

After knocking on the door so many times, Alta Loma finally got on the scoreboard in the fourth quarter with 9:18 left.

After picking off a Medina pass, the Braves moved from the Ontario 22 to a first down on the nine. Three plays later, they were faced with a fourth-and-goal from the 3-yard line. Stuart Charleston, seemingly stopped at the two, used a second-effort burst

Bonita, S.D. vie tonight

Bonita High's Bearcats and San Dimas' Saints will be seeking their first win of the season and Don Lugo's Conquistadores will look for the second varsity victory in the school's short history in tonight's prep football action.

The Bearcats and Saints, both winless in four tries this year, will battle for the "Smudge Pot" at Mt. San Antonio College and Don Lugo will host San Diego Christian at Chino High. Both games will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Last year the Saints, on their way to the Hacienda League championship and the CIF 2A semi-finals, won the smudge pot for the fourth time in the five-year history of the award.

The two teams, struggling to break into the win column, both need the psychological boost of winning the intradistrict rivalry.

Don Lugo belted an outmanned Lutheran La Verne team last week, 37-6, for the Conquistadores' first win in varsity football. Don Lugo now stands 1-1-1 for the season.

Chaffey can't look ahead

By JIM McCONNELL
PB Staff Writer

Chaffey and Citrus have to guard against an old grid malady in Mission Conference action today: Look-aheaditis.

Both the Panthers and Owls have to be gearing up mentally for their valley showdown in two weeks, but they're in against some rough company today and can ill-afford to be caught dreaming of that next game.

Chaffey will be at San Diego City College today for a 1:30 p.m. contest, while Citrus will entertain San Bernardino Valley at 7:30 p.m.

In a South Coast Conference clash, Mt. San Antonio College will be at Santa Ana, also a 7:30 p.m. start.

Chaffey will carry a perfect 4-0 season mark south for its clash with winless SDCC (0-4). But San Diego won't be any pushover.

The Knights gave the Owls a tough time of it before bowing 21-17 last week and are even tougher to beat at home. Thus the Panthers can't let down their guard against SDCC.

CC coach Mike Merandi plans no major changes in his starting lineup for the game, which means the Panthers will go with a backfield of quarterback Brian Potter and running backs Marcus Jennings and Gary Carr.

Citrus, 1-0 in M.C. action and 2-2 for the year, also could be in for a rugged game tonight. SBVC, 0-1 and 2-2, was beaten soundly by Saddleback last week.

However, the Indians had impressed in their three non-conference outings and should be fired up for Citrus. The Owls have beaten SBVC 64-7 and 48-0 the past two years.

San Bernardino has a potentially dangerous running attack, which includes former Claremont High star Joe Hillstock in the backfield.

Saddleback was able to burn the Indians' pass defense, and Citrus quarterback Ken Eriksen will try to take advantage of that unit again tonight.

Eriksen will be joined in the Owl backfield by Charles Cole and Barry McManus. Cole, a freshman out of Pomona High, leads the Owls in rushing with 241 yards.

MSAC, 0-1 in conference and 2-3 on the year, faces a must-win situation tonight at Santa Ana (0-3-1). The Mounties need a victory to maintain any chance at the South Coast crown.

While MSAC was dropping a heart-breaker to San Diego Mesa in its conference opener last week, Santa Ana was being dumped by Fullerton 42-7.

However, the S.A. defense had been the team's strong point prior to the Fullerton outing and could give MSAC fits tonight unless the Mounties can show some consistency.

Freshman Butch Stocking is expected to get the call at QB for MSAC, with Garey High product Stan Webster and Russ Esmus the probable starters at running back. Webster has been the one consistent offensive threat for MSAC so far in an up-and-down season.

The former Viking has rushed for 425 yards and averaged nearly six yards a tote. He also has amassed 400 yards in return yardage.

MSAC will be without the services of star linebacker Gary Orantes for Santa Ana. Orantes was injured in last week's loss to Mesa and is out for the year.

Terry Bradshaw wants to play

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers have listed quarterback Terry Bradshaw as doubtful for Monday night's National football League game against the Cincinnati Bengals, but Bradshaw has left no doubt he wants to play.

"I didn't come here to sit around," the Steelers' regular signal-caller said. "I came here to win."

Bradshaw broke a bone in his left wrist last week against the Houston Oilers, and the bone is presently wrapped in a flexible plastic cast.

"It just gets in the way a little," he said Thurday after taking a dozen snaps from center to see whether the arm could stand the strain of quarterback duties.

"I've just got to get used to not being able to put both hands on the ball when I cock my arm. I've got to if I want to play."

Bradshaw fumbled only one snap during Thursday's practice, but didn't even try to work with the center Friday because the arm was sore. Instead, he threw passes

Dr. Paul Steele, the Steelers' team physician, says Bradshaw's soreness is due to the location of the snapped bone at the spot where the center places the ball.

Game conditions could produce further damage to the bone, Steele said. But Bradshaw has indicated a willingness to accept the risk.

"If he fell on it, he wouldn't necessarily break it worse," the doctor said. "It would just get sore."

Bradshaw's eagerness to return to the playing field is not simply a matter of enthusiasm. The Steelers' backup quarterback, Mike Kruczek, separated a shoulder in the Houston game and won't play for several weeks.

The team used safety Tony Dungy, who had played quarterback at Minnesota before joining the Steelers as a free agent, to complete the Houston game, which ended as a 27-10 loss.

The Steelers, 2-2, activated Neil Graff this week. Graff, who has started only two games in his pro career, was the team's third-string quarterback last year.

Trojans should win big today

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Trojans are going to have to learn to "grind it out" again, Southern California Coach John Robinson says, and Oregon's Ducks may have the misfortune of being the grist for sixth-ranked USC today.

Oregon comes into the 1:30 p.m. PDT Pacific-8 game in the Coliseum with a 1-4 record, and last week was embarrassed by Washington, 54-0. The Trojans are 4-1 after being knocked out of the nation's No. 1 spot by Alabama. USC is such an overwhelming favorite against the Ducks that no odds are listed for the contest.

"We must improve our offensive execution from here on," Robinson said after USC's 21-20 loss to Alabama, "and that means for a full game. We've got to take the ball and grind it out.

"We had it pretty much our own way running the ball the first four weeks and we were trying too hard to break for long gains against Alabama."

Tailbacks Charles White and Dwight Ford and fullbacks Mosi Tatupu and Lynn Cain may carry the ball more against Oregon, but the throwing of quarterback Rob Hertel to receivers Randy Simmrin and Calvin Sweeney should keep the Duck defense from zeroing in on the run.

Robinson said the Ducks have been unpredictable this season, playing good games — although losing — against Wisconsin, Georgia and Stanford prior to last Saturday.

"They're going to come in here with some vengeance in their hearts because of last Saturday," said Robinson, who played football at Oregon then was an assistant coach there for 12 years.

"I know I'm duty bound to say I expect a tough game," Robinson remarked. "But the way Oregon has played this year, it could be just that."

Ducks Coach Rich Brooks, who moved from an assistant's post at UCLA to Oregon last year, said he expects the Trojans to have some vengeance in their hearts, too.

"When we looked at USC's schedule at the start of the year, we thought we might have been in a good postion, coming between their games against Alabama and Notre Dame," Brooks said. "But not now. The Trojans will be looking to gain national recognition again in the polls."

Robinson said the Ducks are always a threat because of quarterback Jack Henderson, who has thrown for 3,824 yards in his career. This season, the junior signal caller is 57 of 113 for 750 yards and two scores.

"Henderson is a veteran quarterback who's capable of an outstanding game anytime," Robinson said. "If he's hot, Oregon can be a very dangerous team."

USC listed just one injured starter, cornerback Carter Hartwig, as questionable for the contest, but Oregon will be without defensive end Mel Cook and offensive tackle Fred Quillan.

Saints get look at Haden

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pat Haden, who saw his first action of the current National Football League season last Monday night, receives his initial start of the campaign Sunday when the Los Angeles Rams entertain the New Orleans Saints.

A crowd of 50,000 is expected at the Coliseum for the game matching NFC West opponents. Kickoff time is 1:05 p.m., PDT.

The Saints will be trying to beat the Rams for the first time ever at the Coliseum. Overall, Los Angeles has a 13-3 record against New Orleans. The Saints' last win came in 1974 by a score of 20-7.

The Saints bring a 1-3 record into play. The Rams, beaten by the Chicago Bears last Monday night 24-23, are 2-2.

Haden, 24, who took over as the Rams' starting quarterback as a rookie late last year and guided Los Angeles to the playoffs, lost his job during the preseason to Joe Namath.

Namath, who played 12 seasons for the New York Jets before joining Los Angeles after playing out his option, is suffering from knee injuries again. The 34-year-old veteran signalcaller took a beating during the Bears' game.

Namath was knocked out of the contest late in the fourth quarter after completing 16 of 40 passes with four interceptions. Haden connected on three of six passes for 55 yards and a touchdown in the waning moments.

Overall, Namath has 50 completions in 107 attempts for 606 yards and three TDs.

Knox said Tuesday that Namath would start against the Saints if physically able, but Dr. Clarence Shields reported swelling around Namath's left knee later that day.

The Saints lost a 14-0 decision to San Diego last Sunday after rolling past the Bears 42-24 the week before. The New Orleans offense was held scoreless by the Chargers despite 18 first downs. A contributing factor to the shutout was eight sacks of Saints' quarterback Archie Manning.

UCLA must defeat Washington State

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — UCLA and Washington State, football teams which have departed from form this year, meet tonight night in a contest crucial to the Pacific-8 Conference hopes of both.

UCLA, a perennial contender, has played erratically and is 0-1 in conference play after a 32-28 loss to Stanford last week. The usually weak Cougars stunned California 17-10 to even their Pac-8 record at 1-1.

Overall, Washington State is 3-2 and UCLA is 2-3 — the first time since 1971 that the Cougars have had a better season record entering the annual contest.

UCLA Coach Terry Donahue said the Bruins are still Rose Bowl contenders.

"The conference race is far from over. We have a difficult schedule, starting with Washington State," he said.

WSU Coach Warren Powers said some of the Bruins have recovered from injuries quicker than he expected.

Theotis Brown, a 218-pound junior who was the first UCLA sophomore to rush for more than 1,000 yards, returned to action against Stanford for the first time since the team's opener against Houston.

Brown's 92 yards in eight carries against Stanford are an indication of trouble for Bruin opponents, Donahue said.

"We have to keep improving and I feel we are going to get better as the season goes along," he said.

Brown made a 75-yard touchdown run, longest of his career, and freshman Freeman McNeil had a 78-yard run in the same game.

"Speed is their biggest theat," Powers said. "You never feel comfortable with them."

He said his squad's own injury problems were minor, but starting halfback Mike Washington had a pulled muscle and was questionable.

Center Mark Chandless and fullback Dan Doornink will be back after missing the California game.

Powers said the Cougars' passing attack was sound, although quarterback Jack Thompson managed only 84 yards against Cal. Refusing to be intimidated by UCLA's fifth-ranked passing defense, Powers said the declining yardage totals of Thompson, an All-West Coast passer last year, show that WSU can run on opponents, too.

"We can throw if we have to," he said. "We'll probably throw more, but I'm not sure. We'll just do what we have to do."

UCLA quarterback Rick Bashore ranks first in weekly Pac-8 passing.

The Bruins hold a 22-6 edge in the series and a 10-game victory string dating to 1958. Last year UCLA demolished WSU 62-3.

Powers said he didn't give the score much thought because "I wasn't involved in it."

However, WSU offensive guard Larry Finan of Paramount, Calif., said his teammates have the defeat in mind.

"There's no way you can forget something like that, especially when you play before your friends and relatives," he said. "It left some deep scars."

La Verne braces for Cal Lutheran

La Verne College faces its toughest opponent this afternoon when Cal Lutheran comes to Leopard Field (1:30 p.m.).

The Leos have played the Kingsmen every year since Cal Lutheran started playing football. The Leopards have won only once, 46-6, that first year (1962).

Since then La Verne has managed to tie the Kingsmen once, 6-6, in 1971. That was the only blot on Cal Lutheran's record that year as the Kingsmen won the national title.

Cal Lutheran (4-1) has lost only to UC Davis (25-9). The Leopards (2-1) have lost only to Whittier (19-3) while beating Pomona-Pitzer (42-20) and Azusa Pacific (33-3).

"We've never had a whole lot of luck against Cal Lutheran," admitted coach Roland Ortmayer. "But I'm a coach and I like to play football. They play football and I have a lot of tolerance for football and very little tolerance for junk."

Ortmayer says Cal Lutheran's passing game is even stronger than usual.

Quarterback John Kindred has completed 62 of 94 passes for 712 yards and four touchdowns. He has been intercepted five times.

Kindred's favorite receivers are slotback Harry Hedrick and wide receiver Mike Hagen. Hedrick has caught 26 passes for 279 yards and two touchdowns. Hagen has snared 21 for 208 yards and two TDs.

The 6-2, 205-pound Kindred took the Kingsmen on four long drives as the NAIA sixth-ranked team defeated Occidental 21-0 last week.

Kindred himself ran for two touchdowns.

Cal Lutheran ran back three punt returns for apparent touchdowns, but two were called back.

La Verne, meanwhile, has been more impressive each week.

"I'm getting encouraged," said Ortmayer. "I see us playing better in practice. Our offense has improved. I think our defense to date is reminiscent of the best we've had."

Steve Goggans, a 6-4, 225-pound tackle, has helped. Goggans was a pitcher for Ben Hines' baseball team. Against APC last week, Goggans was unblockable.

Goggans and the other Leos will be tested today.

DFG changing waterfowl rules

Waterfowl hunters at the Wister unit of the Department of Fish and Game's Imperial Wildlife Area near the Salton Sea will encounter some new ground rules that are expected to provide better and fairer hunting opportunities this season, the DFG said today.

The IWA waterfowl season opens Oct. 22 along with most of California. Details on seasons, bag limits and other information can be found in the DFG's hunting regulations booklet on resident and migratory game birds, available free wherever hunting licenses are sold. Pamphlets covering rules for hunting on state and federal areas are also available.

Reservation holders at Wister will find only two changes worth noting, the DFG said. First, each hunting party will select its hunting site at the Wister check station in the order of sale of permits. Last year, each party selected a site by parking their vehicle at a specific marked location in the Wister fields.

Second, the permit fee is $5 per adult shooter, reservationists and nonreservationists alike, in line with general price increase approved by the State Fish and Game Commission this year. There is no fee for juniors or non-shooters.

Aside from these two changes, reservation holders will find the rules much the same as last year. The Wister check station will open at 3 a.m. on shoot days and reservation holders present will be sold permits in the order stamped on the reservation. All reservation holders must present their reservations no later than one and a half hours before the daily shooting time.

All hunters are reminded that each party must have its own assigned and separate site. If two parties are sharing one vehicle, one party will have to be dropped off at its hunting site or will have to walk to its site. An individual party using two vehicles will be permitted to park them in tandem at one site.

Nonreservation holders will find a different system in force this year. The traditional first-come first-served line will no longer be in effect. Instead, there will be a drawing to establish the order of sale of permits to nonreservationists to replace reservation holders who do not appear on time and to replace hunters returning permits during the shoot day.

Drawing cards will be available to nonreservationists at the check station from 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. prior to each shoot day. These cards will be numbered consecutively in the upper left corner of each half of the card.

Only one member of the hunting party need be present to fill out these drawing cards with the last name and driver's license number of all members of the party on each half of the perforated card. No more than four individuals may be in a party, regardless of whether they plan to shoot or not.

The hunter will separate the two halves of the card at the perforation, retain the left half and deposit the right half in a tumbler at the station. The cards will be drawn at 9:30 p.m. and will establish the order in which the nonreservationists will be sold their permits. Hunters need not be present at the drawing.

A master chart at the check station will allow hunters to see their place in the order of the draw. They can check these results any time after the drawing and plan their time accordingly.

Permits will be sold to nonreservation parties in the order drawn until one and a half hours before the close of shooting time on the shoot day.

One expected advantage of the new system is that nonreservation holders will no longer have to spend long hours in a first-come first-served line waiting to get onto the Wister hunting area. The system is also designed to spread hunting opportunities more equitably among nonreservationists, including those who are unable to reach Wister early enough to get into the forefront of a first-come first-served line.

An instruction sheet for nonreservationists may be obtained by sending a request plus a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the DFG at 350 Golden Shore, Long Beach, Ca 90802. These sheets are also available at Wister.

Wister is the only state-operated waterfowl area where this system is being used this year, and there is considerable interest in seeing how well it works, the DFG said.

RUNNING FOR HEALTH — 26-year old Susan Smith Jones recently completed a "100 Mile Run for Health" from Santa Barbara to L.A. to encourage physical fitness. Ms. Jones comes by her interest in the subject honestly; she's a body fitness instructor at UCLA and has authored a book on the subject.

TO VISIT BOAT SHOW — The Hawkfarm, shown above, will be one of 45 brand new boats to be introduced at the Southern California Sailboat Show, set for Oct. 22-30 at the new Long Beach Convention Center complex.

L.B. Sailboat Show to be largest ever

The 1977 Southern California Sailboat Show, set to start Saturday, Oct. 22 at the Long Beach Convention Center, will feature 150,000 square feet of displays, thus making it the largest all-sail show ever held on dry land.

Chairman Jerry Sehi of the sponsoring Southern California Marine Association reports the event will be 66 percent larger than the 1976 exhibition. It is three times as large as the 1975 show.

The new size is made possible by the completion of the Long Beach Exhibit Hall, part of the $51.2 million dollar Convention Center complex on the waterfront.

There will be more than 400 sailing craft on display, according to Sehi. Two-hundred booth exhibits are also slated for the event, which will run through Oct. 30.

The sailboat show will be the first public event in the new L.B. exhibit hall building.

Also indicative of the tremendous growth of the show is the fact that 24 companies will be showing for the first time at the event. These companies will join 90 percent of the 1976 exhibitors.

More than 30 1978 model craft will be introduced at the show, along with nearly everything that goes on a sailing craft.

Chukar hunting slated at NWC

Portions of the Naval Weapons Center at China Lakes will be open to the public for chukar and rabbit hunting on two weekends this fall, Oct. 29-30 and Nov. 5-6.

Although there is no limit on the number of hunters, only 500 vehicles will be permitted on the base each weekend on a first-come, first-served basis. This quota applies to Naval Weapons Center personnel as well as the public.

Applications for vehicle permits should be obtained immediately from the Natural Resources Management Office (Code 26309), Naval Weapons Center, China Lake, CA 93555. A self-addressed, stamped envelope should be enclosed. Applications will be mailed out beginning Oct. 17.

There is no fee for a vehicle permit, but a $5 cash fee will be collected from hunters when they arrive at the check-in station.

Department of Fish and Game biologists' brood counts established that chukar and rabbit populations would support a hunt.

A quail hunt was not recommended.

Bird count down at IWA

Peter Gelfand, supervisor of the Imperial Wildlife Area, reported today that the waterfowl population on the area and in the vicinity of the Salton Sea appear to be down from last year.

"I would say maybe about 3,000 birds on the area, maybe 10,000 on and around this part of the Salton Sea," Gelfand said. "Last year at this time we had about 15,000 or more."

Gelfand said the major species represented at this time includes teal, shovelers and pintails.

CCC cleans up 'Chica Reserve

If you detect an improvement in the appearance of Bolsa Chica Ecological Reserve in Orange County, chalk up a plus for the California Conservation Corps, which now has two crews assigned to the area.

Tasks taken over by the youthful corps members include litter cleanup and maintenance, placement of pilings to prevent vehicular access into the marsh, construction of trail, boardwalk, restroom facilities and fencing, and installation and maintenance of signs.

Sharon Lockhart, Department of Fish and Game biologist in charge of the reserve, said the Conservation Corps contingent consists of two 10-person rotating crews from the corps' Camarillo base. While in Orange County, the crews stay at Los Alamitos Naval Air Station.

The California Conservation Corps is also scheduled to send a crew soon from its Deer Park camp near Escondido, San Diego County, to perform similar tasks at the Upper Newport Bay Ecological Reserve, a few miles south of Bolsa Chica.

A crew from Deer Park earlier this summer helped prepare a least tern nesting site at Upper Newport Bay.

Bass size limit expanded by DFG

The State Fish and Game Commission meeting in Los Angeles Friday received Department of Fish and Game recommendations for 1978 sportfishing regulations that would add 13 lakes and reservoirs to the present list of waters with a 12-inch minimum length for black bass.

In all, 25 state waters would have a 12-inch size limit for all species of black bass under the proposed regulation.

Other suggested changes in sportfishing regulations would:

—Prohibit the use of hooks with more than one point no on the Mad River and its tributaries in Humboldt County to help reduce incidents of illegal snagging.

—Outlaw the taking or possession of any trout more than 15 inches long in the Middle Fork of the Eel River drainage above Bar Creek, Mendocino County, to protect a dwindling summer run of steelhead.

—Limit the formerly year-round season for trout and salmon in the Trinity River to the period Nov. 16-Feb. 28 because of the reduction in the river's steelhead population.

According to George McCammon, branch chief of Inland Fisheries, imposing the minimum length restriction on black bass at additional waters should prevent overharvesting in these waters and help balance fisheries dominated by competitors such as bluegill and catfish. Including all species of black bass should simplify the regulation and the recognition problem for the angler, he explained.

McCammon siad that with the rapid growth of black bass fishing, largemouth, smallmouth and spotted bass are being caught at annual rates of more than 50 percent in those reservoirs where the size limit is requested.

The minimum length now in effect on 12 lakes would be inaugurated at Camanche Lake in Amador, Calaveras, and San Joaquin counties; New Hogan Reservoir, Calaveras County; Folsom Lake, Sacramento and El Dorado counties; Santa Margarita Lake, San Luis Obispo; Lake Mendocino, Mendocino County; San Antonio Reservoir, Monterey; Hensley (Hidden), Success and Terminus lakes and Buchanan Reservoir, Madera; Pine Flat Reservoir, Fresno; Lake Casitas, Ventura, and Skinner Lake in Riverside County.

Nine lakes now are covered with minimum length restriction for largemouth black bass only. These are Lake Oroville, Butte County; Merle Collins, Yuba; Clear Lake, Lake County; Berryessa Lake, Napa County; Lopez and Nacimiento, San Luis Obispo; Cachuma, Santa Barbara; Castaic, Los Angeles County. Clair Engle Lake (Trinity Lake), Trinity County, is covered with a minimum length restriction on both largemouth and smallmouth bass. Millerton Lake, Fresno and Madera counties; Don Pedro, Tuolumne, and McClure, Merced, already have a 12-inch size limit on all black bass.

Recommendations concerning trout include those to:

(1) Reduce the limits to five in the Mokelumne River from the Hwy. 99 Bridge to Camanche Dam, San Joaquin County, to better distribute the catch of planted trout in the area; and (2) open fishing in the Sacramento River and its tributaries upstream from the Interstate 5 Bridge at Dunsmuir on April 29 rather than a month later, this to coincide with the opening below the bridge.

Other department proposals would:

—Close the Klamath River from the mouth of the Trinity River to Ishi Pishi Falls to sturgeon fishing from April 1 to July 15 and outlaw snagging and the use of firearms in the taking of sturgeon in the ocean.

—Permit year-round underwater spearfishing for nongame fish in the Kaweah River and in Terminus and Success lakes, Tulare County.

—Close Mammoth Pool Reservoir in Fresno and Madera counties to all fishing from March 1 through June 16 to protect deer which swim the reservoir during spring migration.

—Limit the sport take of white seabass to three fish per angler per day instead of the current two fish limit and eliminate the tollerance of one undersize white seabass.

—Provide for the sport harvest of mussels in Pt. Reyes National Seashore.

—Reduce the limit of gaper clams in Humboldt Bay from 50 in combination with Washington clams to 25 graper clams.

—Amend the Pismo Clam Preserve boundaries in San Luis Obispo County.

—Permit the use of abalone irons in the taking of rock scallops.

—Close San Francisco and San Pablo bays to the taking of Dugeness crabs to protect nursery areas.

Hearings on the recommendations are scheduled for Nov. 4 in San Diego when the commission will announce its proposed regulations and Dec. 9 in Sacramento when the regulations will be adopted. New rules will go into effect March 1, 1978.

In other action the commission approved 1978-79 California duck projects including three in Canada for $175,000 and three in California totaling $27,250, and approved the establishment of San Miguel Island Ecological Reserve off Santa Barbara.

Gun salutes sometimes honor distinguished persons or mark special occasions.

This custom began long ago, when guns were loaded by hand.

Upon the approach of a friendly ship or important foreign visitor, all the big guns of the fort or warship were fired as a token of disarming them, for early guns could not be speedily reloaded. The visitor was thus assured that he was welcomed as a friend.

Modern gun salutes are fired with blank cartirdges or charges,

The number of shots fired depends upon the importance of the visitor -- 21-gun salutes are fired for presidents and other heads of government and 19-gun salutes are fired for such other persons as ambassadors, admirals and state governors.

Other gun salutes may be given with as few as five guns. Firing an odd number of shots is believed to come from an old naval supersition, that an even number of shots is unlucky.

Locate missing U.S. yacht near Saigon

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Three Americans who radioed their yacht was about to be rammed off the coast of Vietnam were reported safe today and being towed to Saigon, the father of the vessel's owner said.

Frederick Dellenbaugh said a ham radio operator who knew his daughter, Cornelia "Cricket" Dellenbaugh, telephoned him from Bangkok, Thailand, at about 9 a.m. EDT today.

"He said he talked with Cricket by radio and she stated that they were under tow by a Vietnamese government vessel to arrive in Saigon at 9 p.m. EDT tonight," Dellenbaugh said.

"He said they were all well."

Dellenbaugh said the caller was Robert Stevens, a boat yard operator who built the seized vessel, the 39-foot Brillig. "I know the man and recognized his voice and consider him reliable," Dellenbaugh said. "Stevens recognized the voice of my daughter."

The yacht issued its distress call Thursday, reporting it was being chased and fired on by vessels. The last message said the yacht was "about to be rammed."

Miss Dellenbaugh was identified as a former Peace Corps worker. The two other Americans aboard were identified as Leeland Dickerman of Flagstaff, Ariz., and Charles Affel of Philadelphia.

The vessel was en route from Thailand's Pattaya beach resort area to Brunei and Singapore, sources here said. The distress call reported a position about 35 miles off Vietnam's Ca Mau peninsula.

Vietnam's official news media, Vietnam News Agency and Voice of Vietnam, made no mention of the incident in today's transmissions.

Schools saved

MONROEVILLE, Ohio (AP) — By a better than 3-1 margin, Monroeville residents have approved a special levy that sends the district's 900 students back to classes today.

Thursday's 1,116-326 approval of the levy, which will generate an additional $245,000 for the district over the next three years, ended a one-week closure due to budget problems.

Had voters turned down a nine-mill property tax increase, school officials said classes would have been suspended until after the New Year, and the district would have faced possible dissolution.

"Basically, i think the people just wanted to keep their schools and kids in Monroeville," school Superintendent Donald Halsey said after the vote. "We've got some good people up here, even though there has been a lot of negativism."

The election, which drew 1,442 of the district's 1,800 registered voters, was the third to try to stave off closure. Voters, who are now taxed 27.3 mills, or $27.30 per $1,000 of assessed valuation, rejected new taxes in June and August.

Ohio law prohibits school districts from operating with deficits; 31 districts have asked for state audits to determine their financial situations. At least that number of districts also have special levy elections this fall.

The possibility of a shutdown also faces Cleveland, the state's largest school district, but no additional levy is planned there.

State legislators will be asked next week to consider a special measure to solve cash flow problems to keep Cleveland schools open.

An ad hoc Senate-House committee agreed Wednesday on the provisions of an emergency bill under which Cleveland could borrow $19 million to cover a projected deficit for the period of Oct. 17 to Dec. 31. Cleveland officials would have to certify that the funds would be repaid by June 30, 1978.

May plead insanity

ELVATON, Md. (AP) — Prosecutors say they consider a plea of insanity is likely to be entered by teen-ager Stuart Kreiner, who is charged with murder in the stabbing deaths of three young neighbor girls.

Kreiner, 16, was arraigned Thursday in Anne Arundel District Court on three counts of first-degree murder and then held as an adult without bail. Attorneys said no plea was entered and that they recommended that Judge Robert E. Heise order a psychiatric examination of the youth.

Heise told reporters later he had advised the defense counsel that a motion for such an order could be submitted for his consideration.

Queen in Ottawa

OTTAWA (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II arrives here today for a five-day Silver Jubilee visit to Canada and apparently will be drawn into the increasingly heated dispute over French Canadian nationalism.

The separatist premier of Quebec province, Rene Levesque, said he would attend a luncheon for the queen Sunday and may talk with her about independence for his French-dominated province.

All provincial heads of government and Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau will attend the luncheon at Trudeau's summer home.

Brown to Rome

ROME (AP) — U.S. Defense Secretary Harold Brown arrived here today for a 24-hour visit and talks with Italian government leaders.

Brown flew in from Belgrade where he discussed arms sales with the Yugoslavs in the first trip by a U.S. defense secretary to a Communist nation since World War II.

BING IN CHARACTER — Bob Hope, Dorothy Lamour, and Bing Crosby are shown in costume in the 1942 film, "Road to Morocco."

Bing Crosby: crooner becomes an institution

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Singer and actor Bing Crosby died of a heart attack Friday while engaged in his favorite pastime, playing golf. He was 73.

Crosby recently completed a tour of Britain — including a sell-out performance at London's Palladium — which he said was a test of his recovery from a back injury suffered in a fall from a theater stage in Pasadena, Calif. That show marked his 50th year in show business.

Just before his fall March 3 at the Ambassador Auditorium in Pasadena, Crosby had told his audience, "I hope it won't be another 50 years before we can celebrate like this."

Doctors later found he had ruptured a disc in the lower part of his back and would require a long convalescence.

Variously nicknamed "Der Bingle," "Old Dad," and "The Groaner," Harry Lillis Crosby began as a brash young band singer and ended as an institution.

He won his audiences with smooth ballads and a relaxed delivery. He became one of the most popular singers in the world and many times a millionaire, but refused to retire.

Bing liked loud sports shirts, owned race horses, was an accomplished golfer, smoked pipes and had a long bantering friendship with comedian Bob Hope.

It was often said during his heyday in the 1930s and 40s that at any moment, somewhere in the world, Crosby's rich baritone was being heard on a radio, phonograph or jukebox.

Until he was overtaken by rock 'n' roll in the 1950s, he was credited with selling more records than any singer in history, and his renditions of "Silent Night" and "White Christmas" still top the best-seller charts at Christmas.

His radio theme song, "When the Blue of the Night Meets the Gold of the Day" was known everywhere as was the trademark phrase of "bub-bub-bubboo" interjected in most of his songs.

In addition to records, Crosby also made more than 70 films and in each year from 1943 to 1948 was voted the top money-making star of the movies in an annual poll of theater owners and operators. That made him the all-time champion in the field.

In 1944, he won an Oscar for one of his best-known roles, as a priest in "Going My Way."

In one U.S. personality poll of the 1940s, he won as the most popular, beating out General Dwight Eisenhower, President Harry Truman and the Pope.

Crosby's heyday as a singer was the big band era of the 1930s and 1940s when he sold more records than any singer before him. But in the 1950s, Elvis Presley's phenomenal success pushed Crosby's records off the top of the charts.

Undaunted, Crosby launched a second career as a serious actor, accepting no-singing, dramatic roles in sometimes grimly realistic movies. In "Country Girl," he portrayed a singer who became a hopeless alcoholic grieving over the death of his small daughter. His movie roles brought new plaudits.

In the 1960s, Crosby concentrated on a third phase of show business — television. He limited himself to occasional specials and often acted as host of the "Hollywood Palace" variety show.

Probably the most remarkable thing about Crosby's popularity was that it never waned. He made easy transitions from recording artist to radio star to television performer and even to actor.

Crosby cultivated a public image of laziness and casualness, but he was in fact a hard worker and tough businessman. His business enterpriss included oil wells, distribution rights for frozen orange juice, the far-flung Bing Crosby Enterprises — which marketed everything from television films to toy dogs — and a luxurious trailer village at Palm Springs, Calif.

Crosby's given name was Harry Lillis. He was born May 2, 1904, in Tacoma, Wash., one of seven children. His brother Bob also was in show business, a bandleader-singer. There were several versions of how he got the nickname "Bing," but they all agree that he picked it up as a child.

He began his muscial career as a drummer in a high school dance orchestra. In 1927, he and Al Rinker, a pianist, joined Paul Whiteman's jazz orchestra, and Whiteman teamed them with Harry Barries as Whiteman's Rhythm Boys. Among their hits was "Mississippi Mud." In 1930, Crosby made his first screen appearance when the Whiteman band filmed "The King of Jazz."

The Rhythm Boys later left Whiteman and performed in Los Angeles at the Cocoanut Grove. Crosby then began singing and acting in a series of 20-minute movie shorts for producer Mack Sennett. It was during this period that he proposed to his first wife, Dixie Lee, over a chicken dinner at the Cocoanut Grove.

Crosby began a long association with Paramount Pictures in 1932 and in 1933 he made the first "Road" picture. He left Paramount in the 1950s and began to freelance.

Among his movies during the years were "The Birth of the Blues," "Holiday Inn," with Fred Astaire, "Just for You," with Ethel Barrymore and "Bells of St. Mary's" with Ingrid Bergman in which Crosby, a Roman Catholic, again played a priest.

During World War II, with the Crosby Camp Shows, the singer traveled more than 50,000 miles entertaining the troops.

His business enterprises — which brought him a fortune estimated at between $40 million and $70 million — included oil wells, distribution rights for a frozen orange juice, a 25,000acre cattle ranch near Elko, Nev., and the far-flung Bing Crosby Enterprises which marketed everything from television films to toy dogs.

Asked why he didn't retire, he would say, "A man in my position has a tiger by the tail. He just can't let go any old time. So many people become dependent on him for their livelihood. If he quits, scores of jobs go down the drain. Each job represents a family."

Crosby contributed heavily to charities. He also put up the funds each year for a pro-amateur golf tournament at Pebble Beach, Calif. Proceeds went into youth recreation centers and other charities. His exhibition golf matches with Hope also raised charity funds.

Bob Hope stunned

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Hope reacted with shock and astonishment Friday to the news that his longtime friend and "Road" companion, Bing Crosby, had died in Spain.

"I still don't believe it," he said in a telephone interview from his suite at the Waldorf Astoria. "I'm absolutely numb.

"I don't believe it. I saw him a couple of months ago and he seemed fine. I spoke to him on the telephone and he seemed in great spirits. He was playing golf and everything. I can't understand what happened. I guess he was more hurt in that fall than we realized."

The comedian referred to the tumble that Crosby had taken from a Pasadena stage into the orchestra pit during the taping of a television special March 3. The television special marked his 50th anniversary in show business.

'Blackout' traced to transformer

Authorities are continuing to investigate a blackout which resulted in the loss of power to a large number of homes in south Pomona Thursday evening.

A police spokesman said an Edison Co. transformer "blew out" at Garey and Philadelphia avenues, causing the blackout which lasted for a little over an hour. The lights went out at 8:37 p.m., and power was restored at 9:50.

The area affected by the blackout is bordered by Franklin Avenue on the north, County Road on the south, the Corona Expressway on the west and East End Avenue on the east.

Power lines were knocked down, and that in turn started a few small grass fires in the area, police said. Officers were busy controlling traffic in the darkened area and firemen extinguished the small fires.

Nation pauses to salute newspaper carriers

(Story on pages 6-7)

"Outdoor" chores are his job.

ON THE COVER

Today is International Newspaper Carrier Day, a salute to the newspaper delivery boys and girls throughout the nation. Paul Espinoza of Pomona and Diane Esslinger of Ontario, shown delivering the Progress-Bulletin, are typical of the newspaper's 822 carriers.

Paul does his homework.

News carrier works on his motorcycle.

Newspaper carrier does her chores.

Diane looks over some of her track trophies.

Day in and day out, at dawn or dusk, to millions of homes across the nation the comfortable "Plop" on porch, patio, lawn or driveway heralds the arrival of the daily newspaper, hand delivered by legions of efficient and hardworking young people.

Today is International Newspaper Carrier Day, when the newspaper industry and the entire country pauses to salute the youngest businessmen in the economy.

To deliver more than 44,000 editions of the Progress-Bulletin to homes from Ontario to West Covina, Mt. Baldy to the Santa Ana River, the newspaper has a team of 822 boys and girls, ages 11 to 14. They are independent dealers, each averaging a half-mile daily delivery route. They earn more than $500,000 a year, not including bonus contests and money and prizes earned in the sales of new subscriptions. They also take part in weekly contests offering prizes of excursions to Catalina Island, Disneyland, Magic Mountain, San Fransisco, San Diego and other centers.

Who are these newspaper carriers? What do they do when they aren't folding the Progress-Bulletin and bicycling through the neighborhood to deliver it to your home? To learn more about them, I interviewed two typical carriers — Diane Esslinger, daughter of Robert and Sharon Esslinger of Ontario, and Paul Espinoza, son of Alexander and Blondine Espinoza of Pomona. They emerged as typical American high school students, busier than the average, doing well in school and active in a variety of other areas.

Diane hardly needs her bicycle to deliver papers — she's one of the fastest runners in the valley, and she has a roomful of trophies, cups and ribbons to prove it. She was ranked seventh in the nation by the Amateur Athletic Union for the two-mile run for girls 14 and 15. She took fifth place in the national championships last year and second in the state championships. Last summer the Southern California Road Runners Track Club sent her to a one-week U. S. Olympic Training Center workshop.

Now in her third year at Montclair High School, Diane has an A average, with mathematics her favorite subject. When she isn't doing her schoolwork, delivering newspapers or training for a track meet, she babysits for extra money, goes bowling, "fools around" with the accordion and does the customary chores around the house. She's been delivering the Progress Bulletin for four years — her brother, Bob, also has a route.

"I like delivering newspapers," she said. "It's fun and I earn money."

Paul agrees. "I've always wanted to throw newspapers, " he said. "I enjoy it. I have two routes — 66 papers. It takes me about 45 minutes." He has been delivering newspapers for a year and a half, and his sisters, Sherry and Francesca, also have routes.

A freshman at Ganesha High School, Paul is a good student and is saving the money he earns as a carrier to go to college. He's out for tight end or wide receiver on the freshman football team, plays third or shortstop in baseball and also likes track. He is a member of the Motorcycle Club at high school; the Espinoza garage shelters a Suzuki 125 and an Indian 75. When he's not busy with athletics, homework and his newspaper routes, Paul spends his time building models, working on his motorcycle, doing the "outside" chores and romping with the family dog.

Diane and Paul are typical of the 822 Progress-Bulletin carriers and of the vast army of carriers throughout the nation, independent businessmen and women earning money and performing an invaluable service to the newspaper readers of America.

Seventh-ranked nationally in the two-mile for girls 14 and 15.

It happened in Pomona

To give the devils their due, there are probably no political office holders who are really good or bad, it is just thinking that makes them so. At least that's the way it is today and that's the way it was in Pomona back in 1892. Fortunately we have the evidence to prove it. On Saturday, September 10, 1892, the editor of The Pomona Weekly Times wrote:

"Mr. C.H. Marshall, the new City Trustee, is an intelligent, liberal minded, upright man and therefore a good citizen and can't help being a first class officer."

But just as differences of opinion make a horse race, so too it is differences of opinion that keep city officials constantly running from pillar to post. In that same issue of The Pomona Times there appeared a Letter to the Editor the author of which emphatically stated:

"It is my candid opinion that the whole City Council ought to resign."

Which certainly would seem to indicate that then even as now, the best of politicians sometimes fails in his efforts to be all things to all people.

It is also interesting to note that in various other ways politicians were no better off in 1892 than they are today. In fact, their lot presents many striking similariteis. In 1892 the Democrats had just come into power with the election of Cleveland as President. And strangely enough, then as now there was also a water shortage. So just as a lot of folks are doing today, The Pomona Weekly Times editor placed the burdon of doing something constructive about that water shortage right where it belonged.

"If the Democrats don't bring rain soon, now that they are on top," he wrote, "they'll get themselves disliked."

The chess story of the year is the subject of a featured cover article in September's U.S. Chess Federation publication "Chess Life and Review." It tells how junior high school and elementary school teams from north Philadelphia won and finished second in their respective sections of the U.S. National School Championships.

The all black teams and their white teacher-coaches were able, on the basis of previous accomplishments, to raise $15,000 to pay for the trip! Broad sections of the Philadelphia community responded to the achievements of these "disadvantaged children," who were just as at home at the chessboard as on the basketball court.

Deprived of junk food, stuffed with vitamin B and mildly dosed with transcendental meditation, these athlete-chessplayers were met on their return by a mad hurrah, according to the N.Y. Times:

"At the airport, mounted policemen pointed the way to a reception area where a red-white-and-blue rostrum had been set up. Also on hand were two television crews, a city councilman, a state senator, the entire Police and Firemen's Band, and a svelte blonde who would read a proclamation on behalf of the Mayor. . . . As the TV crews muscled into position, a dozen black youths in blazers were disgorged from the cars. Most of them seemed to be carrying trophies."

A few more such demonstrations of the stunning potentials of our more-neglected children, white and non-white, and it will be significantly less easy to explain away our failure to decently educate them.

AGED BABY CARRRIAGE

Stamps in the news

By SYD KRONISH

Plans are developing for the 1978 Philatelic Exhibition commemorating the centennial of China's first stamps (ROCPEX TAIPEI '78) to be held in Tapei, Taiwan, Republic of China, beginning March 20, 1978 and continuing for 10 days. Many nations and private collectors will be exhibiting at that time, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency. Commissioners have been selected from various countries to supervise the exhibits.

Looking ahead to next year, Great Britain will celebrate another royal occasion — the 25th anniversary of Queen Elizabeth II's Coronation. We can expect a repetition of the many special stamp sets by Britain and its Commonwealth nations as seen this year for the Silver Jubilee marking the 25th anniversary of her accession to the throne.

The British postal agenda for 1978 will be a stamp in January emphasizing its energy program. Featured will be the North Sea oil industry along with other forms and sources of energy. Historic buildings will be the subject of a special issue in March, with one of the stamps depicting the Tower of London, since 1978 marks the 900th anniversary of its foundation. The Coronation set will be issued in May. There will be a set of stamps in August honoring the centenary year of both the Cyclists Touring Club and the British Cycling Federation. The final issues will be Britain's Christmas stamps.

Baby carriage is valued collectible

By Dorothy Hammond

QUESTION: Enclosed is a photograph of a baby carriage we have. The body is made of natural reed, the base, axles and wheels are of wood painted dark green (buttermilk paint, perhaps), and stenciled in dark brown or faded black. From the worn spots on the handle, it appears to be the original paint. The carriage is in good condition except for two reed loops missing at the foot of the basket. The burlap cover has been added recently.

Could you tell us when this carriage was used? How much is it worth today?

Any information you can give us will be very much appreciated. Mrs. H.A.W.

ANSWER: I would date your baby carriage around 1825-50, and comparable examples are usually valued at $175-$200.

QUESTION: During the years I have been reading your column, I don't believe you have ever answered a question concerning old windmill weights. I have three of these and of course am curious to know if there are collectors for such things. If so, how much would a buffalo, a milk cow and a long tail horse be worth? J.A.

ANSWER: Windmill weights are of much interest to many collectors nowadays and values continue to swing upward. Presently, the buffalo and horse are being priced in the $150 range, while the cow sells for around $50-$65.

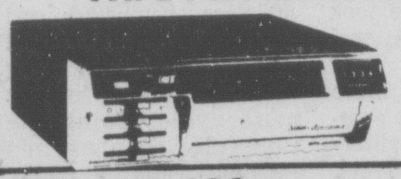

QUESTION: I would appreciate any information you can give me on the price of a set of eight snack trays with matching cups. All are perfect and each piece is marked "Royal Doulton, England." I believe the decoration is called "Coaching Ways," done in yellow and brown tones. Mrs. T.B.H.

ANSWER: Royal Doulton sets like yours sell for about $35 each.

New leaders assume roles

Pomona plans big year

By Maureen Silvestri
Pomona Correspondent

New ASB officers are planning a fantastic year for Pomona High School students.

President Keith Measatas and vice president Charles Wilcots are joined by secretary Teresa Young and treasurer Susan Wulfing as leaders of the student body.

Measatas, an active member of both senior class and Key Club, plays center for the varsity football team. As president, he would like to see the student body "closely united to make this year one of many changes for the better." He urges fellow students to participate fully in all activities.

The changes that are mentioned by Measatas are certain to occur under the guidance of newly appointed director of student activities, Michael Arrendondo. He taught at PHS until his appointment. He has displayed enthusiasm toward the goals set forth by the student council. He has been involved as faculty adviser for the sophomore class and the MECHA Club.

Senior class president Debby Taylor feels that "seniors should be as active as possible in their last year at PHS."

Miss Taylor is striving for increased involvement among seniors in fund-raising events.

Students at PHS are looking forward to a wonderful year.

The World's Greatest Athlete is proud to have been a Newspaper Carrier

"It takes steadiness to be a decathlon man," Bruce Jenner says. "And that's what Newspaper Carriers give you—steady performance every day."

Bruce delivered newspapers through his 5th, 6th, and 7th-grade years in Tarrytown, N.Y.

"Being a Newspaper Carrier helped me to acquire the discipline I needed for training." And his training paid off.

Grimacing with pain and tension, Bruce Jenner crossed the 1,500-meter finish at the Montreal Olympics to win the most grueling of all competitions. The 1976 decathlon champion also won the only Olympic honor more precious than gold—the title of the World's Greatest Athlete.

Now he's asking you to join the Treasury Department in saying "thank you" to your local Newspaper Carriers. It's their day: Newspaper Carrier Day, 1977.

Newspaper Carriers have steadily supported the U.S. Savings Bond program, buying bonds regularly with their earnings. Through their Newspaper Carrier Thrift Clubs, many have set aside money for their college educations.

Like Bruce Jenner, they believe in goals for the future. And that's what U.S. Savings Bonds are all about.

Hiking club marks 13th year

The Alta Loma High School Hiking Club started its 13th year of activities recently. The group climbed Dawson Peak and Mt. Baldy on its first outing.

The hike started at San Antonio Falls where the hikers walked the fire road to the trail at the Devil's Backbone. Then they continued around the north side of Mt. Baldy to Dawson Peak. On the way back, part of the group climbed the north side of Mt. Baldy and reached the summit.

The day's highlight was reading the register on Dawson Peak and finding a 1969 account of a club hike from Lytle Creek. The 1969 hike, also made by the Alta Loma High School Hiking Club was made in October. But in 1969, the group encountered snow, from the previous winter!

Those completing the hike were Doug Gale, Harold Balding, Jack Marsee, Wade Dishinger, David Allen, Daniel Allen, Joe Branchetti, Dan Chilson, Kelly Williams, Ken Caruso, Jeff Clayton and Paul Balding, and advisers Martin Balding, Joann Harris and Ken Harris.

Naval junior ROTC featured

By LYNN HERMAN
Lutheran Correspondent

One unique feature of Lutheran High is its Naval Junior ROTC program. This program combines drill training, a classroom format, cruises and field trips. It makes the class interesting, practical and well-rounded.

Students assume leader roles in actual platoons, with Cmdr. B.G. Mattox as commander-in-chief. Once a month, the whole company will assemble to march together. Otherwise, each class drills everyday on its own.

The Naval Science class is active in school-related activities also. Members voluntarily run the school snack store. Once a year, they sponsor the military ball.

The cruises offered vary from year to year, but Commander Mattox has said he planned a one-day cruise for the female cadets on a destroyer in December. Other plans are: boot camp for everyone, a Hawaiian cruise for a selected member of male cadets, and a trip to Naval Air Station Miramar for an air show.

Naval Science this year will also be in the Pomona Christmas parade and the Armed Forces Day parade in Torrance. Already the cadets have taken a field trip to Catalina on an "oceanographic observation."

Pageant finalists selected

Thirty girls from 16 valley cities were selected as quarter-finalists in the San Gabriel Valley competition for the 1978 Miss Teen-age America Pageant, in recent testing at West Covina Fashion Plaza.

Joan Nachbaur, coordinator for the pageant at the plaza, said the next phase of the competition for girls 13-17 will be today starting at noon, as each contestant will be publicly interviewed on the mall, and will perform before a panel of judges.

Actor Chris Nelson will be master of ceremonies, while other judges will include KABC reporter Tawny Little, author and charm school director Rose Collins, and Johanna Layton, general manager of Bullock's Fashion Plaza.

Each girl will be outfitted by Bullock's for the quarter-finals, with fashion and makeup coordination arranged by Lisa Farnsworth.

From this group, two girls will be chosen to represent this area in the Southern California finals, Oct. 22, at Huntington Beach Center. National competition will be in November in Dallas, with "The Waltons" Richard Thomas as master of ceremonies. Winners of the quarter-finals today will receive gifts from plaza merchants.

Girls selected for the quarter-finals are Mimi Graff, Lee Ann Guhl, Linda Ohanesian, Yvonne Paulo, Lisa Marie Selby, Cecilia Short and Susan Smith, West Covina; Darci Berns, Donna Borkowski, Anna Bustos, Cathy Mercica and Donella Mounger, Covina.

Laure Rodrick, Upland, Waunda Pual, Valinda, Sharon Holmes, La Puente, Leah Carruthers and Penne Phillips, Whittier, Linda Goorey and Kim Kuker, El Monte, and Theresa Rohr, Baldwin Park.

Representing other communities are Laura Raybin, Duarte, Genie Gray, Pasadena, Wendy Carlson, Arcadia, Andrea Benson, Hacienda Heights, Nancy Bromfield and Carol Stickels, Claremont, Kim Wrublevski, La Verne, Jeanine Tancredi, Pomona, and Donna Diodsik, San Dimas.

National sponsors for Miss Teen-age America are Dr. Pepper, Bonne Bell Cosmetics, Florafax International, PBJ by Jerell Junior Apparel, and the World Book Encyclopedia.

Universal Drum Center specializes in all percussion instruments

Universal Drum Center located at 697 West Holt Ave. in Pomona, Calif. was opened August 4th, 1973 by owner Tony Tapia. Tapia and his staff of Buzz Allshouse, Doug Brucher, Greg Richliano, Alan Waddington and Joe White have organized Universal into an operation that specializes in all types of drums and percussion instruments.

Its customers range from the young beginning drummers to the professional drummers in recording groups such as "War," "ZZ TOP," "Emylou Harris," "Gary Wright," and other well known groups appearing in local nightclubs and concerts throughout the valley and Southern California areas.

The center is divided into three separate divisions; Sales, Education, Service, Each responsible for its own productivity. The entire operation is headed by General Manager, Buzz Allshouse. Allshouse, 4 years with Universal, has developed several methods of marketing and custom designing of drum sets.

The sales division, handled by Greg Richliano, is involved in selling new and used drums of major brands, and continually keeping current of the latest drums and accessories available on the market.

The education division, directed by Doug Brucher and Alan Waddington, instruct beginner, intermediate, and advanced students in drums and percussion instruments. The private school has gained a reputation of excellence, not only thru tradional methods of teaching but also through its unique programs of relevant drum set studies of today's music (disco, rock, jazz, latin, etc.)

The service division, led by Joe White, processes major and minor repairs, complete reconditioning and custom alterations of percussion instruments. Several drummers and schools have had their entire percussion instruments overhauled. The latest phase of major service is refinishing of guitars, organs and upright pianos.

The entire staff are all experienced drummers and perform with various groups. They continue their percussion studies at local colleges and private advanced studios such as Elliot Franks Chuch Flores, and Les Demerle, noted studio recording artists.

The philosophy of the staff and the center is to be informed and to improve the art of drumming.

Right time for this revue film

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Something that started years ago in Milwaukee, Wis., where the Zucker and Abrahams families were neighbors and friends, has now become a force that Hollywood is thinking about very seriously.

The something that happened is a movie called "The Kentucky Fried Movie." It is a plotless revue-type film, made up of skits and sketches of varying lengths, which have only one common denominator — most of them are very funny.

Traditionally, revues have worked on Broadway but they have not been very successful on film. Lately, a few have been tried — "Tunnelvision," "The Groove Tube" and, perhaps, Monty Python's films — and they have had their moments, but the public has not busted down doors to see them.

But the public is buying tickets in large numbers to see "The Kentucky Fried Movie." Maybe it's funnier than the others, maybe it's better made, maybe it's just that times have changed and it's now the right time for a revue movie.

Whatever the reason, Hollywood is watching this experiment closely. And chances are good you'll be seeing more revue movies soon.

But probably not from the three bright young men who did this one. Jim Abrahams and David and Jerry Zucker are already hard at work on their next film, but it is different — it has a plot and a story with something approximating a beginning, a middle and an end.

The three boys grew up close together in Milwaukee, then moved on to the University of Wisconsin in Madison.

"We found at that time," David Zucker says, "that we had a common sense of humor. And we thought the best way to express that sense of humor was in the theater."

So they started their own theater in Madison — actually the back of a bookstore — and put on a show. It was successful, but they could only seat 70 people, and that sort of limits your success.

So, in 1972, they moved to Los Angeles. They had thought of New York, but decided on Los Angeles instead.

"That decision," Jim Abrahams says, "was purely because of the Southern California climate. We figured there was a good chance we might starve, and it's much more comfortable starving here because of the nice climate."

They started their theater — The Kentucky Fried Theater — and they didn't starve. They made money and friends, and, as they put it, "that gave us the confidence to write a movie."

They think it's a success because it's funny, not because it's a revue. And they believe that they can write funny stuff in a plot form, as well, and that's what they're trying now.

When movie companies go on location, they take all sorts of things with them — but never, until now, have they thought to bring along a computer terminal.

Paramount is the studio that's doing just that. Now, when the studio sends a company to a location, they lug along an IBM Model 3741 terminal, fitted in a custom-made aluminum case designed by the studio's special effects department.

And they use it to keep track of production costs — the figures go from the terminal to Paramount's studio in Hollywood and then to the corporate headquarters in New York. And back comes the answer, or the command.

The system was first used on "Bad News Bears In Breaking Training," and now the studio is using it for all its location filming. It means the end to those old haphazard days on location, when anything used to go.

Robert Reed will appear in "Susan" as a doctor who gives up a lucrative practice to open a clinic on the Indian reservation.

BING CROSBY

'A good round for Bing,' Mrs. Crosby

HILLSBOROUGH, Calif. (AP) — "I can't think of any better way for a golfer who sings for a living to finish the round," said an emotional Kathryn Crosby Friday, a few hours after her husband Bing died of a heart attack at a Spanish golf course.

Mrs. Crosby looked pale but smiled often as she recalled times she had spent recently with the famous crooner and actor. She spoke with reporters for about 25 minutes on the covered patio of the Crosby estate here.

"He's always been a very simple man," she said. "I think he is remembered in songs, isn't he? I think that's the way it should be."

Mrs. Crosby said that one of Crosby's fellow golfers told her by telephone that they had completed the game and the singer collapsed in the locker room.

"He told me that Bing had a very good round. I'd like that to be said," she said, smiling with tears in her eyes.

Her son Nathaniel sat next to his mother as she talked with reporters and held her hand beneath a marble patio table. His face and eyes were also red but he appeared composed.

She said Crosby apparently died of a massive heart attack and "he was in only a moment's distress, if any."

She said she last saw him Wednesday when she left London after working with him at a performance at the London Palladium, which he said was a test of his recovery from a back injury suffered in California during filming of a show commemorating his 50 years in show business.

Mrs. Crosby said he flew to Spain Thursday specifically to play golf and hunt, and she said he was looking forward enthusiastically to a chance for relaxation.

Although funeral plans are not complete, she said son Harry, 19, and Alan Fisher, the family's former butler, would fly to Spain from England to accompany Crosby's body back to Los Angeles where it probably will arrive Monday.

Funeral: only a low Mass

She said he probably will be buried in the family plot with his mother, father and first wife at a Los Angeles cemetery.

Mrs. Crosby said the family was together for the last time in London in late August to tape a Christmas television show.

"I think it's the best thing we've done," she said. "It was lovely. I think everyone will love it."

She talked softly but with animation about the family's time together in Britain.

Mrs. Crosby said her husband's funeral would be larger than he had wanted.

"I do know he feels very strongly about privacy and would like as quiet a service or memorial as possible. He wanted only the children and myself, but I think there are those who worshipped him for 40 years who have a right to be there," she said. They include Crosby's driver, business manager, agent and "the girls at the office. They're part of the family, too."

The funeral will be "a low Mass only," she said, with Bob Moonan, who had rehearsed the Crosby family's annual Christmas shows, playing the organ.

Neighbors and the parish priest at Our Lady Of Angels Church where Crosby regularly attended Mass described him as an unassuming man who never seemed unhappy.

'A man at ease in any American home,' says Carter

Celebrities mourn Bing's death

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer

Celebrities who shared Bing Crosby's life mourned his death Friday as the loss of an enduring musical giant.

"For all the roads he travelled in his memorable career, Bing Crosby remained a gentleman, proof that a great talent can be a good man despite the pressures of show business," said President Carter. "He lived a life his fans around the world felt was typically American; successfully and modest, casual but elegant. He revolutionized popular music singing the biggest hits of all time, yet was a man who would be at ease in any American home."

Perhaps most shaken by news of Crosby's death was Bob Hope, the friend who had shared a joking on-stage feud with Crosby for decades.

"I still don't believe it," Hope said in a telephone interview from New York's Waldorf Astoria. "I'm absolutely numb."

Hope and Crosby had recently signed contracts for a movie which would have reunited them with longtime costar Dorothy Lamour — "The Road to The Fountain of Youth."

"I don't believe it," Hope said. "I spoke to him on the telephone and he seemed in great spirits. He was playing golf and everything. I can't understand what happened. I guess he was more hurt in that fall than we realized."

He was referring to the tumble Crosby took from a Pasadena, Calif., stage into the orchestra pit during the taping of a TV special March 3.

Hope immediately canceled a benefit performance scheduled for Friday night in Morristown, N.J.

"I just can't get funny tonight," he said. "It's just not in me."

"There wasn't anyone in the theatre that would be missed as much as Bing Crosby not only as a performer but also as a person," commented Irving Berlin, the author of Crosby's best selling record "White Christmas." "There never was anyone who could do what Crosby did. He could play a priest, a drunk, a cowboy, and do straight acting too. He was a dancer and he did all these things so easily and made it look like anyone could do it."

"Crosby became a superstar in the late 1920s and remained a superstar," said comedian Milton Berle. "In fact, he will always be a superstar even though he's not with us."

Berle, who met Crosby in the 1920s while touring with the Paul Whiteman Band, remained a close friend. He was near tears as he spoke of Crosby's death.

"It's unfortunate that we have to lose this giant," Berle said. "But what is consoling to me is that even to this day, in 1977, he was still in demand. The sustainment of his popularity was really remarkable."

Of his own feelings, Berle said, "Every time I hear, 'White Christmas' now it will be a dark day for me."

Frank Sinatra, who followed Crosby's crooner tradition, said in a statement: "The death of Bing Crosby is almost more than I can take. He was the father of my career, the idol of my youth and a dear friend of my maturity.

Bing Crosby's life . . see Page 15

"Bing leaves a gaping hole in our music and in the lives of everybody who ever loved him. And that's just about everybody."

He added, "Thank God, we have his films and his records providing us with his warmth and his talent forever."

Fred Astaire, who starred in many films with Crosby, said, "Bing was a great friend of mine. I'm terribly upset about it. My whole family is, too ... It's a tragic thing, a great loss. I'm so sorry for all of us who valued him so much."

Comedian George Burns, a Crosby contemporary in show business, commented, "What can you say about Crosby? He was the original. He made up that kind of singing. He will be missed by the world and his voice will always be with us."

Zsa Zsa Gabor, who appeared in a Crosby film, said, "I am so heartbroken. What a loss.

"He was a big, big addition to our century," said Miss Gabor. "He was a big addition to our lives. You just have to listen to one of his songs and you feel happy."

In New York, CBS Chairman William S. Paley said, "Bing Crosby's death is a great loss to the entertainment world. He will be remembered as one of the best loved and most highly respected figures in theatrical history.

"He had a special place in our affections at CBS," said Paley. "But he belonged to the world and will be missed and mourned everywhere."

Maury Folladare, Crosby's Hollywood press agent for 31 years, said, "I'm not surprised; I'm shocked. It's the greatest loss I've ever had in my life."

Beat Dodgers 5-3

Three 'discontents' lead Yanks to victory

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three discontented Yankees — Mickey Rivers, Thurman Munson and Reggie Jackson — had the key hits as New York beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-3 in the third game of the 1977 World Series.

The victory gave the Yanks a 2-1 lead in games. Game No. 4 in the best-of-seven-series is scheduled for Saturday afternoon.

Rivers, who has demanded a trade from the Yankees, ended an 0-for-10 slump with three hits, including a double that ignited New York's three-run first inning. Munson drove him in with another double and Jackson drove in Munson with a single. An error and Lou Piniella's single brought Jackson home.

Munson had repeated his own trade demands before the game.

Panama leader link to drug traffic told

WASHINGTON (AP) — The director of the Drug Enforcement Administration said Friday that DEA files contain "a number of allegations, most of them hearsay," that Panama's leader, Gen. Omar Torrijos, and members of his family have engaged in international narcotics smuggling.

But DEA chief Peter B. Bensinger said the charges date back as far as 1971 and 1972, and said no current U.S. investigation of Torrijos is underway.

Allegations that Torrijos' brother, and perhaps the Panamanian leader himself, were involved in illicit narcotics have been mentioned recently by opponents of the Panama Canal, but no documentation has been provided.

However, as President Carter and Torrijos met Friday to clarify disputed points about the treaty's provisions for canal security after Panama takes it over, the drug issue showed signs of becoming another controversy.

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., said he would continue to press the DEA to give the Senate files containing drug-dealing allegations about Torrijos and other top Panamanian officials.

Demonstration broken up

Argentine police jail 150 women

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Heavily armed Argentine police broke up a demonstration by about 350 women Friday demanding to know the fate of missing relatives. About 150 of the women were arrested in front of the Congress building.

Several foreign and Argentine reporters and photographers covering the demonstration were also taken into custody and later released.

No injuries were reported in the early afternoon swoop.

The women demonstrators are relatives of some of the thousands of leftists and dissidents who have disappeared in Argentina in recent years, the victims of armed kidnap squads. Security officials say the abductions are the work of right-wing bands, but the women and some diplomats and human rights leaders believe security agents are involved.

The women had gathered outside the building to protest the abductions and demand the military government release information on their missing relatives.

After about 350 women had gathered, 50 policemen wearing riot helmets and carrying automatic weapons and tear gas rifles moved against them, shouting "Leave the area." The policemen hit some of the women with the butts of their weapons.

Some of the women ran but most stayed together in a tight group.

Eventually the police isolated about 150 women and reporters on a side street. Five empty city buses pulled up and they were put aboard.

Among the reporters arrested were Sally Chardy of NBC Radio, Diane Page of United Press International, David Dow of CBS Television and Gus Bono of the Wall Street Journal. Associated Press photographer Eduardo Blasc, an Argentine, was arrested separately and taken away in a police car.

4 hijackers set Sunday as deadline

DUBAI, United Arab Emirates (AP) — Four hijackers of a West German jetliner threatened to blow up the plane with 87 hostages, including 11 beauty queens, unless their demands for ransom and the release of "comrades" were met by Sunday.

The terrorists, two Arabic-speaking men and two women said to be armed with pistols and hand grenades, issued an ultimatum Friday addressed to the West German government demanding $15 million in ransom and freedom for prisoners in West Germany and Turkey, officials said.

A text of the ultimatum delivered to the French news agency AFP in Paris set a deadline of 4 a.m. EDT Sunday.

The hijackers made known their demands after ordering their commandeered Lufthansa jetliner to this Persian Gulf sheikdom after fuel stops at Rome, Cyprus and Bahrain.

The German government promptly dispatched Hans-Juergen Wischnewski of Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's office to Dubai to negotiate with the hijackers. The governnment also set up a "crisis staff" in Bonn.

Bing's death: a shock to the world

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Bing Crosby was one of the rare indelible figures of the American scene who you thought would never disappear.

His death on a Madrid golf course Friday shocks millions of people the world over with the intensity of losing a member of the family. No show business figure, not even the late Elvis Presley, reached so many persons in so many ways.

For nearly half a century his smooth-as-polished-oak baritone was heard throughout America, first as a member of the jazzy Rhythm Boys with Paul Whiteman's orchestra, then as solo singer for whom the word crooner was invented. His records sold more than any other singer's, his Paramount films were world-wide hits, his radio show was top-rated.

Bing never seemed at ease with his fame.

He never had the driving intensity of Bob Hope. Perhaps that was because Hope slugged his way up through vaudeville and Broadway. Bing also had rocky beginnings as a bandsinger and star of two-reel Mack Sennett shorts. But his manner seemed as easy-going as the "boo-boo-boo" of his early songs.

The on-screen nonchalance faded in his personal life. His first marriage to actress Dixie Lee was rocky, and his troubles with her contributed to his desire for privacy. When they married, she was a bigger star than he was, and her gayety seemed to vanish when she assumed the role of Mrs. Bing Crosby and mother of their four sons.

Her drinking sent Bing into a dark period during which he was aloof and difficult.

Dixie Crosby died in 1952, and in 1957 he married a Columbia Pictures actress, Kathryn Grant, who was 30 years younger. They had their own family of a daughter and two sons and moved out of the Hollywood scene to Hillsborough, just south of San Francisco.

"Kathryn was a good influence on Bing," says a close family friend. "She got him out of his shell, and the kids kept him young, too."

After a period in which Bing seemed content to play golf and fish off Baja California, he reactivated his career. He sang at concerts in Los Angeles, New York, London and elsewhere, usually joined by his wife and one or more of their children.

He was planning his first movie in 11 years, hitting the "Road" once more with Hope and Dorothy Lamour.

Despite his half-century of prominence, the interior Crosby remained obscured. No one really claimed to know him, not even Hope.

Starred in more than 70 movies

Crosby was planning another 'Road' film

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bing Crosby starred in more than 70 movies during a film career that began with the "King of Jazz" in 1930. And before he died in Spain on Friday, he was planning yet another film.

His last movie was "Stagecoach" in 1966. But he and Bob Hope were working on one more in their "Road" series, the eighth, called "The Road to The Fountain of Youth."

"Just yesterday we had resolved all the contract details for the picture we were going to do with Dotty (Lamour)," Hope said in a telephone interview Friday.

Crosby won an Oscar for his role as a priest in "Going My Way" in 1944, but he often said his favorite film was "High Society," in which he costarred with Grace Kelly and Frank Sinatra in 1956.

Here is a partial list of the films he made:

"King of Jazz," 1930; "The Big Broadcast of 1932"; "College Humor," 1933; "Going Hollywood"; "Too Much Harmony"; "We're Not Dressing," 1934; "She Loves Me Not"; "Here Is My Heart"; "Mississippi," 1935;

"The Big Broadcast of 1936"; "Anything Goes," 1936; "Rhythm on the Range," 1937; "Pennies From Heaven," 1938; "Doctor Rhythm," 1938; "Sing You Sinners," 1938; "East Side of Heaven," 1939; "Paris Honeymoon," 1939;

"Waikiki Wedding"; "Double Or Nothing"; "The Star Maker"; "Road To Singapore," 1939; "If I Had My Way," 1940; "Rhythm on The River," 1940; "Road to Zanzibar," 1941; "Birth of the Blues," 1941; "Road to Morocco," 1942;

"Holiday Inn," 1942; "Dixie," 1943; "Star Spangled Rhythm," 1943; "Going My Way," 1944, Academy Award; "The Bells of St. Mary's," 1945; "Road to Utopia," 1945; "Blue Skies," 1946; "Here Come The Waves";

"Welcome Stranger," 1947; "Road to Rio," 1947; "The Emperor Waltz," 1948; "Duffy's Tavern"; "A Connecticut Yankee at King Arthur's Court," 1949; "Mr. Music," 1950; "Variety Girl"; "Riding High," 1950;

In accidental slaying of boy, 7

Pomonan to be arraigned on murder, assault charges

Pomonan Roosevelt Williams, 25, Friday was ordered into Pomona Superior Court on Oct. 28 for arraignment on murder and felonious assault charges related to the accidental slaying by police of a 7-year-old boy during Williams' arrest on June 10.

Williams, wounded himself by some of the bullets fired during his arrest outside 799 La Verne Ave. that night, lay stretched out on a hospital gurney when Pomona Municipal Court Judte Thomas F. Nuss bound him over for trial.

Williams faces a second preliminary hearing Monday on an unrelated robbery charge. He remained under treatment at the County-USC Medical Center's jail ward.

The victim in the incident was Toby James Reed, who was struck by a police bullet fired at Williams. The child was a passenger in a car passing the scene of the shooting incident.

Police had been sent to the neighborhood of 756 Toluca Ave. to investigate the complaint that a man in a house was firing a pistol.

Officers said Williams ran from the house, firing a pistol.

They testified that during a chase through the neighborhood, he turned and pointed the weapon at them and both fired.

In binding Williams over for trial, Judge Nuss rejected a defense motion by court-appointed attorney Holly Graham that the murder charge against Williams be dismissed.

The incident was investigated by the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department because of involvement of Pomona police.

Letter-writers at church battle pornography

People using Church of All Faiths stationery have been conducting a letter-writing campaign against pornography.

At least 85 letters were received at Pomona City Hall in the Friday morning mail, addressed to the attention of Mayor Charles Bader. All opposed pornography.

All the letters were signed.

One such letter stated, "It is a shame that some people go for porno movies and books. I for one am against all of this. Please vote against this."

Another suggested that all pornography be banned in "the fair city of Pomona."

Mayor Charles Bader, who reported he has been giving each letter his individual attention, said Friday that "the City Council and I totally agree with the desires of many citizens to reduce or eliminate the number of massages parlors and dirty book stores in the city."

"We've been pursuing a program to eliminate these establishments for several years with some success," he continued.

"It appears," he said, "that the Church of All Faiths was organized to conduct bingo games. I support the efforts of those who would limit pornography in Pomona, but I would not use their efforts as a means to support seven-day bingo."

Officials of the Church of All Faiths, 3240 N. Garey Ave., Pomona, have been protesting the adoption of an ordinance limiting the playing of bingo by a nonprofit organization to one night a week.

The ordinance goes into effect in about a month.

CONTINUED REPAIR

Barbara Greenwood Arroyo Bungalow marks first year at Casa Primera

The Barbara Greenwood Arroyo Kindergarten Bungalow recently celebrated its first anniversary at its new location on the Casa Primera property, McKinley and Park avenues.

The bungalow, the oldest remaining structure in the Pomona school district, was moved from its former site at the Arroyo Elementary one year ago. Volunteers have already made considerable improvements and modifications to the structure.

Officials estimate $18,000 has been spent to move, roof, shingle and paint the building. June Hyman is chairman of a program to save the 70-year-old structure.

Students from the Baldy View Regional Occupational Program (ROP) are doing interior modifications, painting, wiring and plumbing for vocational training.

Plans call for the area to be landscaped with $1,900 obtained from the city of Pomona, with another $600 going to supply new windows.

Fencing of the building is expected to begin month as a donation from the Pomona Jaycees.

The Los Angeles County Museum of Natural History has designated the building to receive the status of a historical landmark in the Historical Register.

Still seeking contributions, the committee needs $3,500 for plumbing and hookups and $1,700 for electrical rewiring and fixtures.

Persons wanting to make "birthday" contributions may send their donations to June Hymen, care of the Committee for the Restoration of the Barbara Greenwood Kindergarten Bungalow, 264 Ford Ave., Pomona, 91768.

Supervisors oppose joining Social Security

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

San Bernardino County supervisors voted unanimously this week to oppose federal legislation aimed at forcing county, state and local governments to join the nation's Social Security system.

A bill pending before Congress, introduced by Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., includes provisions to require all state and local governments to join the Social Security system to bolster its bleak economic picture.

County employees voted in 1972 to leave the federal Social Security system and start their own retirement program. The county has not contributed to Social Security since 1976.

Supervisors indicated they opposed rejoining the federal system due to fears it wasn't financially stable.

In a letter being sent to area legislators, Supervisor Robert Townsend, board chairman, urges opposition to any law attempting to force local governments into Social Security. He said it would cost county taxpayers $6 million per year to help support the system.

He also noted that county employees would probably be opposed to making Social Security contributions.

Supervisor James Mayfield of Apple Valley said, "I believe the intent of Congress is to bail out a system that hasn't been amortized too well."

Supervisor Dennis Hansberger of Yucaipa said, "I wouldn't mind personally getting back into the Social Security System if it was run acturarily sound."

Officials estimate that if the federal legislation is successful, county taxpayers will be faced with a 25 cent per $100 assessed valuation increase on their property tax bills.

County employees are presently covered for retirement benefits under a private joint employee-employer contribution plan.

Pomona council will allow sign

The Pomona City Council has overruled Planning Commission denials of a sign plan for a music store and a variance to reduce off-street parking, but supported three other appeals.

Bill Moore, representing Music Plus which will open a business at 1805 Indian Hill Blvd., informed the City Council the Planning Commission had rejected a request for a 17-foot-high sign and had placed a 10-foot limit on it.

Although Planning Director Sanford Sorensen explained the 10-foot height limit for monument signs was commission policy, Mayor Charles Bader noted the Gemco store sign, a free-standing sign nearby, is 75 feet high. The council then ruled in favor of Music Plus.

The council overruled a commission denial of a variance request by Victor Romo, who asked the required off-street parking be reduced to permit expansion of his restaurant at 975-977 S. Garey Ave.

The commission had ruled there were no exceptional or extraordinary circumstances involved with the property.

By a 3-2 vote, the council upheld a commission denial of a request by C. Allen Braswell for a conditional use permit to develop a day care nursery at 751 Weber St.

The proposed dome structure which Braswell said he would build "is totally out of character with the neighborhood," the commission contended.

Councilman G. Stanton Selby said the project would impact the neighborhood.

Fifteen longtime residents petitioned the city not to allow construction of a 10-dwelling complex of four duplexes and two single dwellings at 1208 W. 11th St.

The commission had said the development would create an adverse impact on an already overcrowded school area, and there is an overabundance of apartment units in the city.

The City Council agreed, 5-0, and upheld the commission denial.

The council also upheld the Planning Commission's denial of a $2.4 million 160-unit apartment complex at 1050-94 E. Ninth St.

The commission had said a revised plot plan did not reflect any changes in the proposed density of 33.6 units an acre. The zoning on the property allows up to 43 units an acre, but the city general plan calls for only 15 units an acre.

Sophisticated network

Roadside phones: Lifeline in an emergency

By TONY AULT
PB Staff Writer

It's a cold, rainy night on a lonely stretch of freeway when a shaken motorist picks up an emergency call box phone and reports a serious traffic accident just ahead on the roadway.

The moment the phone is lifted from the receiver, millions of dollars worth of sophisticated equipment clicks into operation inside a small building in Los Angeles. This serves to insure the caller that help is only minutes away.

What seems like hours may only be seconds until the calm, but firm, operator answers, "Highway Patrol. What is your call box number?"

Once the number is given — and often before the caller can blurt out the nature of the emergency — a picture appears on a television screen before the operator which gives the call box location, the nearest cross-street, and telephone numbers of the nearest fire station, police department, tow service, ambulance company, road maintenance shop, and highway patrol office.

When the operator learns the nature of the problem — such as a traffic accident involving injuries — this information is transferred to another television viewer manned by a dispatcher with direct communications with patrol officers in the area.

Once a patrol officer has been dispatched to the location, other emergency services are notified by telephone. Usually, within a matter of a few minutes, all necessary emergency equipment is at the scene.

Officials report 3,000 emergency freeway call boxes have been installed along major freeways in the Los Angeles area. All are connected directly to the California Highway Patrol's communications center, 437 N. Vermont Ave., Los Angeles.

The center is staffed by trained personnel who monitor and dispatch for the patrol's 10 area stations, including the Ontario office which serves the valley.

The dispatcher assigned for the valley also serves the Baldwin Park area. Both areas have an average of 30 patrol cars on duty. But the number may increase during weekends, holidays and in severe weather.

In addition, the center has computer hookups with state and federal investigation agencies and the Department of Motor Vehicles.

These agencies assist officers to quickly identify drivers, vehicles and other motorized equipment being cited. Within moments, an officer may receive information about a stopped driver, his traffic and criminal records, and if the vehicle is stolen.

Most often, this information is relayed through the communications system even before the officer pulls over the suspected offender.

Jerry Henness, the center's day watch commander, said a relatively new computer system called the CRT has increased the center's efficiency in dispatching emergency services and field information.

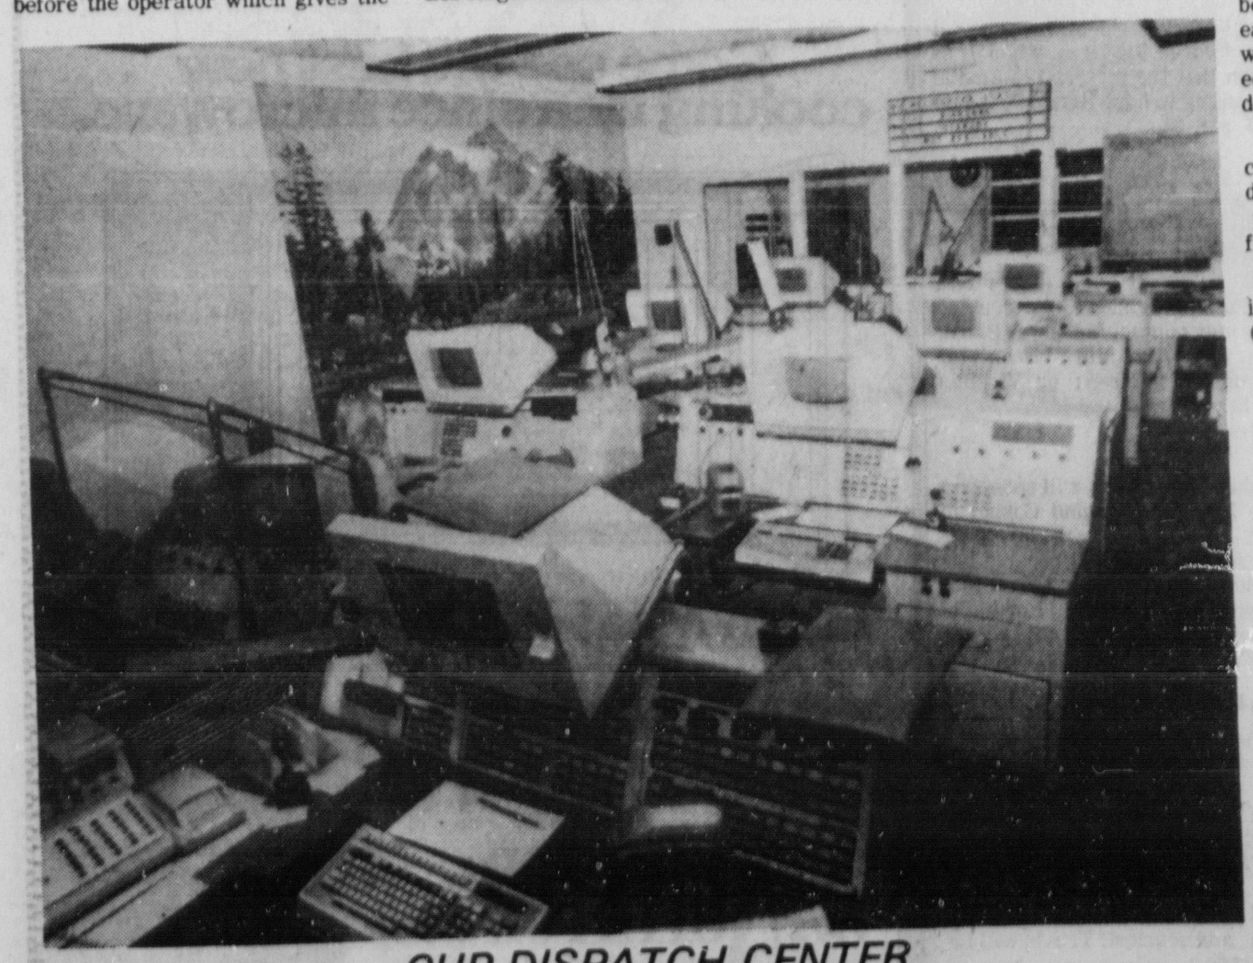

He believes the system will become even more efficient once it has a direct hook-up with call box telephones so it becomes activated once the receivers are lifted from the hooks.

Officials are also planning to install lights on the freeway call boxes to make them more visible.

Should the communications center be destroyed or put out of service, each of the area stations can operate with their own communications equipment and dispatchers, he added.

Another service offered by the center is to assist families of accident victims or the drivers locate their vehicles after they are towed from an accident scene.

Persons may also obtain weather information by calling the center at (213) 736-3001.

CHP DISPATCH CENTER

Hundreds of California Highway Patrol cars in the Los Angeles area, including Ontario, are dispatched to the scene of accidents and other emergencies through these consoles at the main California Highway Patrol Communications Center on Vermont Street in Los Angeles.

Better understanding

Chino police, community find new program helpful

By TONY AULT
PB Staff Writer

For the past 10 months, a group of Chino residents and Chino police have worked together to better understand each others beliefs, attitudes, problems and professions as they relate to the community.

And because of the program, members of the Chino Police Community Relations Committee (CPCRC) have developed a greater awareness of the community's needs, established new community programs, and improved on proven citizen-police programs.

Under the leadership of Dan Bruno, a Chino businessman, the CPCRC coordinates activities of the Community Against Thieves — Catch a Thief (CAT) program, the Rumor Control Center, the Robbery Program, Communications Program for Senior Citizens, Neighborhood Watch, and the CB Radio Program.

In addition, its members have pledged citizens assistance during any major emergencies or disasters.

Police Capt. Tony Linza serves as liasion officer between the committee and police force. Pennie Parrott is committee vice chairman and Riva Salter is the secretary.

The CPCRC developed about 10 months ago when Police Chief Jerry Doyle — following a series of serious incidents in the city — felt the need of police to reach into the community and the need of citizens to reach into the police department, he noted.

Doyle asked Bruno to invite residents from various city sectors to assist the police force in its crime prevention efforts and also relate to officers what most concerned the citizens.

The committee was formed by representatives from schools, civic, social and government groups, business people and laborers. An effort was then made to bring the members and police together.

Committee members accompanied officers during their shift briefings, rode with them in police cars, had lunch together and spent off-duty time with them.

The result was a better understanding between citizens and officers. Civilians became more open with officers, and officers were more open with the citizens. This allowed constructive criticisms to enter the relationship, said Linza.

Meanwhile, committee members worked to improve the CAT program and trained to present the program to community groups.

Members spent nearly 30 hours of classroom time learning police identification procedures, how to use marking pencils, how to remember descriptions, and what to do should they find themselves to be victims of crimes.

The committee members printed signs and posters that proclaimed, "Use a Gun — Go to Jail." These were placed in many stores and business offices in the city as part of the Robbery Program.

Members assisted other residents to establish Neighborhood Watch programs. They assisted block captains to learn how to identify, recognize and relay information to police about suspected burglars or other criminals in their neighborhoods.

The program has promoted a plan where the skills of retired senior citizens are used to help police in various programs. They are assisting police in filing and recording various information and sending mailers and information to other citizens.

The committee is now working to organize citizen band radio operators to assist police by reporting suspected crimes and emergencies.

Most police cars are equipped with citizens' band radios, thus allowing police to monitor channel 9 for emergency calls.

And the Chino Rotary Club plans to purchase a base radio for the police station that will allow even greater emergency monitoring within the city.

Committee members recently assisted the U. S. Forest Service transport supplies and provide transportation for firefighters congregating at Camp Prado to fight a series of major forest fires in the state.

The committee has made "great gains" with senior citizens and also Mexican nationals who live in the U. S. illegally to call police in the event of crimes, said Bruno.

"They have learned they should not fear the police as they do, or once did in old Mexico," he added.

Linza praised the committee for providing a better relationship between residents of predominately Latin sectors of Chino and police.

Residents wanting more information about the committee or its activities may contact the Chino police station or write to Dan Bruno chairman, Chino Police Community Relations Committee, P.O. Box 548 Chino, Calif.

Aggravated assaults showed an 18.4 percent increase, auto thefts rose 10.1 percent, and burglaries were up 4.2 percent.

The largest decrease was in grand thefts, down by 21 percent, followed by robberies, down 14.1 percent.

Slaght's statistics showed there have been 17 murders this year through July, compared to 12 the same period last year.

Other crime categories include: forcible rapes, 49 so far this year compared to 28 last year; robberies, 367 to 427 last year; aggravated assaults, 457 to 386; burglaries, 2,275 to 2,187; grand thefts, 1,816 to 2,307; and auto thefts, 558 to 507.

Hearings are scheduled for Edison rate increase

Public hearings will begin in December, and a pre-hearing conference will be held Monday on the application of Southern California Edison Co. for a $316 million annual rate increase, said the California Public Utilities Commission.

Edison's application, filed Oct. 7, requests a 14.5 percent increase to become effective in 1979.

Bills for a typical residential usage of 500 kilowatthours a month would go up from $22.39 at present to $27.62. The PUC has scheduled seven days in December throughout Edison's service area to receive testimony and statements from the utility's customers. They are:

Los Angeles, Tuesday, Dec. 6, 9:30 a.m. in the commission's courtroom, State Office Building, 107 S. Broadway, and San Bernardino, Tuesday, Dec. 20, at 10 a.m. in the San Bernardino Convention Center, 303 N. E St.

Dates for public hearings on the technical aspects of the case will be discussed at the pre-hearing conference beginning at 10 a.m. Monday at the Los Angeles courtroom.

Other preliminaries to be discussed are the identification and positions of the various entities which will participate in the technical phases of the hearings and determination of what specific areas will be at issue, and identification of future witnesses and the scope of their testimony.

State law hampers probe of fatality

By BOB SWETNAM JR.
PB Staff Writer

Sexual assault and subsequent death of a mental patient at a San Bernardino County mental ward recently has touched off a controversy over a state law that prohibits police from investigating medical records of crime suspects or victims.

Lena Henderson, 54, of Victorville died Sunday after being sexually attacked by another patient at Ward B of the County Mental Health Unit in San Bernardino, said investigators.

Police investigation of the incident, however, was hampered by a law that prohibits hospital employees from answering any questions concerning the mental state or medical history of any patient, whether suspect or victim in a crime.

Three hospital employees were witnesses to the attack, which was described by a deputy district attorney as "horrendous."

They refused — under order by hospital administrators — to answer any questions concerning the mental state of the attacker or why he was at the hospital, however.

Arrested at the scene Sunday for investigation of murder was Robert Douglas Hays, 54, of Fontana. Hays was apparently taken to the mental hospital the day of the attack by a Fontana sheriff deputy who saw him wandering the streets acting strangely, said a spokesman.

A chief trial deputy, Donald Feld, said Wednesday that murder charges will be filed against Hays, but that investigators' efforts at piecing together the case are still being hampered by state law and county officials.

Police originally learned of the case from the coroner's office. Hospital administrators never did call police.

"When you have a crazy guy who kills somebody, we'd like to know something about why he was there, why he might have done it," said Feld.

"We don't have any medical records of the victim because she was a patient. Whenever we get to a question relative to the state of mind of the suspect, they (the witnesses) won't talk.

"I don't blame the medical center officials. They are doing what the state law tells them to do."

The lawyer said the state law, Section 5328.4 of the Welfare and Institutions Code, had seriously impeded the police investigation into the matter.

The county coroner's office was reported having trouble getting any medical history on the victim, which made their autopsy report difficult, said Feld.

Coroner Bob Hill confirmed that officials had denied pathologists access to medical records, but said after further talks the coroner's office was able to get the information it needed to complete the autopsy.

Cause of death was listed as a homicide. Mrs. Henderson was reported to have died of a heart attack, which resulted from trauma of a sexual assault.

Section 5328.4 of the Welfare and Institutions Code, instituted in 1970, makes it a misdemeanor offense for hospital employees to reveal any information concerning medical and mental states of patients.

The law does provide for law enforcement access to information about crimes committed by or against patients, but limits such access to "information directly relating to the factual circumstances of the commission of the enumerated offenses and shall not include any information relating to the mental state of the patient or the circumstances of his voluntary or involuntary admission, confinement or treatment."

Andrew G. Robertson, director of the county department of mental health, said officials are allowed to cooperate with police investigations "to a certain degree," but they were required to protect a patient's right to confidentiality.

"We have a duty to protect a patient from undue publicity," he said.

Staff on duty at the hospital Sunday acted under standard hospital procedures, the mental health administrator said.

"The officials on duty at the time followed specific instructions."

Asked why doctors had never called police after the woman died, Robertson said, "We're not experts in crime. We called the coroner. He is the one to determine if a crime has been committed.

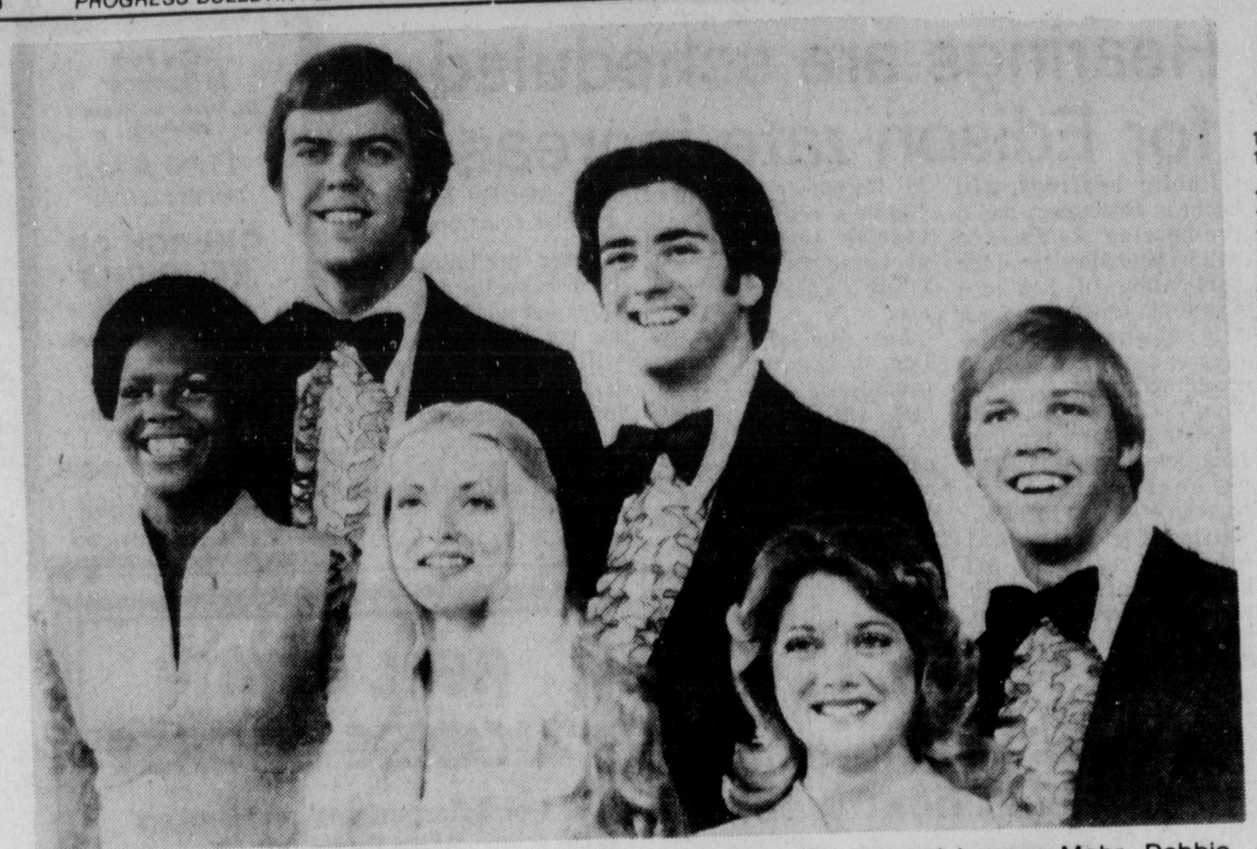

Robertson said the hospital had cooperated with police in every way they could under the law.

He said the mental health department would not provide any records concerning the mental health or medical history of either the suspect or victim unless a court of law orders them to do so.

His topic will be "The Fine Art of Giving Ourselves." Serving as liurgist will be the Rev. G. Merrill Lenox, the church's interim senior minister.

Dr. Dickinson was educated at University of Southern Mississippi, Candler School of Theology and at the School of Theology at Claremont from which he received both the doctor of religion and doctor of philosophy degrees. After serving pastorates in Mississippi, he held various positions with the School of Theology at Claremont before promotion to his present post.

The Y League at St. Luke Lutheran Church in Claremont will hold a meeting at the home of youth counselors, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Scheuermann, Sunday from 2 to 4 p.m. Weather permitting, swimming will follow. All high school and college-age youth are invited.

A youth chorus, directed by David Ramirez, are meeting each Monday at 7:30 p.m. and is composed of high school and college-age students.

Young people interested in signing with this group may come to Monday's practice or call the church office at 624-8898 for further information.

Church's surplus allocated

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — After meeting its expenses for the last year, St. Chrisopher's Church, a middle-income Roman Catholic parish of about 900 families, found that it had a surplus of $40,000 in the bank.

"What should we do with it?" the Rev. James T. Smith, the pastor, phrased the question the parish council raised. "Should we keep it in the bank when there is so much need around the world?"

They decided to spend half of it for the poor overseas. After getting advice from the head of Catholic Relief Services, Bishop Edwin B. Broderick, $20,000 from the parish will go to provide some 5,000 poor farmers in rural Ecuador with pure drinking water in their villages, and to help set up a marketing cooperative in the famine-gripped Bawku district of Ghana.

CHICAGO (AP) — Pollster George Gallup Jr. says American religious leaders are alarmingly ill-informed about changing religious attitudes and have "only a vague notion" of people's actual religious concerns.

"We know more about what breakfast foods people like and why than we do about the spritual health of the American people," he said in the October issue of the U.S. Catholic, published by the Claretian Fathers. He said his new religion research center hoped to provide data that would give religious leaders a "realistic look" at current religious factors in society.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The board of directors of the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association has voted unanimously to begin making public its annual, audited financial reports, beginning at the end of this year.

It will cover affairs of the BGEA and its affiliated organizations. The step was taken at Graham's recommendation.

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) — The Baptist World Alliance, representing 29 million Baptists in this country and abroad, has set Oct. 23 as a "Day of Prayer for Peace" in response to requests from church people in many nations.

It is to be an annual observance, on the Sunday preceding the anniversary of the founding of the United Nations.

Bible translation program slated

Wycliffe Associates will present "An Evening With Wycliffe," a special Bible translation program and fellowship dinner at Griswold's in Claremont Monday at 7 p.m.

The purpose is to encourage interest in and support for Wycliffe Bible Translators. Wycliffe, an interdenominational mission of over 3,500 workers, specializes in Bible translation for people who live in remote areas, who still speak unwritten languages, and for whom the Bible is an unknown book.

Wycliffe teams are currently working in over 600 languages in 32 countries. Their goal is to translate the New Testament into the native tongues. Translators live among primitive peoples, learn their languages, develop alphabets, and teach reading and writing. Upgrading health and agriculture and teaching simple industries are also part of their outreach.

The Claremont program will feature a missionary who will share his experience on the field and a new multimedia, "Feed My Sheep," which explains how Christians are helping to complete the great Bible translation task.

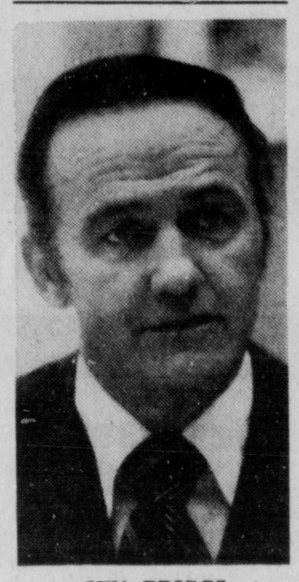

For reservations, persons may call Mr. and Mrs. Tim Painter at 985-8639.

Baptists will hear Sen. Briggs

Sen. John V. Briggs of Fullerton will speak at Central Baptist Church, Pomona, Sunday at 9:30 a.m. during "Save Our Children Day."

He is a leader in the fight to keep homosexual teachers out of classrooms.

"Faith-Song of Britain and Eire" is the theme for the fall folk worship Sunday at 10:30 a.m. at the La Verne Church of the Brethren.

Songs and hymns of Britain and Ireland, which were used in church services attended by minister Leland Wilson and his wife, Patricia, on their two-month visit to the British Isles, will be featured.

Also scheduled are readings from works by C.S. Lewis, William Barclay, J.B. Phillips and Leslie Weatherhead.

Sanctuary choir, an instrumental ensemble and soloists taking part in the service are under the direction of Steve Engle, church music director.

At 7 p.m. in the fellowship hall, the church council will convene its fall session. Agenda items include the 1978 budget presentation, elections of church officers, board and commission members and a final vote for several constitutional amendments.

Montclair Unitarian Society

Guest minister Rev. Jim Dace will speak on "The Perversions of Personal Growth" Sunday at the 10:30 a.m. service of the Unitarian Society of Pomona Valley, Montclair.

Claremont Calvary Chapel

Pastor Marco Alvarez said the Calvary Chapel of Claremont will show the 10-episode film series "How Should We Then Live?" at 6:30 p.m. each Sunday starting this week.

This series was written by and features Dr. Francis Schaeffer whom Time magazine called "a missionary to the intellectuals."

In the series, Dr. Schaeffer poses these questions:

Why isn't it safe to walk our streets at night? Why is there more violence on one hand and an ever increasing authoritarianism on the other? What is happening to our accepted human freedoms? Should we throw up our hand and give in? If not, — how should we then live?

Chino First Baptist

Ken Merrick, president of the men's Fishers of Men Fellowship at Chino First Baptist Church, said the fellowship has planned a program for all the men members and friends of the church tonight, beginning at 6:30 with a watermelon feed.

In addition to the M-2 Sponsor presentation, the program will include a showing of slides of a recent conference which was attended by the men of the church. Paul Stouff, one of the newer members, will give a personal testimony during the evening.

Pomona Unitarian Society

Joe Bassi, a lay member of the Unitarian Society of Pomona Valley will speak on the U.N. at 10:30 a.m. Sunday at the Church.

Though the U.N. has done much good in many fields, Mr. Bassi will emphasize the changing world which makes it necessary for the U.N. to take a greater part in our lives.

Subjects explored will include: who will control the huge resources of the oceans; who owns the clouds? Who has the right to modify the weather? Can the Russians be permitted to reverse the flow of three large Siberian rivers? What about population control? What about stocking of grains? What about arms sales? Can 11 percent of the worlds population (U.S. and USSR) be allowed to dominate arms policy and the nuclear race?

Higher minimum wage: justice or mere folly?

WASHINGTON (AP) — It started at a quarter an hour 40 years ago, and now the minimum wage is about to go to $2.65, with economists and politicians still arguing among themselves over its real impact on the job market.

The question that hasn't been answered yet is whether a higher minimum wage is justice or folly; a boon to the working poor or a menace to their jobs.

There is no shortage of studies, dissertations and analyses of that issue. They abound in the fine print of the congressional debate, on both sides.

Given the facts of life at the supermarket, the current minimum wage of $2.30 an hour doesn't add up to much of a living for anybody who makes it and no more. It adds up to $4,784 a year.

Even at the increased rate, the minimum will be lower than the government's poverty line for an urban family of four. The minimum wage earner would get $5,512. In 1978, the poverty level is expected to be about $6,200.

That would seem to make it all very simple: boost the rate and help the low-paid, unskilled worker. But there's more to it, for as the cost of unskilled labor goes up, so does the prospect that employers will decide to make do with fewer workers.

Economist Edward M. Gramlich assessed that risk in a paper published by the Brookings Institution:

"As the minimum wage is increased beyond its historical range of 40 to 50 per cent of the median wage, more and more workers confront the grab-bag combination of a higher wage but a reduced probability of having a job."

The younger the worker, the worse it gets. Unemployment in September stood at 6.9 per cent of the labor force — but at 18.1 per cent for teen-agers, and at more than twice that for black teen-agers.

For all their differences on the broader question of minimum wage effects, the economists generally agree that it doesn't help the youthful jobseeker. He's more likely to be unable to find a job, or to lose one, than to get the higher hourly wage.

The liberal Republican Ripon Society likens it to attempts at healing by bloodletting.

"Political Washington is about to administer to young Americans a remedy just as pernicious as medieval bloodletting," the Ripon analysis said. For while the law can raise the wage, it can't raise worker productivity. And if the price of an hour's work exceeds the product, the job isn't likely to last.

By a single vote, the House rejected an amendment that would have set a special wage rate, below the adult minimum, for workers under the age of 20. The Senate rejected four attempts to write in differentials so as to make it easier for young people to get or hold jobs.

Sponsors of the bill argued that there are better ways to generate work for unemployed youths. They also contended that cut rates for young workers would lead some employers to hire them instead of adults.

"It is unjust and discriminatory to assign a value less than the minimum wage to any person's labor," said Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J.

But it is also unjust for somebody who wants to work to be earning nothing at all, for lack of a job.

But those aren't the only issues involved. The minimum wage is a factor in the welfare equation. If welfare pays better than work, the administration's reform package is not going to accomplish much.

The arguments will continue, on those and other points, even though the law is set for at least three years, and perhaps four. The House and the Senate agree that the rate should go to $2.65 an hour next year. The Senate bill would increase it in stages to $3.40 in 1981. The House version would raise the minimum to $3.05 in 1980. Congressional negotiators are working out the differences now.

For the economists, there's never a last word. If there was, it should be assigned to the First National Bank of Chicago, whose economic researchers report:

"Every few years, the United States goes through the ritual of adjusting minimum wage laws. And just as regularly, the business and labor communities engage in exaggerated discussions about either the dire consequences or marvelous benefits that can be expected ....

"In fact, increases in the minimum wage have typically been quite modest, compared with increases in other wages or prices, and the results have been fairly innocuous."

Illegal aliens shot

SAN DIEGO (AP) - The death of two men identified as illegal alien farmworkers brought to eight the number of such persons murdered in San Diego County this year, authorities said.

Gabriel Baca Esquivel and Leonore Chavez Rodriguez, both 36, of San Jeronimo Municipio de Quiroga in the Mexican state of Michoacan, were found shot with a small caliber weapon in a tomato field Wednesday night, sheriff's deputies reported.

A sheriff's spokesman said an arrest in the case was imminent, but declined to provide further details.

Esquivel was dead when deputies arrived, while Rodriguez died later at Tri-City hospital, the sheriff's department said.

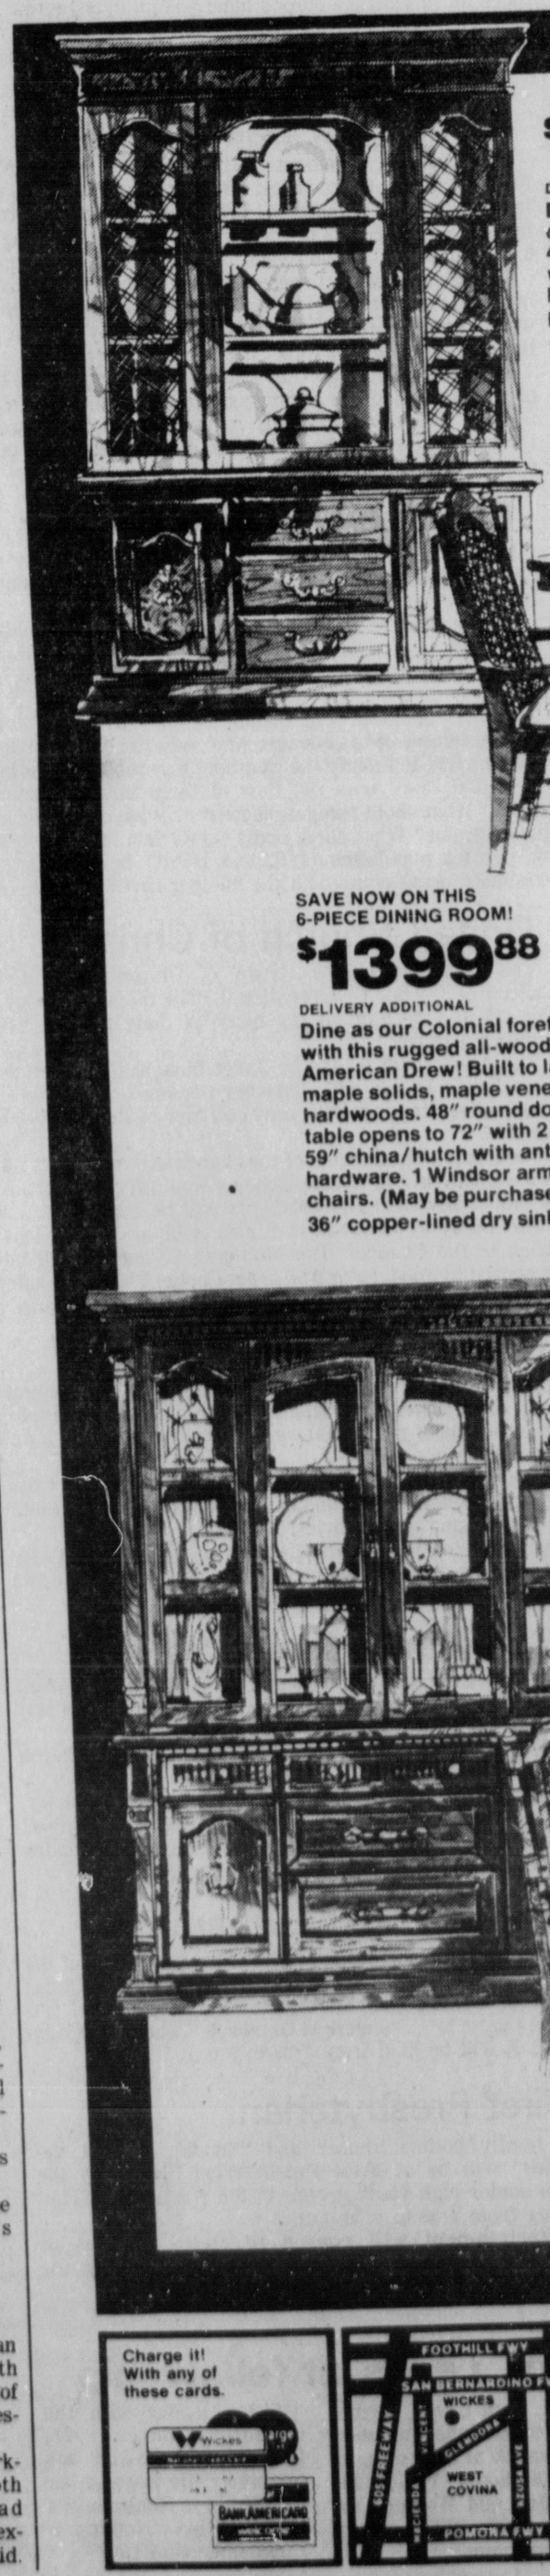

Plant fire burns man

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 20-year-old employe at a North Hollywood plastics fabrication plant has been seriously burned in a plant fire and explosion authorities said.

Enrique Landeros of North Hollywood was reported in serious condition Tuesday at Sherman Oaks Burn Center with burns over 22 per cent of his body, a hospital spokeswoman said.

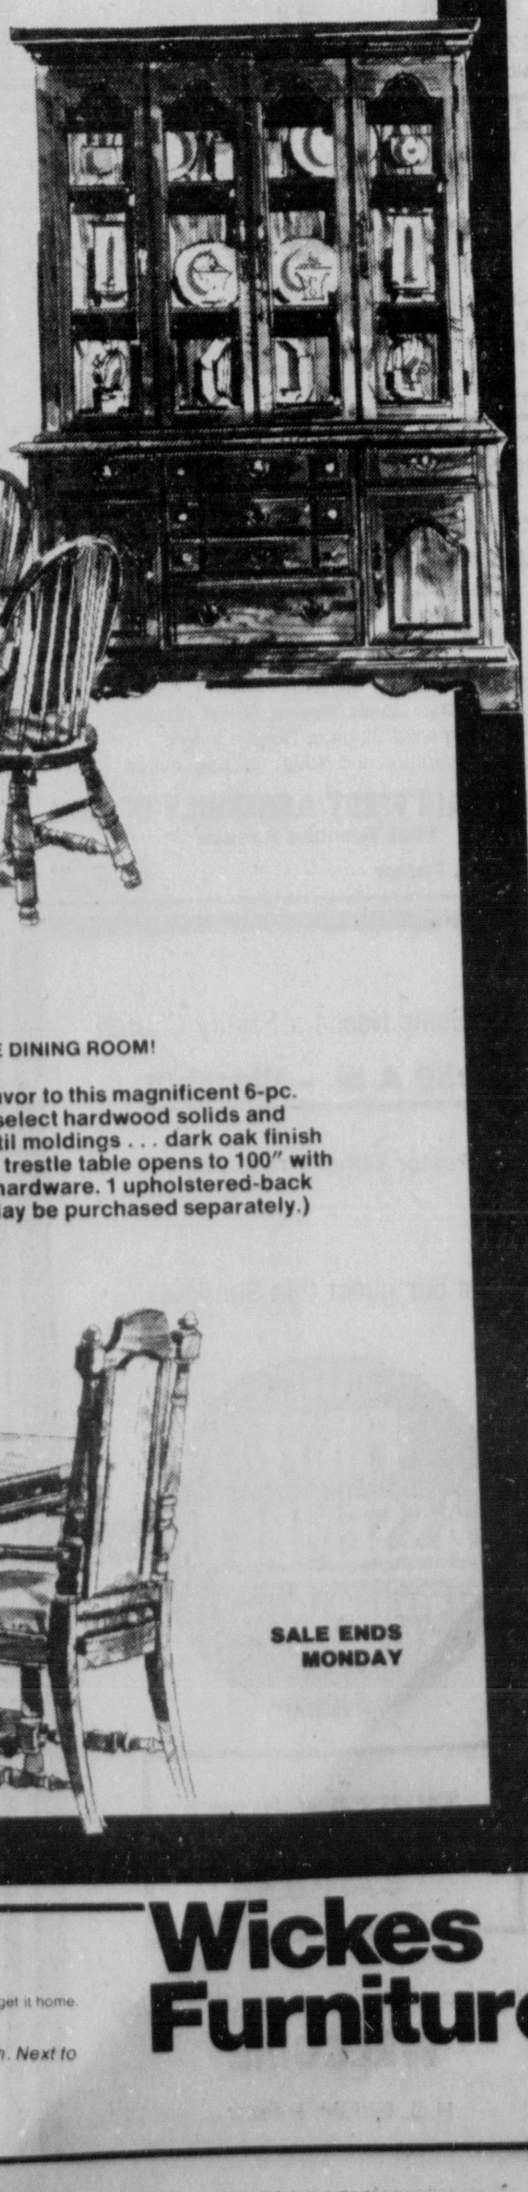

Landeros had been working near a spray booth when vapors that had collected in the booth exploded, fire officials said.

Yanks a bunch of spoiled brats

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Commodore Gabe Paul rushed in to try to plug the leaks Friday, but the great Yankee baseball ship appears to be coming apart at the seams.

Manager Billy Martin and the team's $2.9 million outfielder, Reggie Jackson, are back exchanging ethnic, profane insults in the public prints.

Jackson and the league's most valuable player last season, Thurman Munson, get petulant about the location of their World Series tickets and threaten not to don uniforms unless the Los Angeles Dodgers provide better seats for friends.

Munson, in a huff, says he is no longer team captain—a prestigious role given by the Yankees for the first time since Lou Gehrig. He insists he won't play another year with the Yankees unless certain conditions are met. He wants to be traded to Cleveland.

Center fielder Mickey Rivers, a standout in the playoffs, is another malcontent. He tells the Yankees: Trade me to a team on the Paficic Coast. Outfielder Lou Pinella and Roy White are upset over being platooned. Pitcher Mike Torrez is unsigned.

Third baseman Graig Nettles is demanding renegotiation of his contract, with two years to run at $150,000 per year. Mystery surrounds the complete oversight of Ken Holtzman, a $150,000-a-year pitcher under five-year contract unused in Yankee playoffs in 1976 although he has two no-hiters and a 4-1 World Series wins to his credit.

Martin in trouble?

Yankees watchers wouldn't give you a plugged nickel for Martin's chances of survivng as manager. Billy, who has had similar experiences at Minnesota, Detroit and Texas, is headed for the ashcan, they insist.

Paul, team president, called an 11 a.m., PDT, press conference Friday, prior to the third Series game with the Dodgers, in an effort to allay reporters that the Yankees were crumbling from inner turmoil.

Owner George Steinbrenner, roundly criticized for interfering in the affairs of the team he has bankrolled, was reported in transit. He could take sterner action.

Paul referred this just being "another chapter in the tumultuous life of the 1977 Yankees" and called his employes "reckless performers who aren't afraid of consequences."

"We judge out players by what they do on the field," he said. "If we wanted all nice boys we could go to the church steps and pick up a nice collection."

Paul defended Martin in the current clash with Jackson but failed to give his beleaguered manager a vote of confidence.

"I don't believe in votes of confidence—they are a kiss of death," the Yankee president said. "One game and one series will not determine how we act on Martin's contract. The $100,000-a-year pact has two more years to run.

This negative response could be very significant. One New York reporter immediately called his paper to say that Martin definitely is out—probably right after the Series.

Jackson unhappy

If Martin had temporarily saved his job with his deft handling of the playoff series against Kansas City, he may have put it beyond rescue with his injudicious reaction in the lastest squabble with Jackson.

Jackson, who almost came to blows with Martin in June after he was yanked from the outfield, called the manager an unprintable name and blasted him for using a stale Catfish Hunter in the second World Series game in New York, won by the Dodgers 6-1.

"How could the so-and-so pitch him?" Jackson fumed. How do you make a decision like that on a guy who hasn't pitched in more than a month?"

Martin, after arriving in Los Angeles, was besieged at every turn by reporters seeking a response.

Martin's patience finally exploded.

"He's having enough trouble in the outfield without second-guessing the manager Martin snapped. Then he made a reference to Martin that could be found on latrine wallls.

If Martin gets the sack, he can blame it on his lack of restraint and diplomacy. He is a back alley fighter. Proud and emotional, he hits first and thinks later.

His fault lies in not confronting Jackson face-to-face and getting the ugliness settled in private instead of the open. Yet he has refused to do this.

Munson has assumed the role of cry-baby. He is jealous of Jackson's $2.9 million contract. He insists Steinbrenner promised him he would be the highest paid Yankee. The Yankees are the richest and one of the most successful teams in all baseball, yet they act like a bunch of spoiled brats.

LOS ANGELES — If the Dodgers go on to win the 1977 World Series, they will have to do it back in New York.

The Yankees made sure Los Angeles won't be able to celebrate at home Sunday evening by taking the third game of the series, 5-3, Friday evening before the largest crowd in Dodger Stadium history.

With a 2-1 edge in the best-of-seven series, New York has taken away any home field advantage the Dodgers might have.

Pitching was expected to be the Yankees' big problem in the World Series because of an assortment of injuries.

But righthander Mike Torrez got stronger as the night progressed Friday to send the 55,992 Dodger Stadium customers home frustrated.

The Yanks took a quick 3-0 lead against Dodger starter Tommy John in the first inning but Dusty Baker pulled the Dodgers even in the third with a dramatic three-run homer to earn the usual Dodger Stadium standing ovation.

However, that joy was shortlived as New York tallied single runs in the fourth and fifth and Torrez made them hold up in blanking L.A. through the final six frames as he retired the final 11 batters in order.

The Yankees have received a pair of well-pitched games from Don Gullett and Torrez to take the lead in the Series and their hurling plans appear set for the rest of the action.

Rookie sensation Ron Guidry (16-7 during the regular season) will take the mound this afternoon (1:15 p.m.) in the fourth game against Doug Rau, a somewhat surprise choice of Dodger skipper Tommy Lasorda considering his recent shoulder problems.

Lasorda plans to follow with Don Sutton in Sunday's fifth game at Dodger Stadium and hopefully have Burt Hooton and John ready for possible sixth and seventh games next Tuesday and Wednesday at Yankee Stadium.

Does the thought of returning to Yankee Stadium bother Lasorda?

As expected, no. Nothing ever bothers Lasorda publicly.

"Really, I love playing at Yankee Stadium," he diplomatically answered. "Yankee fans are great. You can discount a few of those kooks who go out on the field. Heck, we would go to Fairbanks, Alaska to play if we had to."

Does Lasorda still have the faith?

"Yes, I do," Lasorda obviously answered. "It's a best-of-seven series, not a best-of-three. The winner still has to win four games. I still have great belief in this team."

The key to Friday's victory for the Yanks was Torrez' pitching.

He was shaky in the early going and looked in real trouble when Baker lit up the stadium with his homer on a 3-2 pitch in the third.

The Dodgers' only threat the rest of the way came in the fifth. With one out, Reggie Smith drew a walk and Torrez fell behind 3-0 on Ron Cey, the next batter.

But Torrez retired Cey on a soft fly after Yankee Manager Billy Martin went to the mound and told him not to aim his pitches but throw hard.

Steve Garvey beat out an infield single to put Dodgers on first and second with two outs but Baker hit into a force play.

Steve Yeager's single in the sixth resulted in the Dodgers' final base runner of the night.

Torrez really showed his stuff in the bottom of the ninth when he got Yeager to ground out weakly and caught pinch-hitter Manny Mota and Davey Lopes on third strikes to end the game.

New York used four hits in the first inning to jump on John.

Mickey Rivers broke out of an 0-for-10 performance in the series by leading off with a double to right. After Willie Randolph grounded out, Thurman Munson also doubled to right.

Reggie Jackson's single scored Munson and Jackson continued to second when Baker couldn't field the ball cleanly. The error cost a run as Lou Piniella's hit up the middle brought Jackson home.

After Baker tied it, the Yankees used hits off fielder's gloves to score the winning runs.

Graig Nettles opened the fourth with a single to center and Bucky Dent followed with an infield hit off on Cey's glove.

After Torrez sacrificed the runners to second and third, Nettles came home on Rivers' ground out.

Jackson drew an one-out walk in the fifth and scored when Piniella beat out a hit off of John's glove and Chris Chambliss singled to right.

That was all the Yankees needed.

DODGER DATA — The parking gates open at 11 a.m. both today and Sunday. Lillian Carter, mother of the president, will throw out the first ball today with Glen Campbell singing the national anthem.

The previous largest crowd at Dodger Stadium was in the 1974 World Series when 55,989 saw the Oakland A's and Dodgers.

Torrez was only 2-5 against the Dodgers during his National days at St. Louis and Montreal.

Yanks follow A's steps

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — The Yankees may not be the Yankees of old, but they certainly act like the Oakland Athletics of the A's' world championship years.

The Yanks criticize and battle each other. But when the big games are on the line, they get the job done.

"I just think our ball club is very skilled," said manager Billy Martin. "No matter what is said or written, we're together for the game. I think you saw that in the first inning."

In the first inning, Mickey Rivers, who wants to be traded and has said he'd like to return to the Angels, opened the game with a double.

One out later, Thurman Munson, who has said he'd prefer to play for Cleveland, doubled Rivers home.

Reggie Jackson, the center of a season-long controversey, singled Munson home, moved up on Dusty Baker's error and scored on Lou Piniella's single.

The Dodgers and Tommy John never really recovered from that first Yankee inning although they did come back to tie the game on Baker's three-run homer in the third.

But the New Yorkers got the run right back and went in front to stay in the fourth inning.

Once again it was the pesky Rivers. This time he drove in what turned out to be the winning run in with a infield out. Hitless in 10 at-bats in the first two games, he had two doubles, a single and a stolen base Friday night.

"It was just an average night," said Rivers. "I just ain't been hitting, but I'm starting to pick up where I left off in the playoffs (6-for-10 in the last two games)."

Winning pitcher Mike Torrez, the Yanks' only unsigned player, also picked up where he left off in the playoffs (5 1/3 scoreless innings against K.C. Sunday) once he got past Baker's homer.

"I was really struggling the first three or four innings," admitted Torrez. But I finally got a little rhythm and put things together.

"After Baker's homer, I started challenging them with my fastball and slider. I could have kicked myself for throwing Baker a slider. That's my second best pitch. I should have given him my best pitch, the fastball."

Torrez admitted he's a entirely different pitcher than the one the Dodgers saw in the National League with St. Louis and Montreal. Stops with Baltimore and Oakland in the American League polished him.

"I'm a lot better pitcher now," he said. "I have four pitches where I used to only have two, the fastball and slider."

"George Bamberger (Orioles' pitching coach) helped me at Baltimore. I developed a curve and a changeup."

After Baker's home run, Torrez gave up only two singles the rest of the way and retired the last 10 Dodgers in order. He finished with nine strikeouts, four in the last three innings."

"I didn't think Mike could beat us," said Tommy Lasorda. "But he pitched an excellent game."

"It was a super job," added Martin. "He's a very strong pitcher and I think he got stronger in the late innings."

Martin was asked about Yankee general manager Gabe Paul's press conference earlier in the day in which he sided with Martin and said Billy was managing the club not the players.

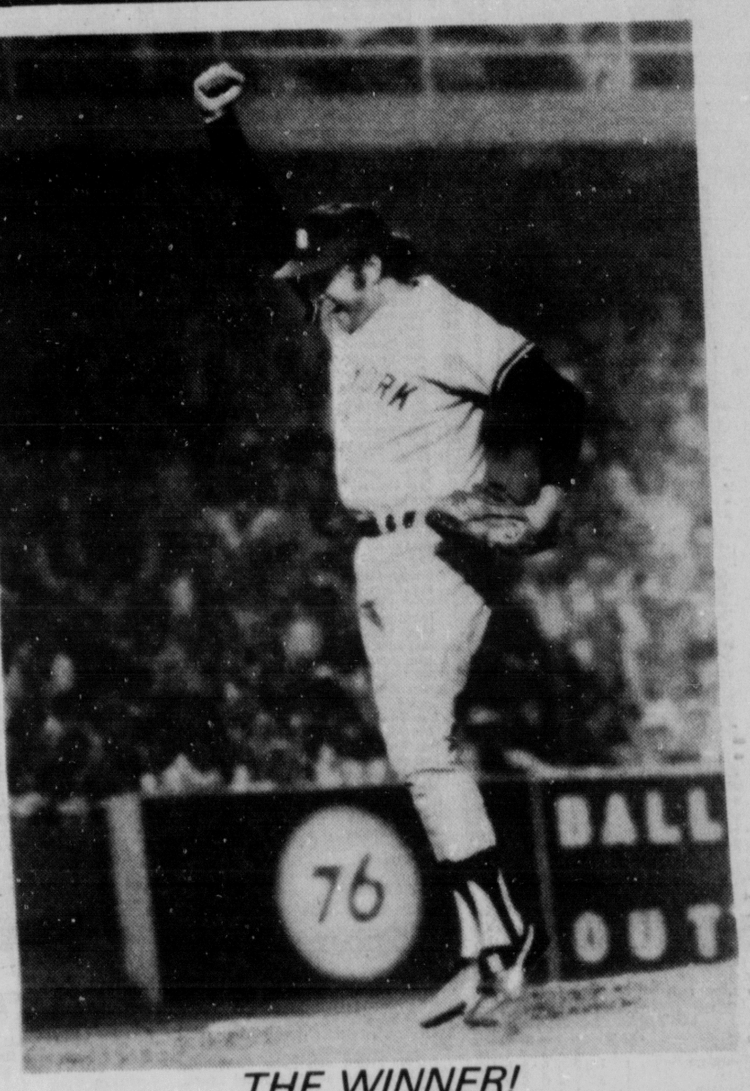

"I don't know what was said," Martin deadpanned.

"You were given a vote of confidence," said a writer. "I'll probably be fired tomorrow," Martin said wryly.

And that's the way things go with the Yankees. For the moment, all is peace and harmony. Martin said he settled his differences with Jackson earlier in the day.

"All the players want to do is play baseball," said Jackson. "People give credence to things that don't matter to ball players. The difference tonight was that Rivers got on base for us."

As long as the Yanks win, they get along.

THE WINNER!

Ganesha blanks Red Devils, 12-0

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

A pair of one-yard touchdown runs by Bennie Gooden and Carl Walker gave Ganesha High a lackluster 12-0 victory over Pomona Friday night at Mt. San Antonio College.

The mistake-filled contest extended the Red Devils' losing streak to 14 games.

Offense was nearly non-existent throughout the game but the Giants were able to capitalize on a couple of Devil turnovers in the second half.

After the two teams had struggled through a scoreless first half, Pomona gave the Giants the ball on the Devil 25-yard line on the fourth play of the third period. Giant defensive end Craig Parm sacked Pomona quarterback Darrell Keepers for an 18-yard loss on the play and, when Keepers dropped the ball, Ganesha lineman Randy Taylor fell on it.

The Giants then "drove" 25 yards for a touchdown on 10 plays, the final blow a one-yard run by Gooden. Tight end Phil Kranenburg had set up the score by catching a Ron Hughes pass at the 1. Ruben Raya's PAT kick was off the mark and the score stayed at 6-0 until the final moments.

Pomona receiver John Bullock was injured on a pass play with 2:13 left to play and was taken by ambulance to Queen of the Valley Hospital in Covina. His injuries were described as "not too serious" after early testing at the hospital.

When play resumed, Ganesha defensive back Henry Queruel recovered a Pomona fumble at the Devil 43 and halfback Walker carried four straight times for the TD. He broke for runs of 16 and 21 yards on that series.

Some fighting erupted after that score, prompting the officials to end the contest with 27 seconds left on the clock, before Ganesha could attempt an extra point.

Gooden finished the game with 78 yards on 19 carries and Walker added 69 on 15. Hughes completed five of 12 passes for 61 yards and was intercepted twice by Bullock.

Keepers completed six of 16 aerials for 77 yards but was intercepted four times, twice by Shelton Daniels and once each by William Rodall and Mike Sellers.

Ganesha's defense held Pomona to 57 net yards on the ground — and only six yards in the second half. Reggie Gaskin carried a dozen times for 36 yards and Morris Harris picked up 35 yards on nine tries.

The game's leading receiver was Pomona's Daryl Swanson, who caught three passes for 42 yards.

Ganesha earned 10 first downs and 187 total yards while Pomona had 11 firsts and 134 yards. The game was relatively even except in turnovers — Pomona had six and Ganesha only two. The Giants managed not to lose a fumble for the first time this season.

Ganesha (2-1 in San Antonio League play, 4-1 overall) will visit Montclair Friday and Pomona will travel to Chino.

Chino High's fine placekicking duo of Tony Gonzales and Tony Zendejas for the second week in a row were a key factor in a Cowboy victory.

Gonzales and Zendejas each kicked second half field goals to enable Chino to down host Upland 13-7 Friday night.

Last week Zendejas provided all of his teams points in a 9-7 win over Ganesha with three field goals.

Gonzales broke a 7-7 tie with 1:35 left in the third quarter by kicking a 27-yard field goal.

The go-ahead score was set up when Chino punted to Upland on fourth down and Cowboy Bobby Rico recovered a fumble on the return at the Upland 19.

Chino threatened to score a touchdown, but on third and goal from the 3-yard line quarterback Dan Reyes was sacked for a 7-yard loss. That set up Gonzales' three-pointer.

Following a fumble recovery by Cowboy Rich Perez in the fourth period, Zendejas booted a 32-yard attempt through the uprights with 7:20 left to play.

Chino's defense did its part in the second half allowing the Highlanders to penetrate no further than its own 40 yard line.

Upland opened the game with upset in mind and took a first quarter lead of 7-0 at the 2:25 mark. Upland's Dick Chapman swept untouched into the end zone from the three with Jon Kotez kicking the extra point.

Chapman in addition to scoring the lone Upland TD rushed for 73 yards on 18 carries in the first half. Chapman finished the game with 80 yards on 24 totes.

Chino rallied to tie the score with 1:24 left in the half on a 58-yard scoring pass from Reyes to Pete Brun. Reyes was decked just after releasing the ball but threw a perfect strike down the sidelines to Brun. Gonzales added the PAT.

The Cowboy victory keeps them atop the San Antonio League standings with Damien. Both teams own 3-0 records and Chino is now 4-1 on the year.

Upland is still winless in three SAL tries and is 1-4 overall.

Rod Perry out for 3 weeks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Rams' cornerback Rod Perry will be out for at least three weeks after he has surgery today for a broken thumb.

Perry, a starter for the National Football League for the past two years, injured his thumb in the season opener four weeks ago.

Pat Thomas will start in place of Perry Sunday when the Rams host the New Orleans Saints. Jackie Wallace, also a defensive back, will be activated to take Perry's place on the roster.

Damien delights in Viking miscues

By PAUL CLICK

Turnovers played a key role Friday night in Damien High's fourth victory of the season.

Damien took advantage of four pass interceptions and six fumble recoveries to register a 29-12 victory over Garey High at Cal Poly. Garey was penalized 120 yards in addition to its miscues.

Damien had entered the contest allowing its opponents only seven points a game. The Vikings scored 12 late in the fourth quarter as Damien led 22-0 at that time.

Everything went wrong for the Vikings as Damien recorded a safety in the Garey end zone and the Vikings' punter was caught throwing a pass with illegal receivers down field. The pass from center had sailed over his head and as he attempted a pass from the end zone the Damien defense almost sacked him for a safety.

Fullback Elijah Turner, who racked up 82 yards on 11 carries, as he lost 35 yards due to a penalty midway through the third quarter.

Garey was able to move the ball against Damien but their ball handling mistakes killed them.

Damien did not escape the referee's whistle as they lost a 64-yard touchdown pass play from Dan Marconi to Mike Escalante on the first play of the second half.

In the yardage battle, Damien won by 34 yards with 260 net yards to Garey's 226.

Marconi was 8 for 21 on the evening for 116 yards. Doug Paul was the Spartans' top rusher with 58 yards.

Damien's first touchdown was set up on a fumble recovery by Rich Bustos. The Spartans went out in front of Garey 14-0 when Bill Rice recovered a Viking fumble at the Garey 34-yard line.

Garey picked up yardage with screen passes to their backs but the fumble or interception play turned up to bite them just at the wrong time. Damien thwarted the two Garey quarterback's on the long pass patterns but Turner and Morris Cole were freed by the screen for some decent gains.

Mike Raffee picked off two of the Vikings' passes and almost had a third as the ball ricocheted off his hands.

Doug Paul's 14 yard run put the game away for Damien (29-7) but Garey's Carey Shephard hit David Forte with a 43-yard TD pass out of their shotgun formation.

Center Larry Reyes scored Garey's first TD as he picked up Turners fumble on the 15-yard line and scampered into the end zone. Turner had raced 29 yards through the Damien defenders before coughing up the ball.

Angels sign new director

ANAHEIM (AP) —The California Angels Friday named Ray Poitevint as director of scouting and player development.

The Angels also announced that coach Del Crandall won't return to the club next year.

Poitevint, 47, who has been western supervisor of the Major League Scouting Bureau, will start his new duties Monday and will be responsible for all minor league and scouting development, Angels' General Manager Harry Dalton said.

"We feel Ray has demonstrated outstanding ability in the areas of scouting and administrative expertise," said Dalton.

Poitevint, who has been in charge of 21 fulltime scouts for the Major League Scouting Bureau during the past 14 months, will succeed Minor League Director Tom Sommers and Scouting Director Walter Shannon.

Dalton said that Shannon will remain with the Angels as scouting coordinator to handle all activities between field scouts and Poitevint.

Sutton enjoys night games

NEW YORK (AP) — Dodger right-hander Don Sutton, who started the first game of the World Series, says he enjoys pitching at night in October.

"I like it because the hitters can't see the ball as well and I enjoy cool weather," said Sutton. "Actually, I prefer to pitch at 2 a.m."

Knights move into 1st place

Ontario Christian High improved their Olympic League record to a perfect 3-0, when they outclassed Valley Christian High 16-6, Friday night.

The Knights opened a 16-0 lead late in the third quarter and held on for the victory, as their defense stopped a late Crusader scoring drive.

Ontario Christian converted a blocked punt into their first score when Tom Lanting blocked the punt, and came up with the ball at the Crusader 13.

Two plays later, with a third and goal from the six, Knight quarterback Joe DeHoog hit Roger Sybesma in the end-zone for an apparent touchdown. But an ineligible receiver downfield nullified the score, forcing the Knights to settle for a 37-yard field goal by Pete Van Ginkle.

The Knights got the ball back two minutes later and began their second scoring drive. DeHoog squirted around Crusader defenders for a 40-yard TD, and put the Knights on top 10-0 in the second quarter.

Valley Christian started their first drive of the evening when they marched down to the Knight 12 yard line. But Adrian Kroes stopped the drive, when he picked off a Crusader pass in the end zone to end the half.

In the second half, Ontario Christian increased their lead, when the Crusaders were caught with a pass interference penalty. This set the ball up on the 11 yard line, and Van Ginkle scrambled into the end zone from six yards out for the final Knight tally.

The Crusaders then went to work, marching the ball 75-yards down to the Knight two yard line. Key passes of 11 and 31 yards from Jerry Roelofsen to Russ Vande Vegt and Dean Dykema respectively, helped the Crusader drive.

The Valley Christian offense then faltered, as they gained only two yards in four downs, and turned the ball over to the Knights.

Valley Christian got the ball back minutes later when they held Ontario from advancing the ball. On the first play from scrimmage, Roelofsen nailed Vande Vegt on a 33-yard pass for the final score. Crusader half-back Mike Smith was held well short of the goal line on the two point conversion attempt.

Smith led both teams in rushing, garnaring 116 yards in 24 attempts, while Van Ginkle led the Knights, getting 42 yards in 12 carries.

Munson wants 'out'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Thurman Munson, catcher and captain of the New York Yankees, said Friday he is "adamant about going home" and has asked to be traded to the Cleveland Indians.

"I'd like to be home next year," said the 30-year-old Munson, who lives in Canton, Ohio, less than an hour from Cleveland.

Munson, the American League's Most Valuable Player in 1976, said he has "mentioned" his desires to Yankees owner George Steinbrenner and club President Gabe Paul.

"It's because of a series of things that has blown on," Munson told The Associated Press just before the third game of the World Series. "Money is one of many things that had something to do with it, but that's all I'm going to say. I want to be home with my family. That's all I'll say right now."

Munson, who this season became the first major leaguer to bat .300 and drive in 100 runs for three years in a row, is known to have been at odds with Steinbrenner over money during the off-season. The catcher apparently feels Steinbrenner promised him he would be the highest paid Yankees player, and broke his word in signing free agent outfielder Reggie Jackson.

Asked if he was ruling out any chance of his wearing a Yankees' uniform next year, Munson would only say, "I can't force a trade, but ...

"It's a shame, because the New York fans have treated me so super. Everything I own I owe to them."

At the start of the 1977 season, Paul (Bear) Bryant of Alabama was the winningest college football coach with 262 victories.

Jags lose Jefferson but win game, 12-7

By RAY NELSON
PB Correspondent

On a night in which Ontario High lost the services of star running back Tommy Jefferson for at least the evening, the Jaguars utilized a stingy defense and capitalized on Alta Loma mistakes to score a 12-7 Hacienda win Friday night.

Jefferson, the leading rusher in the Hacienda League, was sidelined in the early stages of the second quarter by a sprained right ankle after only gaining 15 yards on five carries.

Without him, the Jag offense sputtered, but worked well enough to turn two Brave miscues into first-half touchdowns.

Defensive back Steve Perez, who bothered Alta Loma receivers all night, made one of his two interceptions early in the initial period to give Ontario the ball at its own 48.

After keeping the ball once and handing the ball to Jefferson twice, Jag quarterback Sonny Medina lofted a 21-yard pass to Jon Thomas for a first down at the Alta Loma four.

Two plays later, Sam Alcala burst through the middle from one yard out for a 6-0 Ontario advantage.

Alcala also sparked what proved to be the winning score when he stopped an Alta Loma drive which started on the Brave 47-yard line by recovering a Jeff Holloday fumble at the Ontario 19.

Medina then engineered a 79-yard drive in 12 plays, culminating in a 10-yard dash around left end by Albert Newman for the score.

The drive featured the running of Paul Bernard, who replaced Jefferson, and two big Alta Loma penalties. Bernard picked up 29 of the necessary yards on four carries, 16 of them setting up the Jag score by giving them a first down at the Braves' six.

While the Ontario defense thwarted two Alta Loma drives at the Jags' 10 and 19-yard lines, respectively, in the first half, the Braves penetrated to the Ontario midway through the third stanza.

However, Ontario once again met the challenge by stopping the Braves on four plays at the Jag three.

After knocking on the door so many times, Alta Loma finally got on the scoreboard in the fourth quarter with 9:18 left.

After picking off a Medina pass, the Braves moved from the Ontario 22 to a first down on the nine. Three plays later, they were faced with a fourth-and-goal from the 3-yard line. Stuart Charleston, seemingly stopped at the two, used a second-effort burst to then give Alta Loma its only score.

The Braves got the ball back with 1:25 and two timeouts remaining, but elected to let 30 seconds tick away as they attempted to move the ball on the ground. When they finally went to the air, Ontario sacked Hollo

Bonita, S.D. vie tonight

Bonita High's Bearcats and San Dimas' Saints will be seeking their first win of the season and Don Lugo's Conquistadores will look for the second varsity victory in the school's short history in tonight's prep football action.

The Bearcats and Saints, both winless in four tries this year, will battle for the "Smudge Pot" at Mt. San Antonio College and Don Lugo will host San Diego Christian at Chino High. Both games will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Last year the Saints, on their way to the Hacienda League championship and the CIF 2A semi-finals, won the smudge pot for the fourth time in the five-year history of the award.

The two teams, struggling to break into the win column, both need the psychological boost of winning the intradistrict rivalry.

Don Lugo belted an outmanned Lutheran La Verne team last week, 37-6, for the Conquistadores' first win in varsity football. Don Lugo now stands 1-1-1 for the season.

Chaffey can't look ahead

By JIM McCONNELL
PB Staff Writer

Chaffey and Citrus have to guard against an old grid malady in Mission Conference action today: Look-aheaditis.

Both the Panthers and Owls have to be gearing up mentally for their valley showdown in two weeks, but they're in against some rough company today and can ill-afford to be caught dreaming of that next game.

Chaffey will be at San Diego City College today for a 1:30 p.m. contest, while Citrus will entertain San Bernardino Valley at 7:30 p.m.

In a South Coast Conference clash, Mt. San Antonio College will be at Santa Ana, also a 7:30 p.m. start.

Chaffey will carry a perfect 4-0 season mark south for its clash with winless SDCC (0-4). But San Diego won't be any pushover.

The Knights gave the Owls a tough time of it before bowing 21-17 last week and are even tougher to beat at home. Thus the Panthers can't let down their guard against SDCC.

CC coach Mike Merandi plans no major changes in his starting lineup for the game, which means the Panthers will go with a backfield of quarterback Brian Potter and running backs Marcus Jennings and Gary Carr.

Citrus, 1-0 in M.C. action and 2-2 for the year, also could be in for a rugged game tonight. SBVC, 0-1 and 2-2, was beaten soundly by Saddleback last week.

However, the Indians had impressed in their three non-conference outings and should be fired up for Citrus. The Owls have beaten SBVC 64-7 and 48-0 the past two years.

San Bernardino has a potentially dangerous running attack, which includes former Claremont High star Joe Hillstock in the backfield.

Saddleback was able to burn the Indians' pass defense, and Citrus quarterback Ken Eriksen will try to take advantage of that unit again tonight.

Eriksen will be joined in the Owl backfield by Charles Cole and Barry McManus. Cole, a freshman out of Pomona High, leads the Owls in rushing with 241 yards.

MSAC, 0-1 in conference and 2-3 on the year, faces a must-win situation tonight at Santa Ana (0-3-1). The Mounties need a victory to maintain any chance at the South Coast crown.

While MSAC was dropping a heart-breaker to San Diego Mesa in its conference opener last week, Santa Ana was being dumped by Fullerton 42-7.

However, the S.A. defense had been the team's strong point prior to the Fullerton outing and could give MSAC fits tonight unless the Mounties can show some consistency.

Freshman Butch Stocking is expected to get the call at QB for MSAC, with Garey High product Stan Webster and Russ Esmus the probable starters at running back. Webster has been the one consistent offensive threat for MSAC so far in an up-and-down season.

The former Viking has rushed for 425 yards and averaged nearly six yards a tote. He also has amassed 400 yards in return yardage.

MSAC will be without the services of star linebacker Gary Orantes for Santa Ana. Orantes was injured in last week's loss to Mesa and is out for the year.

Terry Bradshaw wants to play

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers have listed quarterback Terry Bradshaw as doubtful for Monday night's National football League game against the Cincinnati Bengals, but Bradshaw has left no doubt he wants to play.

"I didn't come here to sit around," the Steelers' regular signal-caller said. "I came here to win."

Bradshaw broke a bone in his left wrist last week against the Houston Oilers, and the bone is presently wrapped in a flexible plastic cast.

"It just gets in the way a little," he said Thurday after taking a dozen snaps from center to see whether the arm could stand the strain of quarterback duties.

"I've just got to get used to not being able to put both hands on the ball when I cock my arm. I've got to if I want to play."

Bradshaw fumbled only one snap during Thursday's practice, but didn't even try to work with the center Friday because the arm was sore. Instead, he threw passes

Dr. Paul Steele, the Steelers' team physician, says Bradshaw's soreness is due to the location of the snapped bone at the spot where the center places the ball.

Game conditions could produce further damage to the bone, Steele said. But Bradshaw has indicated a willingness to accept the risk.

"If he fell on it, he wouldn't necessarily break it worse," the doctor said. "It would just get sore."

Bradshaw's eagerness to return to the playing field is not simply a matter of enthusiasm. The Steelers' backup quarterback, Mike Kruczek, separated a shoulder in the Houston game and won't play for several weeks.

The team used safety Tony Dungy, who had played quarterback at Minnesota before joining the Steelers as a free agent, to complete the Houston game, which ended as a 27-10 loss.

The Steelers, 2-2, activated Neil Graff this week. Graff, who has started only two games in his pro career, was the team's third-string quarterback last year.

Trojans should win big today

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Trojans are going to have to learn to "grind it out" again, Southern California Coach John Robinson says, and Oregon's Ducks may have the misfortune of being the grist for sixth-ranked USC today.

Oregon comes into the 1:30 p.m. PDT Pacific-8 game in the Coliseum with a 1-4 record, and last week was embarrassed by Washington, 54-0. The Trojans are 4-1 after being knocked out of the nation's No. 1 spot by Alabama. USC is such an overwhelming favorite against the Ducks that no odds are listed for the contest.

"We must improve our offensive execution from here on," Robinson said after USC's 21-20 loss to Alabama, "and that means for a full game. We've got to take the ball and grind it out.

"We had it pretty much our own way running the ball the first four weeks and we were trying too hard to break for long gains against Alabama."

Tailbacks Charles White and Dwight Ford and fullbacks Mosi Tatupu and Lynn Cain may carry the ball more against Oregon, but the throwing of quarterback Rob Hertel to receivers Randy Simmrin and Calvin Sweeney should keep the Duck defense from zeroing in on the run.

Robinson said the Ducks have been unpredictable this season, playing good games — although losing — against Wisconsin, Georgia and Stanford prior to last Saturday.

"They're going to come in here with some vengeance in their hearts because of last Saturday," said Robinson, who played football at Oregon then was an assistant coach there for 12 years.

"I know I'm duty bound to say I expect a tough game," Robinson remarked. "But the way Oregon has played this year, it could be just that."

Ducks Coach Rich Brooks, who moved from an assistant's post at UCLA to Oregon last year, said he expects the Trojans to have some vengeance in their hearts, too.

"When we looked at USC's schedule at the start of the year, we thought we might have been in a good postion, coming between their games against Alabama and Notre Dame," Brooks said. "But not now. The Trojans will be looking to gain national recognition again in the polls."

Robinson said the Ducks are always a threat because of quarterback Jack Henderson, who has thrown for 3,824 yards in his career. This season, the junior signal caller is 57 of 113 for 750 yards and two scores.

"Henderson is a veteran quarterback who's capable of an outstanding game anytime," Robinson said. "If he's hot, Oregon can be a very dangerous team."

USC listed just one injured starter, cornerback Carter Hartwig, as questionable for the contest, but Oregon will be without defensive end Mel Cook and offensive tackle Fred Quillan.

Saints get look at Haden

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pat Haden, who saw his first action of the current National Football League season last Monday night, receives his initial start of the campaign Sunday when the Los Angeles Rams entertain the New Orleans Saints.

A crowd of 50,000 is expected at the Coliseum for the game matching NFC West opponents. Kickoff time is 1:05 p.m., PDT.

The Saints will be trying to beat the Rams for the first time ever at the Coliseum. Overall, Los Angeles has a 13-3 record against New Orleans. The Saints' last win came in 1974 by a score of 20-7.

The Saints bring a 1-3 record into play. The Rams, beaten by the Chicago Bears last Monday night 24-23, are 2-2.

Haden, 24, who took over as the Rams' starting quarterback as a rookie late last year and guided Los Angeles to the playoffs, lost his job during the preseason to Joe Namath.

Namath, who played 12 seasons for the New York Jets before joining Los Angeles after playing out his option, is suffering from knee injuries again. The 34-year-old veteran signalcaller took a beating during the Bears' game.

Namath was knocked out of the contest late in the fourth quarter after completing 16 of 40 passes with four interceptions. Haden connected on three of six passes for 55 yards and a touchdown in the waning moments.

Overall, Namath has 50 completions in 107 attempts for 606 yards and three TDs.

Knox said Tuesday that Namath would start against the Saints if physically able, but Dr. Clarence Shields reported swelling around Namath's left knee later that day.

The Saints lost a 14-0 decision to San Diego last Sunday after rolling past the Bears 42-24 the week before. The New Orleans offense was held scoreless by the Chargers despite 18 first downs. A contributing factor to the shutout was eight sacks of Saints' quarterback Archie Manning.

UCLA must defeat Washington State

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — UCLA and Washington State, football teams which have departed from form this year, meet tonight night in a contest crucial to the Pacific-8 Conference hopes of both.

UCLA, a perennial contender, has played erratically and is 0-1 in conference play after a 32-28 loss to Stanford last week. The usually weak Cougars stunned California 17-10 to even their Pac-8 record at 1-1.

Overall, Washington State is 3-2 and UCLA is 2-3 — the first time since 1971 that the Cougars have had a better season record entering the annual contest.

UCLA Coach Terry Donahue said the Bruins are still Rose Bowl contenders.

"The conference race is far from over. We have a difficult schedule, starting with Washington State," he said.

WSU Coach Warren Powers said some of the Bruins have recovered from injuries quicker than he expected.

Theotis Brown, a 218-pound junior who was the first UCLA sophomore to rush for more than 1,000 yards, returned to action against Stanford for the first time since the team's opener against Houston.

Brown's 92 yards in eight carries against Stanford are an indication of trouble for Bruin opponents, Donahue said.

"We have to keep improving and I feel we are going to get better as the season goes along," he said.

Brown made a 75-yard touchdown run, longest of his career, and freshman Freeman McNeil had a 78-yard run in the same game.

"Speed is their biggest theat," Powers said. "You never feel comfortable with them."

He said his squad's own injury problems were minor, but starting halfback Mike Washington had a pulled muscle and was questionable.

Center Mark Chandless and fullback Dan Doornink will be back after missing the California game.

Powers said the Cougars' passing attack was sound, although quarterback Jack Thompson managed only 84 yards against Cal. Refusing to be intimidated by UCLA's fifth-ranked passing defense, Powers said the declining yardage totals of Thompson, an All-West Coast passer last year, show that WSU can run on opponents, too.

"We can throw if we have to," he said. "We'll probably throw more, but I'm not sure. We'll just do what we have to do."

UCLA quarterback Rick Bashore ranks first in weekly Pac-8 passing.

The Bruins hold a 22-6 edge in the series and a 10-game victory string dating to 1958. Last year UCLA demolished WSU 62-3.

Powers said he didn't give the score much thought because "I wasn't involved in it."

However, WSU offensive guard Larry Finan of Paramount, Calif., said his teammates have the defeat in mind.

"There's no way you can forget something like that, especially when you play before your friends and relatives," he said. "It left some deep scars."

La Verne braces for Cal Lutheran

La Verne College faces its toughest opponent this afternoon when Cal Lutheran comes to Leopard Field (1:30 p.m.).

The Leos have played the Kingsmen every year since Cal Lutheran started playing football. The Leopards have won only once, 46-6, that first year (1962).

Since then La Verne has managed to tie the Kingsmen once, 6-6, in 1971. That was the only blot on Cal Lutheran's record that year as the Kingsmen won the national title.

Cal Lutheran (4-1) has lost only to UC Davis (25-9). The Leopards (2-1) have lost only to Whittier (19-3) while beating Pomona-Pitzer (42-20) and Azusa Pacific (33-3).

"We've never had a whole lot of luck against Cal Lutheran," admitted coach Roland Ortmayer. "But I'm a coach and I like to play football. They play football and I have a lot of tolerance for football and very little tolerance for junk."

Ortmayer says Cal Lutheran's passing game is even stronger than usual.

Quarterback John Kindred has completed 62 of 94 passes for 712 yards and four touchdowns. He has been intercepted five times.

Kindred's favorite receivers are slotback Harry Hedrick and wide receiver Mike Hagen. Hedrick has caught 26 passes for 279 yards and two touchdowns. Hagen has snared 21 for 208 yards and two TDs.

The 6-2, 205-pound Kindred took the Kingsmen on four long drives as the NAIA sixth-ranked team defeated Occidental 21-0 last week.

Kindred himself ran for two touchdowns.

Cal Lutheran ran back three punt returns for apparent touchdowns, but two were called back.

La Verne, meanwhile, has been more impressive each week.

"I'm getting encouraged," said Ortmayer. "I see us playing better in practice. Our offense has improved. I think our defense to date is reminiscent of the best we've had."

Steve Goggans, a 6-4, 225-pound tackle, has helped. Goggans was a pitcher for Ben Hines' baseball team. Against APC last week, Goggans was unblockable.

Goggans and the other Leos will be tested today.

Elks Lodge sponsors wrestling

Pomona Elks Lodge 789 will present a professional wrestling card at the lodge's auditorium at 1471 W. Holt Ave. this evening.

The opening event, featuring El Negro of Fontana vs. Oregon Lumberjack, is slated for 7:30 p.m. Also on the card are Ed Mansfield, S.D. Jones, Mr. Mexico No. 3 and El Hermano.

Donations of $3 for adults and $1 for children under 16 will be asked at the door. All proceeds will go to Elks charities with cerebral palsey being the major project.

DFG changing waterfowl rules

Waterfowl hunters at the Wister unit of the Department of Fish and Game's Imperial Wildlife Area near the Salton Sea will encounter some new ground rules that are expected to provide better and fairer hunting opportunities this season, the DFG said today.

The IWA waterfowl season opens Oct. 22 along with most of California. Details on seasons, bag limits and other information can be found in the DFG's hunting regulations booklet on resident and migratory game birds, available free wherever hunting licenses are sold. Pamphlets covering rules for hunting on state and federal areas are also available.

Reservation holders at Wister will find only two changes worth noting, the DFG said. First, each hunting party will select its hunting site at the Wister check station in the order of sale of permits. Last year, each party selected a site by parking their vehicle at a specific marked location in the Wister fields.

Second, the permit fee is $5 per adult shooter, reservationists and nonreservationists alike, in line with general price increase approved by the State Fish and Game Commission this year. There is no fee for juniors or non-shooters.

Aside from these two changes, reservation holders will find the rules much the same as last year. The Wister check station will open at 3 a.m. on shoot days and reservation holders present will be sold permits in the order stamped on the reservation. All reservation holders must present their reservations no later than one and a half hours before the daily shooting time.

All hunters are reminded that each party must have its own assigned and separate site. If two parties are sharing one vehicle, one party will have to be dropped off at its hunting site or will have to walk to its site. An individual party using two vehicles will be permitted to park them in tandem at one site.

Nonreservation holders will find a different system in force this year. The traditional first-come first-served line will no longer be in effect. Instead, there will be a drawing to establish the order of sale of permits to nonreservationists to replace reservation holders who do not appear on time and to replace hunters returning permits during the shoot day.

Drawing cards will be available to nonreservationists at the check station from 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. prior to each shoot day. These cards will be numbered consecutively in the upper left corner of each half of the card.

Only one member of the hunting party need be present to fill out these drawing cards with the last name and driver's license number of all members of the party on each half of the perforated card. No more than four individuals may be in a party, regardless of whether they plan to shoot or not.

The hunter will separate the two halves of the card at the perforation, retain the left half and deposit the right half in a tumbler at the station. The cards will be drawn at 9:30 p.m. and will establish the order in which the nonreservationists will be sold their permits. Hunters need not be present at the drawing.

A master chart at the check station will allow hunters to see their place in the order of the draw. They can check these results any time after the drawing and plan their time accordingly.

Permits will be sold to nonreservation parties in the order drawn until one and a half hours before the close of shooting time on the shoot day.

One expected advantage of the new system is that nonreservation holders will no longer have to spend long hours in a first-come first-served line waiting to get onto the Wister hunting area. The system is also designed to spread hunting opportunities more equitably among nonreservationists, including those who are unable to reach Wister early enough to get into the forefront of a first-come first-served line.

An instruction sheet for nonreservationists may be obtained by sending a request plus a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the DFG at 350 Golden Shore, Long Beach, Ca 90802. These sheets are also available at Wister.

Wister is the only state-operated waterfowl area where this system is being used this year, and there is considerable interest in seeing how well it works, the DFG said.

TO VISIT BOAT SHOW — The Hawkfarm, shown above, will be one of 45 brand new boats to be introduced at the Southern California Sailboat Show, set for Oct. 22-30 at the new Long Beach Convention Center complex.

L.B. Sailboat Show to be largest ever

The 1977 Southern California Sailboat Show, set to start Saturday, Oct. 22 at the Long Beach Convention Center, will feature 150,000 square feet of displays, thus making it the largest all-sail show ever held on dry land.

Chairman Jerry Sehi of the sponsoring Southern California Marine Association reports the event will be 66 percent larger than the 1976 exhibition. It is three times as large as the 1975 show.

The new size is made possible by the completion of the Long Beach Exhibit Hall, part of the $51.2 million dollar Convention Center complex on the waterfront.

There will be more than 400 sailing craft on display, according to Sehi. Two-hundred booth exhibits are also slated for the event, which will run through Oct. 30.

The sailboat show will be the first public event in the new L.B. exhibit hall building.

Also indicative of the tremendous growth of the show is the fact that 24 companies will be showing for the first time at the event. These companies will join 90 percent of the 1976 exhibitors.

More than 30 1978 model craft will be introduced at the show, along with nearly everything that goes on a sailing craft.

Chukar hunting slated at NWC

Portions of the Naval Weapons Center at China Lakes will be open to the public for chukar and rabbit hunting on two weekends this fall, Oct. 29-30 and Nov. 5-6.

Although there is no limit on the number of hunters, only 500 vehicles will be permitted on the base each weekend on a first-come, first-served basis. This quota applies to Naval Weapons Center personnel as well as the public.

Applications for vehicle permits should be obtained immediately from the Natural Resources Management Office (Code 26309), Naval Weapons Center, China Lake, CA 93555. A self-addressed, stamped envelope should be enclosed. Applications will be mailed out beginning Oct. 17.

There is no fee for a vehicle permit, but a $5 cash fee will be collected from hunters when they arrive at the check-in station.

Department of Fish and Game biologists' brood counts established that chukar and rabbit populations would support a hunt.

A quail hunt was not recommended.

Bird count down at IWA

Peter Gelfand, supervisor of the Imperial Wildlife Area, reported today that the waterfowl population on the area and in the vicinity of the Salton Sea appear to be down from last year.

"I would say maybe about 3,000 birds on the area, maybe 10,000 on and around this part of the Salton Sea," Gelfand said. "Last year at this time we had about 15,000 or more."

Gelfand said the major species represented at this time includes teal, shovelers and pintails.

CCC cleans up 'Chica Reserve

If you detect an improvement in the appearance of Bolsa Chica Ecological Reserve in Orange County, chalk up a plus for the California Conservation Corps, which now has two crews assigned to the area.

Tasks taken over by the youthful corps members include litter cleanup and maintenance, placement of pilings to prevent vehicular access into the marsh, construction of trail, boardwalk, restroom facilities and fencing, and installation and maintenance of signs.

Sharon Lockhart, Department of Fish and Game biologist in charge of the reserve, said the Conservation Corps contingent consists of two 10-person rotating crews from the corps' Camarillo base. While in Orange County, the crews stay at Los Alamitos Naval Air Station.

The California Conservation Corps is also scheduled to send a crew soon from its Deer Park camp near Escondido, San Diego County, to perform similar tasks at the Upper Newport Bay Ecological Reserve, a few miles south of Bolsa Chica.

A crew from Deer Park earlier this summer helped prepare a least tern nesting site at Upper Newport Bay.

Bass size limit expanded by DFG

The State Fish and Game Commission meeting in Los Angeles Friday received Department of Fish and Game recommendations for 1978 sportfishing regulations that would add 13 lakes and reservoirs to the present list of waters with a 12-inch minimum length for black bass.

In all, 25 state waters would have a 12-inch size limit for all species of black bass under the proposed regulation.

Other suggested changes in sportfishing regulations would:

—Prohibit the use of hooks with more than one point no on the Mad River and its tributaries in Humboldt County to help reduce incidents of illegal snagging.

—Outlaw the taking or possession of any trout more than 15 inches long in the Middle Fork of the Eel River drainage above Bar Creek, Mendocino County, to protect a dwindling summer run of steelhead.

—Limit the formerly year-round season for trout and salmon in the Trinity River to the period Nov. 16-Feb. 28 because of the reduction in the river's steelhead population.

According to George McCammon, branch chief of Inland Fisheries, imposing the minimum length restriction on black bass at additional waters should prevent overharvesting in these waters and help balance fisheries dominated by competitors such as bluegill and catfish. Including all species of black bass should simplify the regulation and the recognition problem for the angler, he explained.

McCammon siad that with the rapid growth of black bass fishing, largemouth, smallmouth and spotted bass are being caught at annual rates of more than 50 percent in those reservoirs where the size limit is requested.

The minimum length now in effect on 12 lakes would be inaugurated at Camanche Lake in Amador, Calaveras, and San Joaquin counties; New Hogan Reservoir, Calaveras County; Folsom Lake, Sacramento and El Dorado counties; Santa Margarita Lake, San Luis Obispo; Lake Mendocino, Mendocino County; San Antonio Reservoir, Monterey; Hensley (Hidden), Success and Terminus lakes and Buchanan Reservoir, Madera; Pine Flat Reservoir, Fresno; Lake Casitas, Ventura, and Skinner Lake in Riverside County.

Nine lakes now are covered with minimum length restriction for largemouth black bass only. These are Lake Oroville, Butte County; Merle Collins, Yuba; Clear Lake, Lake County; Berryessa Lake, Napa County; Lopez and Nacimiento, San Luis Obispo; Cachuma, Santa Barbara; Castaic, Los Angeles County. Clair Engle Lake (Trinity Lake), Trinity County, is covered with a minimum length restriction on both largemouth and smallmouth bass. Millerton Lake, Fresno and Madera counties; Don Pedro, Tuolumne, and McClure, Merced, already have a 12-inch size limit on all black bass.

Recommendations concerning trout include those to:

(1) Reduce the limits to five in the Mokelumne River from the Hwy. 99 Bridge to Camanche Dam, San Joaquin County, to better distribute the catch of planted trout in the area; and (2) open fishing in the Sacramento River and its tributaries upstream from the Interstate 5 Bridge at Dunsmuir on April 29 rather than a month later, this to coincide with the opening below the bridge.

Other department proposals would:

—Close the Klamath River from the mouth of the Trinity River to Ishi Pishi Falls to sturgeon fishing from April 1 to July 15 and outlaw snagging and the use of firearms in the taking of sturgeon in the ocean.

—Permit year-round underwater spearfishing for nongame fish in the Kaweah River and in Terminus and Success lakes, Tulare County.

—Close Mammoth Pool Reservoir in Fresno and Madera counties to all fishing from March 1 through June 16 to protect deer which swim the reservoir during spring migration.

—Limit the sport take of white seabass to three fish per angler per day instead of the current two fish limit and eliminate the tollerance of one undersize white seabass.

—Provide for the sport harvest of mussels in Pt. Reyes National Seashore.

—Reduce the limit of gaper clams in Humboldt Bay from 50 in combination with Washington clams to 25 graper clams.

—Amend the Pismo Clam Preserve boundaries in San Luis Obispo County.

—Permit the use of abalone irons in the taking of rock scallops.

—Close San Francisco and San Pablo bays to the taking of Dugeness crabs to protect nursery areas.

Hearings on the recommendations are scheduled for Nov. 4 in San Diego when the commission will announce its proposed regulations and Dec. 9 in Sacramento when the regulations will be adopted. New rules will go into effect March 1, 1978.

In other action the commission approved 1978-79 California duck projects including three in Canada for $175,000 and three in California totaling $27,250, and approved the establishment of San Miguel Island Ecological Reserve off Santa Barbara.

Gun salutes sometimes honor distinguished persons or mark special occasions.

This custom began long ago, when guns were loaded by hand.

Upon the approach of a friendly ship or important foreign visitor, all the big guns of the fort or warship were fired as a token of disarming them, for early guns could not be speedily reloaded. The visitor was thus assured that he was welcomed as a friend.

Modern gun salutes are fired with blank cartirdges or charges,

The number of shots fired depends upon the importance of the visitor -- 21-gun salutes are fired for presidents and other heads of government and 19-gun salutes are fired for such other persons as ambassadors, admirals and state governors.

Other gun salutes may be given with as few as five guns. Firing an odd number of shots is believed to come from an old naval supersition, that an even number of shots is unlucky.

Locate missing U.S. yacht near Saigon

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Three Americans who radioed their yacht was about to be rammed off the coast of Vietnam were reported safe today and being towed to Saigon, the father of the vessel's owner said.

Frederick Dellenbaugh said a ham radio operator who knew his daughter, Cornelia "Cricket" Dellenbaugh, telephoned him from Bangkok, Thailand, at about 9 a.m. EDT today.

"He said he talked with Cricket by radio and she stated that they were under tow by a Vietnamese government vessel to arrive in Saigon at 9 p.m. EDT tonight," Dellenbaugh said.

"He said they were all well."

Dellenbaugh said the caller was Robert Stevens, a boat yard operator who built the seized vessel, the 39-foot Brillig. "I know the man and recognized his voice and consider him reliable," Dellenbaugh said. "Stevens recognized the voice of my daughter."

The yacht issued its distress call Thursday, reporting it was being chased and fired on by vessels. The last message said the yacht was "about to be rammed."

Miss Dellenbaugh was identified as a former Peace Corps worker. The two other Americans aboard were identified as Leeland Dickerman of Flagstaff, Ariz., and Charles Affel of Philadelphia.

The vessel was en route from Thailand's Pattaya beach resort area to Brunei and Singapore, sources here said. The distress call reported a position about 35 miles off Vietnam's Ca Mau peninsula.

Vietnam's official news media, Vietnam News Agency and Voice of Vietnam, made no mention of the incident in today's transmissions.

Schools saved

MONROEVILLE, Ohio (AP) — By a better than 3-1 margin, Monroeville residents have approved a special levy that sends the district's 900 students back to classes today.

Thursday's 1,116-326 approval of the levy, which will generate an additional $245,000 for the district over the next three years, ended a one-week closure due to budget problems.

Had voters turned down a nine-mill property tax increase, school officials said classes would have been suspended until after the New Year, and the district would have faced possible dissolution.

"Basically, i think the people just wanted to keep their schools and kids in Monroeville," school Superintendent Donald Halsey said after the vote. "We've got some good people up here, even though there has been a lot of negativism."

The election, which drew 1,442 of the district's 1,800 registered voters, was the third to try to stave off closure. Voters, who are now taxed 27.3 mills, or $27.30 per $1,000 of assessed valuation, rejected new taxes in June and August.

Ohio law prohibits school districts from operating with deficits; 31 districts have asked for state audits to determine their financial situations. At least that number of districts also have special levy elections this fall.

The possibility of a shutdown also faces Cleveland, the state's largest school district, but no additional levy is planned there.

State legislators will be asked next week to consider a special measure to solve cash flow problems to keep Cleveland schools open.

An ad hoc Senate-House committee agreed Wednesday on the provisions of an emergency bill under which Cleveland could borrow $19 million to cover a projected deficit for the period of Oct. 17 to Dec. 31. Cleveland officials would have to certify that the funds would be repaid by June 30, 1978.

May plead insanity

ELVATON, Md. (AP) — Prosecutors say they consider a plea of insanity is likely to be entered by teen-ager Stuart Kreiner, who is charged with murder in the stabbing deaths of three young neighbor girls.

Kreiner, 16, was arraigned Thursday in Anne Arundel District Court on three counts of first-degree murder and then held as an adult without bail. Attorneys said no plea was entered and that they recommended that Judge Robert E. Heise order a psychiatric examination of the youth.

Heise told reporters later he had advised the defense counsel that a motion for such an order could be submitted for his consideration.

Queen in Ottawa

OTTAWA (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II arrives here today for a five-day Silver Jubilee visit to Canada and apparently will be drawn into the increasingly heated dispute over French Canadian nationalism.

The separatist premier of Quebec province, Rene Levesque, said he would attend a luncheon for the queen Sunday and may talk with her about independence for his French-dominated province.

All provincial heads of government and Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau will attend the luncheon at Trudeau's summer home.

Brown to Rome

ROME (AP) — U.S. Defense Secretary Harold Brown arrived here today for a 24-hour visit and talks with Italian government leaders.

Brown flew in from Belgrade where he discussed arms sales with the Yugoslavs in the first trip by a U.S. defense secretary to a Communist nation since World War II.

Fresh meat

European exploration of the New World from the 15th to the 18th centuries would not have been possible without the fresh meat provided by the green turtle, according to the American Museum of Natural History.

BING IN CHARACTER — Bob Hope, Dorothy Lamour, and Bing Crosby are shown in costume in the 1942 film, "Road to Morocco."

Bing Crosby: crooner becomes an institution

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Singer and actor Bing Crosby died of a heart attack Friday while engaged in his favorite pastime, playing golf. He was 73.

Crosby recently completed a tour of Britain — including a sell-out performance at London's Palladium — which he said was a test of his recovery from a back injury suffered in a fall from a theater stage in Pasadena, Calif. That show marked his 50th year in show business.

Just before his fall March 3 at the Ambassador Auditorium in Pasadena, Crosby had told his audience, "I hope it won't be another 50 years before we can celebrate like this."

Doctors later found he had ruptured a disc in the lower part of his back and would require a long convalescence.

Variously nicknamed "Der Bingle," "Old Dad," and "The Groaner," Harry Lillis Crosby began as a brash young band singer and ended as an institution.

He won his audiences with smooth ballads and a relaxed delivery. He became one of the most popular singers in the world and many times a millionaire, but refused to retire.

Bing liked loud sports shirts, owned race horses, was an accomplished golfer, smoked pipes and had a long bantering friendship with comedian Bob Hope.

It was often said during his heyday in the 1930s and 40s that at any moment, somewhere in the world, Crosby's rich baritone was being heard on a radio, phonograph or jukebox.

Until he was overtaken by rock 'n' roll in the 1950s, he was credited with selling more records than any singer in history, and his renditions of "Silent Night" and "White Christmas" still top the best-seller charts at Christmas.

His radio theme song, "When the Blue of the Night Meets the Gold of the Day" was known everywhere as was the trademark phrase of "bub-bub-bubboo" interjected in most of his songs.

In addition to records, Crosby also made more than 70 films and in each year from 1943 to 1948 was voted the top money-making star of the movies in an annual poll of theater owners and operators. That made him the all-time champion in the field.

In 1944, he won an Oscar for one of his best-known roles, as a priest in "Going My Way."

In one U.S. personality poll of the 1940s, he won as the most popular, beating out General Dwight Eisenhower, President Harry Truman and the Pope.

Crosby's heyday as a singer was the big band era of the 1930s and 1940s when he sold more records than any singer before him. But in the 1950s, Elvis Presley's phenomenal success pushed Crosby's records off the top of the charts.

Undaunted, Crosby launched a second career as a serious actor, accepting no-singing, dramatic roles in sometimes grimly realistic movies. In "Country Girl," he portrayed a singer who became a hopeless alcoholic grieving over the death of his small daughter. His movie roles brought new plaudits.

In the 1960s, Crosby concentrated on a third phase of show business — television. He limited himself to occasional specials and often acted as host of the "Hollywood Palace" variety show.

Probably the most remarkable thing about Crosby's popularity was that it never waned. He made easy transitions from recording artist to radio star to television performer and even to actor.

Crosby cultivated a public image of laziness and casualness, but he was in fact a hard worker and tough businessman. His business enterpriss included oil wells, distribution rights for frozen orange juice, the far-flung Bing Crosby Enterprises — which marketed everything from television films to toy dogs — and a luxurious trailer village at Palm Springs, Calif.

Crosby's given name was Harry Lillis. He was born May 2, 1904, in Tacoma, Wash., one of seven children. His brother Bob also was in show business, a bandleader-singer. There were several versions of how he got the nickname "Bing," but they all agree that he picked it up as a child.

He began his muscial career as a drummer in a high school dance orchestra. In 1927, he and Al Rinker, a pianist, joined Paul Whiteman's jazz orchestra, and Whiteman teamed them with Harry Barries as Whiteman's Rhythm Boys. Among their hits was "Mississippi Mud." In 1930, Crosby made his first screen appearance when the Whiteman band filmed "The King of Jazz."

The Rhythm Boys later left Whiteman and performed in Los Angeles at the Cocoanut Grove. Crosby then began singing and acting in a series of 20-minute movie shorts for producer Mack Sennett. It was during this period that he proposed to his first wife, Dixie Lee, over a chicken dinner at the Cocoanut Grove.

Crosby began a long association with Paramount Pictures in 1932 and in 1933 he made the first "Road" picture. He left Paramount in the 1950s and began to freelance.

Among his movies during the years were "The Birth of the Blues," "Holiday Inn," with Fred Astaire, "Just for You," with Ethel Barrymore and "Bells of St. Mary's" with Ingrid Bergman in which Crosby, a Roman Catholic, again played a priest.

During World War II, with the Crosby Camp Shows, the singer traveled more than 50,000 miles entertaining the troops.

His business enterprises — which brought him a fortune estimated at between $40 million and $70 million — included oil wells, distribution rights for a frozen orange juice, a 25,000acre cattle ranch near Elko, Nev., and the far-flung Bing Crosby Enterprises which marketed everything from television films to toy dogs.

Asked why he didn't retire, he would say, "A man in my position has a tiger by the tail. He just can't let go any old time. So many people become dependent on him for their livelihood. If he quits, scores of jobs go down the drain. Each job represents a family."

Crosby contributed heavily to charities. He also put up the funds each year for a pro-amateur golf tournament at Pebble Beach, Calif. Proceeds went into youth recreation centers and other charities. His exhibition golf matches with Hope also raised charity funds.

Bob Hope stunned

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Hope reacted with shock and astonishment Friday to the news that his longtime friend and "Road" companion, Bing Crosby, had died in Spain.

"I still don't believe it," he said in a telephone interview from his suite at the Waldorf Astoria. "I'm absolutely numb.

"I don't believe it. I saw him a couple of months ago and he seemed fine. I spoke to him on the telephone and he seemed in great spirits. He was playing golf and everything. I can't understand what happened. I guess he was more hurt in that fall than we realized."

The comedian referred to the tumble that Crosby had taken from a Pasadena stage into the orchestra pit during the taping of a television special March 3. The television special marked his 50th anniversary in show business.

'Blackout' traced to transformer

Authorities are continuing to investigate a blackout which resulted in the loss of power to a large number of homes in south Pomona Thursday evening.

A police spokesman said an Edison Co. transformer "blew out" at Garey and Philadelphia avenues, causing the blackout which lasted for a little over an hour. The lights went out at 8:37 p.m., and power was restored at 9:50.

The area affected by the blackout is bordered by Franklin Avenue on the north, County Road on the south, the Corona Expressway on the west and East End Avenue on the east.

Power lines were knocked down, and that in turn started a few small grass fires in the area, police said. Officers were busy controlling traffic in the darkened area and firemen extinguished the small fires.

Nation pauses to salute newspaper carriers

(Story on pages 6-7)

"Outdoor" chores are his job.

ON THE COVER

Today is International Newspaper Carrier Day, a salute to the newspaper delivery boys and girls throughout the nation. Paul Espinoza of Pomona and Diane Esslinger of Ontario, shown delivering the Progress-Bulletin, are typical of the newspaper's 822 carriers.

Paul does his homework.

News carrier works on his motorcycle.

Newspaper carrier does her chores.

Diane looks over some of her track trophies.

Day in and day out, at dawn or dusk, to millions of homes across the nation the comfortable "Plop" on porch, patio, lawn or driveway heralds the arrival of the daily newspaper, hand delivered by legions of efficient and hardworking young people.

Today is International Newspaper Carrier Day, when the newspaper industry and the entire country pauses to salute the youngest businessmen in the economy.

To deliver more than 44,000 editions of the Progress-Bulletin to homes from Ontario to West Covina, Mt. Baldy to the Santa Ana River, the newspaper has a team of 822 boys and girls, ages 11 to 14. They are independent dealers, each averaging a half-mile daily delivery route. They earn more than $500,000 a year, not including bonus contests and money and prizes earned in the sales of new subscriptions. They also take part in weekly contests offering prizes of excursions to Catalina Island, Disneyland, Magic Mountain, San Fransisco, San Diego and other centers.

Who are these newspaper carriers? What do they do when they aren't folding the Progress-Bulletin and bicycling through the neighborhood to deliver it to your home? To learn more about them, I interviewed two typical carriers — Diane Esslinger, daughter of Robert and Sharon Esslinger of Ontario, and Paul Espinoza, son of Alexander and Blondine Espinoza of Pomona. They emerged as typical American high school students, busier than the average, doing well in school and active in a variety of other areas.

Diane hardly needs her bicycle to deliver papers — she's one of the fastest runners in the valley, and she has a roomful of trophies, cups and ribbons to prove it. She was ranked seventh in the nation by the Amateur Athletic Union for the two-mile run for girls 14 and 15. She took fifth place in the national championships last year and second in the state championships. Last summer the Southern California Road Runners Track Club sent her to a one-week U. S. Olympic Training Center workshop.

Now in her third year at Montclair High School, Diane has an A average, with mathematics her favorite subject. When she isn't doing her schoolwork, delivering newspapers or training for a track meet, she babysits for extra money, goes bowling, "fools around" with the accordion and does the customary chores around the house. She's been delivering the Progress Bulletin for four years — her brother, Bob, also has a route.

"I like delivering newspapers," she said. "It's fun and I earn money."

Paul agrees. "I've always wanted to throw newspapers, " he said. "I enjoy it. I have two routes — 66 papers. It takes me about 45 minutes." He has been delivering newspapers for a year and a half, and his sisters, Sherry and Francesca, also have routes.

A freshman at Ganesha High School, Paul is a good student and is saving the money he earns as a carrier to go to college. He's out for tight end or wide receiver on the freshman football team, plays third or shortstop in baseball and also likes track. He is a member of the Motorcycle Club at high school; the Espinoza garage shelters a Suzuki 125 and an Indian 75. When he's not busy with athletics, homework and his newspaper routes, Paul spends his time building models, working on his motorcycle, doing the "outside" chores and romping with the family dog.

Diane and Paul are typical of the 822 Progress-Bulletin carriers and of the vast army of carriers throughout the nation, independent businessmen and women earning money and performing an invaluable service to the newspaper readers of America.

Seventh-ranked nationally in the two-mile for girls 14 and 15.

She relaxes with the accordion.

It happened in Pomona

To give the devils their due, there are probably no political office holders who are really good or bad, it is just thinking that makes them so. At least that's the way it is today and that's the way it was in Pomona back in 1892. Fortunately we have the evidence to prove it. On Saturday, September 10, 1892, the editor of The Pomona Weekly Times wrote:

"Mr. C.H. Marshall, the new City Trustee, is an intelligent, liberal minded, upright man and therefore a good citizen and can't help being a first class officer."

But just as differences of opinion make a horse race, so too it is differences of opinion that keep city officials constantly running from pillar to post. In that same issue of The Pomona Times there appeared a Letter to the Editor the author of which emphatically stated:

"It is my candid opinion that the whole City Council ought to resign."

Which certainly would seem to indicate that then even as now, the best of politicians sometimes fails in his efforts to be all things to all people.

It is also interesting to note that in various other ways politicians were no better off in 1892 than they are today. In fact, their lot presents many striking similariteis. In 1892 the Democrats had just come into power with the election of Cleveland as President. And strangely enough, then as now there was also a water shortage. So just as a lot of folks are doing today, The Pomona Weekly Times editor placed the burdon of doing something constructive about that water shortage right where it belonged.

"If the Democrats don't bring rain soon, now that they are on top," he wrote, "they'll get themselves disliked."

AGED BABY CARRRIAGE

Antique-wise

Baby carriage is valued collectible

By Dorothy Hammond

QUESTION: Enclosed is a photograph of a baby carriage we have. The body is made of natural reed, the base, axles and wheels are of wood painted dark green (buttermilk paint, perhaps), and stenciled in dark brown or faded black. From the worn spots on the handle, it appears to be the original paint. The carriage is in good condition except for two reed loops missing at the foot of the basket. The burlap cover has been added recently.

Could you tell us when this carriage was used? How much is it worth today?

Any information you can give us will be very much appreciated. Mrs. H.A.W.

ANSWER: I would date your baby carriage around 1825-50, and comparable examples are usually valued at $175-$200.

QUESTION: During the years I have been reading your column, I don't believe you have ever answered a question concerning old windmill weights. I have three of these and of course am curious to know if there are collectors for such things. If so, how much would a buffalo, a milk cow and a long tail horse be worth? J.A.

ANSWER: Windmill weights are of much interest to many collectors nowadays and values continue to swing upward. Presently, the buffalo and horse are being priced in the $150 range, while the cow sells for around $50-$65.

QUESTION: I would appreciate any information you can give me on the price of a set of eight snack trays with matching cups. All are perfect and each piece is marked "Royal Doulton, England." I believe the decoration is called "Coaching Ways," done in yellow and brown tones. Mrs. T.B.H.

ANSWER: Royal Doulton sets like yours sell for about $35 each.

Stamps in the news

Plans are developing for the 1978 Philatelic Exhibition commemorating the centennial of China's first stamps (ROCPEX TAIPEI '78) to be held in Tapei, Taiwan, Republic of China, beginning March 20, 1978 and continuing for 10 days. Many nations and private collectors will be exhibiting at that time, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency. Commissioners have been selected from various countries to supervise the exhibits.

Looking ahead to next year, Great Britain will celebrate another royal occasion — the 25th anniversary of Queen Elizabeth II's Coronation. We can expect a repetition of the many special stamp sets by Britain and its Commonwealth nations as seen this year for the Silver Jubilee marking the 25th anniversary of her accession to the throne.

The British postal agenda for 1978 will be a stamp in January emphasizing its energy program. Featured will be the North Sea oil industry along with other forms and sources of energy. Historic buildings will be the subject of a special issue in March, with one of the stamps depicting the Tower of London, since 1978 marks the 900th anniversary of its foundation. The Coronation set will be issued in May. There will be a set of stamps in August honoring the centenary year of both the Cyclists Touring Club and the British Cycling Federation. The final issues will be Britain's Christmas stamps.

The chess story of the year is the subject of a featured cover article in September's U.S. Chess Federation publication "Chess Life and Review." It tells how junior high school and elementary school teams from north Philadelphia won and finished second in their respective sections of the U.S. National School Championships.

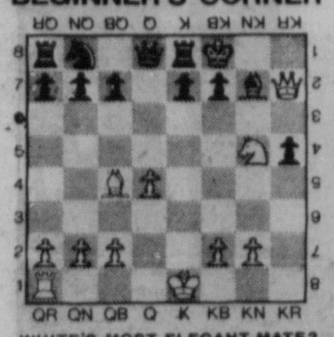

The all black teams and their white teacher-coaches were able, on the basis of previous accomplishments, to raise $15,000 to pay for the trip! Broad sections of the Philadelphia community responded to the achievements of these "disadvantaged children," who were just as at home at the chessboard as on the basketball court.

Deprived of junk food, stuffed with vitamin B and mildly dosed with transcendental meditation, these athlete-chessplayers were met on their return by a mad hurrah, according to the N.Y. Times:

"At the airport, mounted policemen pointed the way to a reception area where a red-white-and-blue rostrum had been set up. Also on hand were two television crews, a city councilman, a state senator, the entire Police and Firemen's Band, and a svelte blonde who would read a proclamation on behalf of the Mayor. . . . As the TV crews muscled into position, a dozen black youths in blazers were disgorged from the cars. Most of them seemed to be carrying trophies."

A few more such demonstrations of the stunning potentials of our more-neglected children, white and non-white, and it will be significantly less easy to explain away our failure to decently educate them.

The World's Greatest Athlete is proud to have been a Newspaper Carrier

"It takes steadiness to be a decathlon man," Bruce Jenner says. "And that's what Newspaper Carriers give you—steady performance every day."

Bruce delivered newspapers through his 5th, 6th, and 7th-grade years in Tarrytown, N.Y.

"Being a Newspaper Carrier helped me to acquire the discipline I needed for training." And his training paid off.

Grimacing with pain and tension, Bruce Jenner crossed the 1,500-meter finish at the Montreal Olympics to win the most grueling of all competitions. The 1976 decathlon champion also won the only Olympic honor more precious than gold—the title of the World's Greatest Athlete.

Now he's asking you to join the Treasury Department in saying "thank you" to your local Newspaper Carriers. It's their day: Newspaper Carrier Day, 1977.

Newspaper Carriers have steadily supported the U.S. Savings Bond program, buying bonds regularly with their earnings. Through their Newspaper Carrier Thrift Clubs, many have set aside money for their college educations.

Like Bruce Jenner, they believe in goals for the future. And that's what U.S. Savings Bonds are all about.

Officers planning and conducting the sale are Tom Baldivia, president; David Collom, vice president; Michelle Lloyd, secretary; Jeff Collom treasurer; and Mike Bennett, sergeant-at-arms.

Adviser of the 300 Bowling Club is Bill Vermilya, counselor at Alta Loma High School.

Exploring medieval castles, cruising down the Rhine River, experiencing the beauty of the Austrian Alps, seeing the masterpieces in the Louvre in Paris, the mountains and lakes in Switzerland, and walking the streets and town squares of Italy will be included in the tour.

Principal Sister Francita, Sister Patricia Ann, and Mrs. Jean Corceran will be the counselors accompaning the students this year. A tour representative will meet with all interested students and parents on Tuesday in the school's Little Theatre at 7:30 p.m.

The trip is open to all students in the valley and all are invited to attend this meeting. For further information, please call 213 963-6711. St. Lucy's is located at 655 W. Sierra Madre Ave., Glendora.

Hiking club marks 13th year

The Alta Loma High School Hiking Club started its 13th year of activities recently. The group climbed Dawson Peak and Mt. Baldy on its first outing.

The hike started at San Antonio Falls where the hikers walked the fire road to the trail at the Devil's Backbone. Then they continued around the north side of Mt. Baldy to Dawson Peak. On the way back, part of the group climbed the north side of Mt. Baldy and reached the summit.

The day's highlight was reading the register on Dawson Peak and finding a 1969 account of a club hike from Lytle Creek. The 1969 hike, also made by the Alta Loma High School Hiking Club was made in October. But in 1969, the group encountered snow, from the previous winter!

Those completing the hike were Doug Gale, Harold Balding, Jack Marsee, Wade Dishinger, David Allen, Daniel Allen, Joe Branchetti, Dan Chilson, Kelly Williams, Ken Caruso, Jeff Clayton and Paul Balding, and advisers Martin Balding, Joann Harris and Ken Harris.

Naval junior ROTC featured

By LYNN HERMAN
Lutheran Correspondent

One unique feature of Lutheran High is its Naval Junior ROTC program. This program combines drill training, a classroom format, cruises and field trips. It makes the class interesting, practical and well-rounded.

Students assume leader roles in actual platoons, with Cmdr. B.G. Mattox as commander-in-chief. Once a month, the whole company will assemble to march together. Otherwise, each class drills everyday on its own.

The Naval Science class is active in school-related activities also. Members voluntarily run the school snack store. Once a year, they sponsor the military ball.

The cruises offered vary from year to year, but Commander Mattox has said he planned a one-day cruise for the female cadets on a destroyer in December. Other plans are: boot camp for everyone, a Hawaiian cruise for a selected member of male cadets, and a trip to Naval Air Station Miramar for an air show.

Naval Science this year will also be in the Pomona Christmas parade and the Armed Forces Day parade in Torrance. Already the cadets have taken a field trip to Catalina on an "oceanographic observation."

Pageant finalists selected

Thirty girls from 16 valley cities were selected as quarter-finalists in the San Gabriel Valley competition for the 1978 Miss Teen-age America Pageant, in recent testing at West Covina Fashion Plaza.

Joan Nachbaur, coordinator for the pageant at the plaza, said the next phase of the competition for girls 13-17 will be today starting at noon, as each contestant will be publicly interviewed on the mall, and will perform before a panel of judges.

Actor Chris Nelson will be master of ceremonies, while other judges will include KABC reporter Tawny Little, author and charm school director Rose Collins, and Johanna Layton, general manager of Bullock's Fashion Plaza.

Each girl will be outfitted by Bullock's for the quarter-finals, with fashion and makeup coordination arranged by Lisa Farnsworth.

From this group, two girls will be chosen to represent this area in the Southern California finals, Oct. 22, at Huntington Beach Center. National competition will be in November in Dallas, with "The Waltons" Richard Thomas as master of ceremonies. Winners of the quarter-finals today will receive gifts from plaza merchants.

Girls selected for the quarter-finals are Mimi Graff, Lee Ann Guhl, Linda Ohanesian, Yvonne Paulo, Lisa Marie Selby, Cecilia Short and Susan Smith, West Covina; Darci Berns, Donna Borkowski, Anna Bustos, Cathy Mercica and Donella Mounger, Covina.

Its customers range from the young beginning drummers to the professional drummers in recording groups such as "War," "ZZ TOP," "Emylou Harris," "Gary Wright," and other well known groups appearing in local nightclubs and concerts throughout the valley and Southern California areas.

The education division, directed by Doug Brucher and Alan Waddington, instruct beginner, intermediate, and advanced students in drums and percussion instruments. Several drummers and schools have had their entire percussion instruments overhauled. The latest phase of major service is refinishing of guitars, organs and upright pianos.

The entire staff are all experienced drummers and perform with various groups. They continue their percussion studies at local colleges and private advanced studios such as Elliot Franks Chuch Flores, and Les Demerle, noted studio recording artists.

The philosophy of the staff and the center is to be informed and to improve the art of drumming.

Right time for this revue film

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Something that started years ago in Milwaukee, Wis., where the Zucker and Abrahams families were neighbors and friends, has now become a force that Hollywood is thinking about very seriously.

The something that happened is a movie called "The Kentucky Fried Movie." It is a plotless revue-type film, made up of skits and sketches of varying lengths, which have only one common denominator — most of them are very funny.

Traditionally, revues have worked on Broadway but they have not been very successful on film. Lately, a few have been tried — "Tunnelvision," "The Groove Tube" and, perhaps, Monty Python's films — and they have had their moments, but the public has not busted down doors to see them.

But the public is buying tickets in large numbers to see "The Kentucky Fried Movie." Maybe it's funnier than the others, maybe it's better made, maybe it's just that times have changed and it's now the right time for a revue movie.

Whatever the reason, Hollywood is watching this experiment closely. And chances are good you'll be seeing more revue movies soon.

But probably not from the three bright young men who did this one. Jim Abrahams and David and Jerry Zucker are already hard at work on their next film, but it is different — it has a plot and a story with something approximating a beginning, a middle and an end.

The three boys grew up close together in Milwaukee, then moved on to the University of Wisconsin in Madison.

"We found at that time," David Zucker says, "that we had a common sense of humor. And we thought the best way to express that sense of humor was in the theater."

So they started their own theater in Madison — actually the back of a bookstore — and put on a show. It was successful, but they could only seat 70 people, and that sort of limits your success.

So, in 1972, they moved to Los Angeles. They had thought of New York, but decided on Los Angeles instead.

"That decision," Jim Abrahams says, "was purely because of the Southern California climate. We figured there was a good chance we might starve, and it's much more comfortable starving here because of the nice climate."

They started their theater — The Kentucky Fried Theater — and they didn't starve. They made money and friends, and, as they put it, "that gave us the confidence to write a movie."

They think it's a success because it's funny, not because it's a revue. And they believe that they can write funny stuff in a plot form, as well, and that's what they're trying now.

When movie companies go on location, they take all sorts of things with them — but never, until now, have they thought to bring along a computer terminal.

Paramount is the studio that's doing just that. Now, when the studio sends a company to a location, they lug along an IBM Model 3741 terminal, fitted in a custom-made aluminum case designed by the studio's special effects department.

And they use it to keep track of production costs — the figures go from the terminal to Paramount's studio in Hollywood and then to the corporate headquarters in New York. And back comes the answer, or the command.

The system was first used on "Bad News Bears In Breaking Training," and now the studio is using it for all its location filming. It means the end to those old haphazard days on location, when anything used to go.
